Black water from faucet is unpleasant, but not uncommon problem: village engineer

by LYNN ASINOF

Black water running from the tap can make cooking, bathing and washing unpleasant, but it is not an uncommon problem for Wheeling residents.

Lawrence Oppenheimer, village engineer and director of public works, said his department receives several complaints every month from residents who have black, sediment-laden water running from their faucets.

In some cases, Oppenheimer said, the problem is caused by the collection of sediment in the older village water mains, which are made of cast iron. He said particles of iron collect inside the pipes and can be dislodged by a sudden change in the water pressure.

"THIS WOULD CAUSE a surge towards that direction where there is low pressure which could cause a reverse flow in the pipes," Oppenheimer said. "As soon as you get a reverse flow, that's when the particles have built up loosen and cause dirty water."

Such low pressure areas can develop during high water usage for a fire or when a developer tests his water lines, the public works director said. He said, however, these black water problems clear up quickly.

To remedy this problem, Oppenheimer said the village periodically flushes the water mains to clear out and loosen the particles. Flushing also is used on dead-end water mains.

Persons using deadend water mains also are prone to get black water. Oppenheimer said since the water does not circulate, there is a surge in the water mains when someone turns on the water. This in turn loosens the particles and "when they turn on the water faucet out comes the dirty water," Oppenheimer said.

MANY RESIDENTS, however, have black water problems because of the type of piping used in their homes and apartments. Officials said this type of problem is not caused by buildup in the village water mains, and the amount of sediment tends to increase with time.

"There are a great many buildings in town that were constructed using galvanized steel pipe for the interior plumbing," Oppenheimer said. "These pipes react the same way as the cast iron pipe in that the particles of iron build up inside the pipes over a period of years."

Oppenheimer said the particles come from the pipe itself and from the iron in the village water, which is hard well water. He said he has seen pipes that used to have a five-eighths-inch opening completely closed in some places.

In this case, Oppenheimer said the problem can not be solved by flushing, because there isn't enough water pressure inside the buildings. He said the only way to solve the problem is to replace the piping with copper or plastic.

WHEN THE BLACK water problem originates inside a building, Oppenheimer said it is often difficult to convince landlords and homeowners that the black water is not caused by the village water supply. "They either don't believe it or would rather not," he said.

Tests have been conducted on this type of water to determine if the water was unhealthy. The tests showed no bacteria in the water although it looked dirty, Oppenheimer said.

Persons experiencing black water problems should contact the village public works department.

Oppenheimer said residents also might have dirty water problems if they do not clean their water softeners annually to get rid of sediment. He said some people with old hot water heaters also develop a sediment scale inside the pipes because of minerals in the water.

WHEELING TRUSTEE Albert Lang brought in by a resident complaining about the problem earlier this year.

Police chief involved in auto accident

by LUISA GINETTI

Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt said Friday he will take no action against Police Chief Peter Guttila for being involved in a traffic accident outside the village until he sees a copy of the official police accident report.

The accident occurred about 4:30 p.m. Thursday in Northbrook. Guttila, 57, driving a village-issued 1973 Rambler, struck a 1969 Pontiac driven by a 17-year-old Glenview resident, Kevin J. Littwin.

No injuries were reported and Northbrook police issued no tickets for the incident.

NORTHBROOK POLICE said both drivers were southbound on Landwehr

Road in the village with Guttila following Littwin. As the two cars approached Cherry Lane, Guttila attempted to pass Littwin on the left. At the same time Guttila was starting to pass, Littwin made a left turn onto Cherry Lane crossing in front of Guttila and the two cars collided at the intersection.

According to the police report, Guttila contends Littwin did not signal his intention to turn. Littwin, according to police, said he thought he heard a shot or something thrown at his car about one-half block from the Landwehr-Cherry intersection. He turned left onto Cherry Lane to see what had happened and claimed he signaled.

According to the accident report, Guttila overtook Littwin improperly, but neither driver was officially charged with a traffic violation.

Passolt said Friday he had not seen a copy of the accident report and was withholding action until he receives a copy of the official Northbrook police account.

"THIS IS THE FIRST accident he's had since he's been on the force," Passolt said. "Sooner or later anyone who drives a lot is going to be involved in an accident and we have to be reasonable in these things."

When asked if the police chief faced a possible suspension for the incident, Passolt said the case would be considered "on its own merits."

"We take each case and consider the various aspects of it on its own merits," the village manager said. "Obviously, if a man were found going 100 miles per hour in reverse with the doors open that would be grounds for action."

Vern Nystrom, chairman of the Wheeling Police and Fire Commission, said no action would be considered against the chief unless recommended by the village manager or village board.

Passolt said he would reserve judgment on Guttila's accident until he sees the report.

McGlothlin may challenge age law for school board

Gerald McGlothlin of Wheeling, who is old enough to vote but too young to serve on a school board, may challenge the law that is preventing him from being appointed to fill the vacancy on the Dist. 21 Board of Education.

McGlothlin, 20, of 1047 S. Carol Ave., is ineligible for the appointment because the Illinois School Code requires school board members to be at least 21 years old.

Under the impression that the legal age for school board members was 18, McGlothlin applied for the post recently vacated by Mary Jo Reid of Buffalo Grove. He was interviewed along with the six other applicants for the seat, but cannot get the appointment.

McGLOTHLIN TOLD The Herald Friday he will think about challenging the school code age requirement.

"I believe this law is definitely inconsistent because of the new voting-age law and everything else," he said. "It's just a matter of time before the legislature corrects the error."

McGlothlin said he intended to talk with legislators he knows about introducing measures to lower the legal age for school board members.

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, submitted two bills to the House to extend school board eligibility to 18, 19- and 20-year-olds two years ago, but the measures were defeated.

McGLOTHLIN SAID he was sorry that he will not have the opportunity to serve on the Dist. 21 school board.

"I'm really disappointed," he said. "I had hoped I'd have a chance on my merits, but apparently I don't even have a slim chance because of this law."

McGlothlin was seated on the Harper College Board of Trustees last January under a new state law that requires every college board to have a non-voting student member.

TELEVISION CAMERAS AND a filmed interview were a part of the fun Friday morning for Mrs. Hofstede and her Golden Years Club members at the County Building. Other members looked on and enjoyed.

Celebrities!

It all started when 25 senior citizens went on TV—and all they wanted were new county ID cards

by TONI GINETTI

The ladies and gentlemen of the Rolling Meadows Golden Years Club never had it so good.

Cook County Clerk Stanley T. Kusper laughing and joking with the ladies, coffee and sweet rolls galore, television cameras and radio and newspaper interviewers following them around and the red carpet treatment from the county clerks attending them—all just because they had come to apply for some identification cards.

What the fuss was all about was the fact that the 25 senior citizens were the first to receive newly-devised personal identification cards Friday morning. The seniors and Kusper, whose brainchild the new IDs are, loved every minute of it.

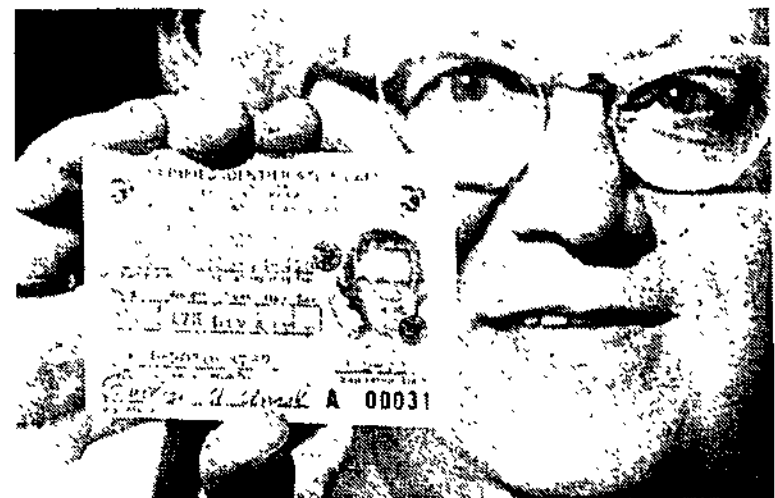

"THERE'S MY GIRL," the debonair Kusper beamed when Mrs. Henry Hofstede, president of the club, announced their arrival. The group, after stepping off a specially chartered bus provided by Mayor Roland Meyer, was in a rousing mood following a noisy ride down the Kennedy Expressway. For many it was the first trip to the Chicago Loop in years.

The royal treatment started as the ladies and three men alighted from the bus at the door of the County Building on Clark Street, with no less than a police officer as doorman.

Inside, the club members boarded two elevators to go to the second floor clerk's office where the new identification department is located.

"I feel like I'm getting married again," one of the women laughed as the group passed the marriage license bureau located next to the new department.

Before the seniors received their $3 cards, which Kusper calls "a favorite project of mine" to provide acceptable identification for persons, county officials including Kusper were processed for their cards.

THE CARDS WILL be available to the general public starting today.

"Mr. Kusper, we're from Rolling Meadows," Mrs. Hofstede told the clerk, pulling him aside from the others.

"Oh you doll. Look, we've got all these people from Rolling Meadows," Kusper said out loud. "Have some coffee and a roll while you wait."

It seemed the 9:30 a.m. arrival of the group was a little premature, ("we didn't expect them until 10 a.m." one aide said,) but the seniors were more than happy to wait while the cameras aimed at them and Mrs. Hofstede was ushered aside for interviews.

"The cards will make it easier for us to cash checks," she told a television interviewer. Did she have trouble cashing checks, the interviewer asked? "Oh, no, I don't have any trouble cashing checks because I don't cash that many checks," she laughed.

THEN CAME KUSPER, arms enfolding some of the ladies, to pose for pictures.

"I thought we were going to march in and march out like a bunch of old ladies," Mrs. Hofstede said. "I never expected this kind of treatment."

The group's trip and selection as first recipients of the cards stemmed from a visit some months ago by Kusper to the Rolling Meadows City Hall.

"We had come there to speak to them and in the conversation this came up," Kusper said. "We started kicking it

Buffalo Grove miss named nude queen

Her name is Taffy Tamura of Buffalo Grove, and she was crowned Miss Nude America Saturday at the annual nude beauty pageant and extravaganza at — of all places — Naked City, Indiana. Miss Tamura, 21, who lists her employment as a go-go dancer, was joined in the title event by Stephen Long, 31, of Indianapolis, a postal employee and now Mr. Nude America.

Massive 'metro' center plans

Developers of "Woodfield 78" a massive "metro center" on the site of the Union 78 oil company property near Woodfield, will provide homes for nearly 9,000 residents and jobs for another 10,000 if plans go through. If village officials approve plans for the 236-acre tract on Golf Road, the major center would contain a 1,000-room Hyatt hotel and some 3,500 residential units. But a petition for village services submitted by the developers indicates large-scale demands on the village of Schaumburg, including roads, sewers, water, police and fire protection, and a willingness to limit fees for a period of 20 years.

How old is old enough?

Gerald McGlothlin of Wheeling who is old enough to vote but not old enough to be elected to a school board, is considering challenging that state law which prohibits him from being appointed to the Dist. 21 board of education. McGlothlin, 20, who was seated on the Harper college board as its student representative, must wait until he is 21 before joining a school board as a member under current state law.

Two cats are clean

Last May 23 the community of Hoffman Estates passed an ordinance requiring cat owners to buy licenses for their pets and technically, every cat in town must have a jingling tag to signify its owner has paid the $3 yearly fee. Well, if the records are right, the field mice in Hoffman Estates have nothing to worry about — so far two licenses have been issued.

Manager awaits crash report

Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt has decided not to take action against Police Chief Peter Guttila until a full report is in on the chief's car accident. According to a Northbrook police report, Chief Guttila rear-ended a car driven by a 17 year old Glenview resident Thursday evening. No tickets were issued.

Fire referendum passes

A major hurdle toward the creation of a Village of Hoffman Estates fire department was cleared Saturday as voters in two subdivisions voted overwhelmingly in favor of a referendum consolidating some areas of a rural fire protection district under the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District. The unofficial results were 176 yes votes, 55 no votes and four spoiled ballots.

Hersey kicks off Rose Bowl drive

by JILL BETTNER

Paul Bryan, president of the Tournament of Roses Association, came to Hersey High School last Friday night to personally invite the marching band to participate in the Rose Bowl Parade on New Year's Day. Bryan's visit kicked off a campaign to raise the $50,000 needed for the trip.

Praising the award-winning band, Bryan told the Hersey boosters, local and state government officials who filled the cafeteria that, as a native of Chicago, he is happy the Hersey band will represent Illinois in the annual parade in Pasadena, Calif.

THE HERSEY band is the first Illinois high school band to be invited and participate in the parade in 25 years.

Bryan talked about the history of the parade and gave the audience a sneak preview of plans for this year's 86th edition. The theme of the parade is to be "The Heritage of America" with Henry Aaron as the grand marshal.

Accepting Bryan's invitation, Roland Goines, Hersey principal, said, "We are extremely delighted to be asked to represent not only Hersey but the entire Northwest area and all of Illinois. You can bet we'll be there with a lot of other people and a lot of other people's help."

STATE REP. Eugene Schlickman, (R-Arlington Heights) delivered a proclamation from Illinois Gov. Daniel Walker declaring the band members official state ambassadors at the Rose Bowl Parade. State Senator David Regner, (R-Mount Prospect) and State Reps. Robert Juckett, (R-Park Ridge), joined Schlickman as he read the proclamation.

Various Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect officials extended congratulations to the Hersey band and offered their help in fund-raising efforts.

THE BAND is scheduled to perform at Arlington Park race track on Labor Day, in a benefit at Mill Run Theatre Oct. 20 and will also receive a share of the profits of the annual Mount Prospect Octoberfest. A raffle and candy sale are also planned and the group plans to contact area business and civic organizations for support.

Commenting on the enthusiasm of Hersey boosters, Bryan told The Herald, "The parent group here is the finest I've ever seen. I think the band will make a very fine impression on the association, the one-and-a-half million people who will line the parade route and the approximately 125 million who will watch it on television."

Percy: account for the snoopers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Charles H. Percy said Sunday he has asked for an accounting of all the intelligence, police and investigative agents hidden within the federal government so Congress can bring them under its control.

If he succeeds, it will be the first such comprehensive survey of the federal police and intelligence community ever conducted and reported to Congress.

The Illinois Republican said his request was part of a renewed Congressional interest, prompted by the revelations of Watergate, in passing legislation to protect privacy rights against government encroachment.

"We find ourselves threatened by the specter of a 'watchdog government' brooding a nation of snoopers," Percy said in a statement.

"We are threatened because we do not know the facts about our intelligence community. Billions are appropriated each year, but we do not know enough about which agencies spend this money and what they spend it for.

"There is an immediate, urgent need for a comprehensive accounting of the U.S. funds and federal government personnel devoted to police, investigative and intelligence work," he said. "Congress is simply not performing the oversight functions our citizens expect of us."

Percy said he has asked Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats to report to the Senate Government Operations Committee as quickly as possible how many people are in such work, what their missions are and how much the government pays for their services.

He said the committee, of which he is the ranking Republican member, would then conduct hearings aimed at getting rid of "excessive and unnecessary" police and intelligence efforts and setting up "adequate Congressional control" over the remainder.

Percy said a Library of Congress survey showed more than 60 units within the federal bureaucracy — ranging from the Agriculture Department to the FBI to the Smithsonian Institution — involved in police, investigative or intelligence work.

He said the limited information available shows that the budget for only 14 of these units exceeds $1 billion a year.

Price of inflation-fight tactics—6% unemployment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's top economic coordinator, Kenneth Rush, said Sunday that an anticipated unemployment rate of up to 6 per cent for 1974 is the price that must be paid for unwelcome administration inflation-fighting tactics of the past.

In separate appearances, both Rush and Treasury Secretary William E. Simon predicted that the unemployment rate would not exceed 6 per cent this year and said the inflation rate would be about 7.5 per cent by year's end.

Rush said the administration has no intention of restoring wage and price controls to fight inflation despite some political pressure to do so.

"I think one of the real evils we have had is to think that we can have on the one hand full employment and on the other no inflation," said Rush. "We cannot avoid paying the price for a low rate of inflation."

"We tried this 'no unemployment and no inflation' by the wage and price controls that we put into effect in August, 1971, and we're paying a heavy price for that today."

Estimating that the unemployment rate at the end of the year will be between 5.5 and 6 per cent he said the inflation battle "is not something that will be easily won" and the nation "must be prepared to pay whatever price is necessary to overcome inflation."

Rush was interviewed on CBS' "Face the Nation" and Simon appeared on

Kenneth Rush

NBC's "Meet the Press."

Simon took much the same view. "Unemployment inching up does not mean we have a recession, and we can deal with unemployment in welfare and unemployment systems," he said. "Our forecasts remain that it will stay on this side of 6 per cent."

"I do think we should continue to stick to the fiscal restraint which is now in place and which is just now beginning to bite."

Rush also said he saw "no possibility of a panic or crash," adding that banks are "too greedy" and need to slow down their competition for money.

Appearing on ABC's "Issues and Answers," Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said that the current economic crisis is the government's fault, since both the administration and the Congress have failed to find a way to halt inflation without creating unemployment.

But he said there was no reason to panic or to anticipate an economic crash similar to the one which created the Great Depression 40 years ago.

Hint Nixon reaches major decision

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — After a day of seclusion with his family and closest friend, President Nixon late Sunday summoned his top aides and speechwriters to this mountain retreat for talks that strongly suggested he has made a major decision in the impeachment crisis.

The arrival of Chief of Staff Alexander Haig, special impeachment counsel James D. St. Clair, press secretary Ronald Ziegler and speechwriters Patrick J. Buchanan and Ray Price at Camp David aroused speculation that Nixon has reached — and is ready to announce — a major turning point in this latest and worst crisis of his life.

But White House spokesman Gerald L. Warren, announcing the arrival, sought to discourage newsmen from reporting that the President was contemplating a major political announcement or televised appearance.

"I don't know of any speech. I do not think you should speculate along that line," Warren said.

But the group has all the appearances of a crisis task force of some kind, and Warren could not halt the immediate spate of speculation as to which course the President might be preparing to take.

At least three possible major options were open: a new national appeal for support if he has decided to stay and fight his ouster; use of the new 25th Amendment to step aside temporarily until the issue is resolved; or resignation, which would preserve his retirement pension and the prerequisites to which a former president is entitled unless he has been impeached.

Meanwhile, Rep. Ed Mezey, D-Iowa, a member of the House Judiciary Committee said Sunday he still hopes new evidence on Nixon's taxes and finances will be released in time to draft a fourth Article of Impeachment before the House debate begins.

In the meantime, all 435 House members are being given the chance to listen to the 19 available tapes and study the evidence on which the committee based its recommendation that the President be impeached for obstructing justice, abusing presidential powers, and defying congressional subpoenas.

Nationwide telephone strike averted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The president of the Communications Workers of America and an executive from American Telephone and Telegraph Co. announced Sunday night that a tentative agreement had been reached and a coast-to-coast strike set for midnight had been averted.

For the first time this year, the giant Bell System was negotiating with the CWA, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and about two dozen unaffiliated unions on a single contract package.

The new contract would cover 725,000 workers and have a $3 million price tag. The IBEW and representatives of the unaffiliated unions considered the tentative agreement separately but they were expected to follow the CWA's lead.

CWA President Glenn E. Watts announced that the agreement had been reached at a news conference, flanked by Bell's Rex Reed, and federal mediation director W. J. Usery Jr.

W. J. Usery, head of the federal mediation and conciliation service, had met with union leaders and top AT&T negotiators earlier in the day.

There were scattered reports of unauthorized walkouts before the deadline. Company officials reported walkouts in Jackson Mich., Flagstaff, Ariz., and Richmond, Va. and pickets were reported in Dayton and Springfield, Ohio. A Bell system official said supervisory personnel had been prepared to fill in for striking workers.

On Saturday, negotiators met until midnight hoping to resolve the issues of wages, pensions and union security. The unions sought a 14 per cent raise, better pensions and an agency shop which would force employees who do not want to join a union to still pay dues.

Panel to get Kennedy transit line plan

The Chicago Plan Commission Thursday will receive plans for extending and equipping the Kennedy Expressway's rapid transit line to O'Hare Airport. Target date for start of the project is 1976 with a current price tag of $174.3 million — up from a 1972 estimate of only $79.2 million. The city hopes for 80 per cent financing from the federal government and at least 13 per cent from the state.

2 spectators die in drag race crash

A drag racing car traveling 120 miles per hour hurtled into the bleachers at St. Louis International Raceway Sunday, killing two spectators and injuring about 10 others. The driver, professional drag racer Bill Bagshaw, 30, Long Beach, Calif., was hospitalized with a broken collar bone, but sustained no other serious injuries.

Begin work today on health plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A child is stricken with leukemia, and his family goes into debt for years to come in a vain attempt to save his life.

Or a workingman's back is broken in an auto crash, and his wife and small children have no place to turn for resources to pay his hospital bills and his expensive rehabilitation therapy.

Congress can do little to prevent the illnesses or the accidents. But a growing number of members believe the financial catastrophes can — and should — be averted through some form of national health insurance to cover all U.S. citizens.

Thus, the House Ways and Means Committee scheduled a meeting today to begin writing legislation which could radically alter the pattern of financing medical care in the United States.

The committee failed to develop a consensus on national health insurance during extensive public hearings which ended last month, but there was nearly general agreement that any comprehensive package of health care benefits ought to protect families against catastrophic costs of major illnesses.

Whatever legislation the committee approves probably is doomed for this year by the press of time and the approaching impeachment proceedings.

Gunfire erupts after day of calm in Cyprus

by United Press International Gunfire broke out Sunday night on Cyprus after a day of calm. In the nearby Aegean Sea, the appearance of Turkish warships brought a Greek naval flotilla into the area and Greek armed forces were ordered on "a high state of alert."

In the Cypriot capital of Nicosia, light and sporadic exchanges of gunfire took place 30 minutes after dark across the so-called Green Line separating the Greek and Turkish communities in the capital. There were no immediate reports of casualties.

The island had been calm for nearly 24 hours.

A military source in Salonica, Greece, said under normal circumstances, the Turkish navy informs Greece of its intention to sail in the Aegean or to hold exercises near the Greek territorial waters.

THE ARMS, ammunition and bullet proof helmets were used in the attempted escape by Fred Gomez Carrasco and two other inmates from the Texas State Penitentiary. Carrasco and accomplice Rudolph Dominguez, killed two of their 12 hostages and then commited suicide in a shootout according to Justice of the Peace J. W. Beeler. The dead hostages were Elizabeth Besada and Julia Standley. Another convict who joined Carrasco during the siege, Ignacio Cuevas was injured and put in solitary confinement.

Alerted by the pilot's call to the control tower of Leonardo da Vinci Airport, an ambulance met the airliner and rushed the 35-year-old mother to San Camillo Hospital in time for the birth of a girl. The twins were placed in incubators and were reported to be in satisfactory condition.

• Paul Getty III, 17, the oil billionaire's grandson who was kidnapped and held for more than five months for a reported $2.9 million ransom, will marry German model Marlene Zacher, 24, next Monday at his mother's country house in Tuscany. The youth, dubbed "the golden hippie" by the Italian press, has set up a public relations business in Rome.

• Jackie Onassis may not let her son, John F. Kennedy Jr., 33, cooperate in the case against Robert Lopez, 20, an admitted drug addict charged with stealing young Kennedy's bicycle in New York's Central Park last May. The boy did not show up to testify at a pre-trial hearing, and it was re-scheduled for this Thursday — but John Jr., his mother, and his stepfather Aristotle Onassis, have reportedly left New York for Onassis' Greek island of Skorpios. "No one knows exactly whether they are going to prosecute or they're not," said a police source.

• The ashes of 29-year-old Camilla Hall, who was killed in a shoot-out between the Symbionese Liberation Army and Los Angeles police, were brought to St. Peter, Minn., Sunday for burial in a family cemetery plot. Her father, Rev. George Hall, is pastor of a Lutheran church in suburban Lincolnwood, Ill.

• William A. H. Williams, accused kidnaper of Atlanta Constitution editor Reg Murphy, was found guilty of extortion Sunday night by a federal jury which deliberated exactly four hours. Sentencing was set for Aug. 30. Williams, convicted on three counts, could receive a maximum 50 years in prison.

• Oregon State Penitentiary inmates have launched a $500 fund drive for the family of a slain couple abducted by an escaped convict, Carl Cletus Bowles. Warden Hoyt Cupp said it is the first time prison inmates have contributed money to compensate victims of a crime committed by one of their own. Ex-convict inmate Larry Slopak: "I don't feel we should all of us in here be adversely affected by the actions of one guy. There are prisoners in here who are emotional human beings. We have feelings like people on the street. We certainly sympathize with the remaining members of the family."

• A candidate for the Michigan Legislature replied to bribery charges with a statement that summed up the feelings of many state politicians this year. "I certainly am learning about politics the hard way," said Leslie Lance of Alpena, Mich., in pleading no contest to a charge he paid a rival candidate $3,000 to drop out of the race.

FILLING OUT FORMS for new identification cards came after the marriage Friday for 25 senior citizens from Rolling Meadows. Mrs. Henry Hofstede, right, and Evelyn Ansel, next, were among the first to apply for and receive the new cards which will be available to the public for $3 starting today.

'Oh you doll,' Kusper said

around and one of the ladies said "we'll be the first ones down there to get it."
"We had touted that to the county board (to get approval of the plan) saying look, here's a group that is ready to get them."
"WHEN WE KNEW we were going to have this preview, one of my aides who is a friend of Rolie Meyer told him about this to see if they'd still be interested. And I'm just delighted to see them here, so much so that I'm paying for all of their cards," Kusper said.

Finally at about 10:10 a.m. the seniors were told to line up to begin the application process. An aide quickly removed a sign from the booth saying "Identification cards — $1 — no checks accepted" and replaced it with one which read "Verification Identification Card Dept. — Stanley T. Kusper Jr., Cook County Clerk."

Applying was not without its quirks, as each person was asked to produce three other identification cards in order to get the new one. Then came the picture-taking for the card.
"He told me to say whiskey," one woman said. "That's nothing, he told me to say sex," another laughed.
When the cards were handed out moments later, most of the seniors seemed pleased with the results. Earlier in the morning during the bus ride, the group voiced support for the new ID concept.

"I THINK IT'S a good idea," Evelyn Ansel said. "It will help. They always ask for a driver's license and a lot of people don't have one."
"I think it's a good idea," Edmund Boutet said.
"I think it's very good," Martha Ebenroth said.
"It's a wonderful idea," Dorothy Hulise said.

But when the excitement began to ebb and the group prepared to return home, it was obvious their brief celebrity status meant more than any use the ID cards may be of in the future.
"This has been quite a day," Dorothy Carey said.
"We'll need three TVs at once to watch this on the news," Mrs. Ebenroth said.
"Isn't it nice," Mrs. Ansel said.
"Aren't you glad you came down," Mrs. Hofstede told the members. "At least we got to talk to some politicians."

Sen. Howard Baker will speak at Burditt fete

by BOB LAHEY
U. S. Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tennessee, will be the featured speaker at a fund-raising dinner for George Burditt, Republican candidate against Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill.
The dinner is scheduled for Sept. 13 at the Conrad Hilton Hotel.
Baker, who gained national prominence as a member of the Senate Watergate committee, has been mentioned by Vice President Gerald Ford as a potential presidential nominee in 1976. During his visit to Chicago last week, Ford named Baker, New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller, California Governor Ronald Reagan and Illinois' Sen. Charles H. Percy as potential GOP candidates.
The $125-a-plate dinner is expected to be a major part of Burditt's fund-raising effort. Acting as honorary chairmen for the dinner will be Percy, Attorney General William J. Scott, Comptroller George W. Lindberg and former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.
General chairman is Allen P. Stults of Wilmette, chairman of the board of the American National Bank and Trust Co. of Chicago.

attempts by private developers to have the site rezoned for high-density residence.

"If the grove is lost to developers because of this shortsighted veto, it will be lost for all time," said Glass.

Robert B. Lyons, a teacher at Hoffman Estates High School, has been named Schaumburg Township campaign coordinator for Alice Ilrig, Republican candidate for Cook County assessor.
Lyons is chairman of the high school's social department and student activities director.

He was elected to the board of the Schaumburg Township Library in 1966 and has served as its president since 1969.

7 applicants give qualifications for school board post

by JILL BETTNER

Pupil-teacher ratios, individualized instruction, career education and better communication between the school board, parents, students and teachers are among the concerns of seven Dist. 21 residents seeking appointment to the vacant seat on the Board of Education.

The applicants were interviewed for five minutes each last week at a special meeting of the school board. The appointment will be announced Thursday at the board's regular meeting.

The person named to the board will serve out the unexpired term of Mary Jo Reid of Buffalo Grove. The term ends next April. Mrs. Reid resigned earlier this summer to accept a $9,000 per year job as public relations and volunteer coordinator for the district.

ONE APPLICANT for Mrs. Reid's seat, Gerald McGlothlin, 1047 S. Carol Ave., Wheeling, is unqualified for the post because of his age. The Illinois School Code requires school board members to be at least 21 years old to serve. McGlothlin is 20.

Despite McGlothlin's age, he was interviewed last week along with the other school board candidates. Kenneth Rodick, board secretary, said Friday the board was aware of the age requirement before the interviews, but had not had an opportunity to double check the law with the district's attorneys. He added that board members decided to hear McGlothlin's views on the district before bringing the problem up.

McGlothlin who became the first student representative on the Harper College Board of Trustees last January, told the Dist. 21 school board his main concern is increasing communication between the board and parents, teachers and students.

He suggested the board consider asking junior high school students to attend one meeting every three months or so to provide student input on school issues.

McGlothlin is a former Dist. 21 student and believes his experience would be useful on the board. As a resident of the unincorporated area of Wheeling, McGlothlin also said he thought he could provide broad citizen representation.

A June graduate of Harper, McGlothlin is employed this summer as promotions manager for Just Games, Inc., Mount Prospect. He plans to enroll at Northwestern University this fall and follow a pre-law course of study.

IMPROVING communication, especially the board's awareness of community concerns, also was a priority mentioned by school board applicant Susan Tripp Rose, 174 Timber Hill Rd., Buffalo Grove.

Mrs. Rose, 33, recommended that school board members offer to speak at meetings of community organizations about educational matters in the district. She said this could be one way of getting feedback.

An active volunteer and PTA board member at Alcott School in Buffalo Grove, Mrs. Rose suggested that board members also try to spend time at various local schools talking with teachers, students and parents.

A former substitute teacher in Dist. 21 schools, Mrs. Rose received a bachelor's degree in biology and master's degree in school administration from Indiana University. She has two children attending local schools.

JEANNE PETERS, 2413 E. Dundee Rd., Arlington Heights, in a written statement to the school board, said, "We need to equip our children with adequate tools to deal with the unknown world of tomorrow so that future shock does not disorient them to the extent that it has many of ours and past generations."

Mrs. Peters said she believes schools should be more attuned to the needs of students and more emphasis should be placed on developing creative thinking and good decision-making skills. She added she also would like to see more individualized instruction which would allow children to learn at their own rate.

Mrs. Peters, 34, taught English at Robert Frost and Helen Keller Junior high schools in Schaumburg Dist. 54 for four years and is a former Dist. 21 substitute teacher.

She obtained a bachelor's degree in speech at Northern Illinois University and has completed 14 hours of graduate work in group dynamics, curriculum and innovative teaching methods at Northwestern University, the University of Illinois and the University of Chicago.

Mrs. Peters has two children in Dist. 21 schools.

A. M. MANSUKHANI, 24 St. Armand

Ln., Wheeling, said in his interview he believes his experience as an attorney and his background in civil engineering would make him a valuable school board member.

Mansukhani's primary concern is pupil-teacher ratios in the district. He thinks class sizes should be limited to between 25 and 30 students.

He added that he also is unsure that teaching methods being used in the district, primarily in sciences, allow students to effectively grasp material.

The father of two children who attend local school, Mansukhani has been a resident of the district for almost three years.

JANET GROSS, 331 Cottonwood Dr., Buffalo Grove, believes the current Dist. 21 curriculum is adequate, but said she would like to see more programs for slow learners and gifted children.

Mrs. Gross, 34, said she thinks Dist. 21 is doing a good job of educating local children and is interested in serving on the school board so "it will continue to be one of the very best."

A Girl Scout leader and member of the Alcott School PTA, Mrs. Gross completed one year of business school plus night school courses in the art of communicating and creative thinking.

She has four children in Dist. 21 schools and has lived in the district for the last 10 years.

AS A TEACHER in the Chicago public school system, Arnold Drobny, 3250 Volz Dr. West, Arlington Heights, said he is interested in using his background to become involved in local school concerns by serving on the Dist. 21 school board.

Drobny, 32, said he believes policies set by the school board should reflect, as much as possible, the wishes of Dist. 21 residents.

He, too, is interested in pupil-teacher ratios and thinks subjects included in the curriculum, such as history, should not be taught by rote.

A resident of the district for more than two years, Drobny received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Roosevelt University. He is a member of the Northgate Civic Assn.

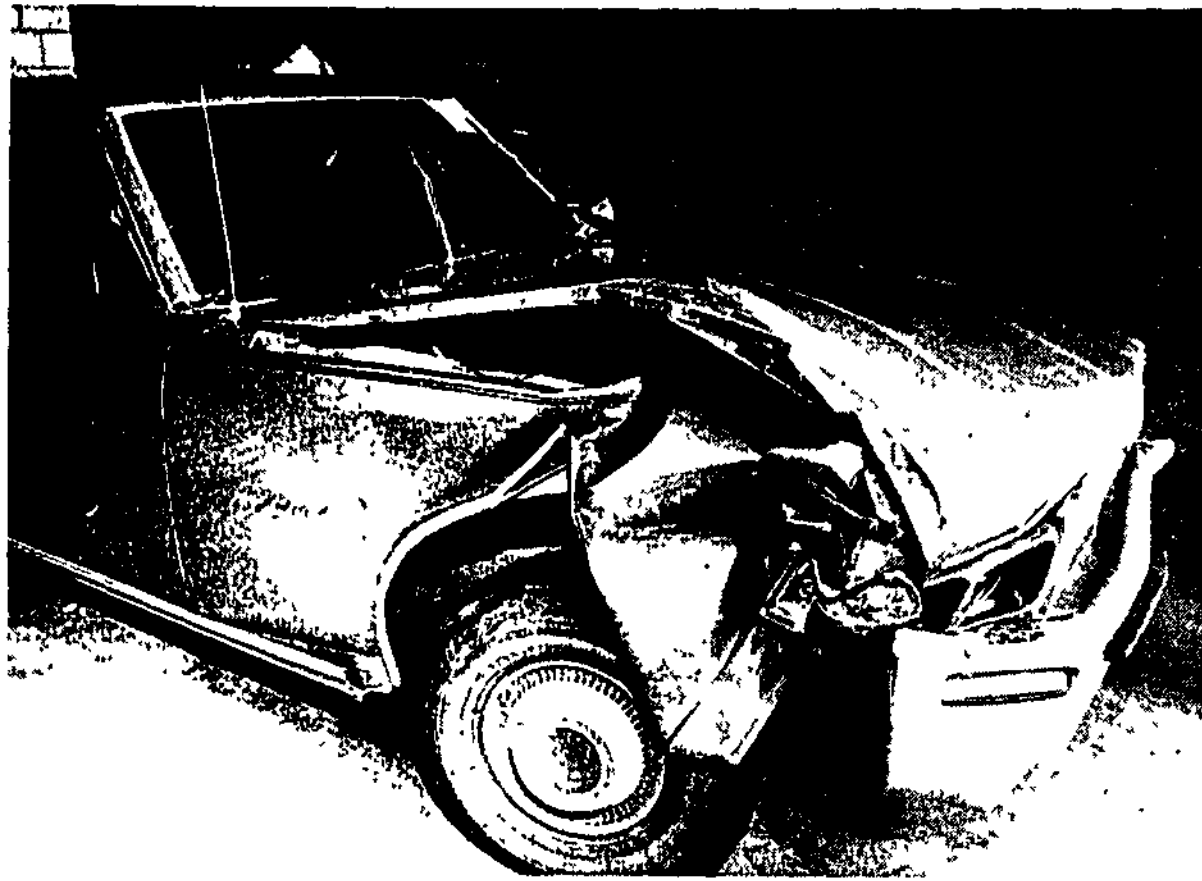

FINDING A "middle of the road" route between the open classroom and traditional methods of teaching is one of the main concerns of Mary Arlene Weil, 624 Ivy Ct., Wheeling.

Mrs. Weil, 32, also said she would like to see more programs in local schools aimed at developing student self-awareness and enough facilities provided so that each child can pursue his own interests.

Along the same lines, Mrs. Weil said she would encourage opportunities for students to work in the community while attending school to give them exposure to various careers.

Mrs. Weil received a bachelor's degree in secondary English education from Chicago State University. She has a 3-month-old child and has lived in the district for one year.

Following the interviews, Dist. 21 School Board Pres. Jack Lane said he hoped the six applicants not chosen for the seat on the board would continue to express an interest in school matters.

Session slated today

Dwyer officials to skip meeting with Martwick

by WANDALYN RICE

Officials from the Northwest Educational Cooperative who have been summoned to Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick's office today to discuss the charges about Dwyer School, Arlington Heights, will not show up.

Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC; John Wightman, director of all special education programs in the NEC area; John Whipple, former clinical director of Dwyer School; and Robert Taylor, coordinator of the Dwyer elementary school program, had been ordered by Martwick to come to his office today.

Martwick had said he wanted to discuss the charges which have been made about improper operation of the school with the four and indicated he would consider suspending their teaching and school administration certificates if their answers were unsatisfactory.

FRIDAY, Mrs. Kinney, and Edith Freund, president of the NEC governing board, were drafting a letter to Martwick explaining the four would not appear because Mrs. Kinney will be in the hospital and the governing board believes a report being drafted on the charges will answer Martwick's questions.

"Dr. Kinney will not be available to provide administrative leadership and we don't believe it would be a good idea to have them appear at this time," Mrs. Freund said, in explaining the letter.

Mrs. Freund and other members of the governing board are drafting a report to be submitted Wednesday to State School Supt. Michael Bakalis with detailed answers to the charges made by present and former members of the Dwyer School staff.

The charges had included allegations that children were abused and beaten with paddles, that Whipple and other members of the staff were unqualified for their jobs and that Whipple allowed staff members to engage in "unprofessional" activities in front of children.

THE GOVERNING board at 3 a.m. Thursday, after a seven-hour meeting with Whipple, his attorney and Leo Athas, general counsel for Bakalis, announced that Whipple was being transferred from Dwyer to a full-time position with the Center for Child and Family Studies, which provides counseling for students who remain at their regular schools.

In addition, the board said it would file the report with Bakalis' office.

Officials from Martwick's office said Friday the county superintendent would probably have a statement if the four he has summoned do not show up this morning. Earlier, County officials had indictated they did not believe the NEC action changed the need for the meeting today.

Martwick apparently has the authority under Illinois law to suspend the teaching or administration certificates of the four if he finds evidence of "immorality, incompetency, unprofessional conduct or neglect of any professional duty." If a person's certificate is suspended, he may appeal the action to the State Certification Board and receive a hearing which may overturn the action.

Are schools over-administered?

Survey finds 10.6 teachers for every 'administrator'

by JUDY JOBBITT

For every 10 teachers in Northwest Suburban schools, there is one administrator — or to put it another way, while each teacher may have more than 30 pupils to handle, each administrator has only 10 teachers.

But when compared to private industry, school districts don't look all that bad. There is one professional supervisor for every 10.6 teachers in the Northwest suburban public elementary schools. In private industry, there is one boss for every 6.4 workers.

Nonetheless, teachers raise a questioning brow when school boards discuss adding administrators to the staff.

"By and large, schools are over-administered, particularly in the central staff," said David Tomchek, professional negotiator for the Illinois Education Assn. assigned to the Northwest suburbs.

EDUCATION EXPERTS for local universities said no study has been made on the "ideal" number of administrators for teachers. They also said the number of teachers an administrator can supervise depends largely upon the capabilities of the supervisor.

While it is difficult to determine which positions are purely administrative, the purpose of The Herald survey was to distinguish between those who clearly are teachers and those professionals who do not teach on a daily basis.

A Herald survey of the Northwest school districts showed an average of 10.6 teachers for every certificated professional not working in the classroom. For the survey, these professionals included central office administrators, principals and assistant principals, curriculum consultants, psychologists, social workers, counselors, librarians and some nurses.

The figures used are from the 1973-74 school year because many districts currently are deciding staff additions. High school districts were not included in the survey because of their different type of organization.

NEITHER THE SIZE of the district nor the type of classroom set-up appears to determine the administrator/teacher ratio. One of the larger districts, Des Plaines Elementary School Dist. 62, has the largest proportionate number of supervisors for the number of teachers, while Lake County School Dist. 96, the smallest, hired the fewest administrators in comparison to its number of teachers.

Districts in the area hire anywhere between 81 supervisory employees in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 to four administrators in Dist. 96. Dist. 54, the largest district, also has 746 teachers for 15,528 students in 24 schools. Dist. 96 has 60 teachers for 1,149 students in two schools.

"You reach a point where you need specialists," said William Hiltzman, Dist. 96 superintendent. He said the size of the district and the money available determines the number of additional assistant superintendents and consultants it may hire.

In Prospect Heights Dist. 23 principals assume duties that many districts hire curriculum consultants and specialists to do.

"WE COULD NOT afford to put on additional coordinators," said Dist. 23 Supt. Edward Grodzky. "We would rather assume the additional staff needs than add staff and take those dollars away from services."

He said if Dist. 23 was larger than its 1,750 student size it would be impossible to work on the same basis. "Numbers make a big difference," he said.

"The larger you get, the more services are needed," said Dist. 54 Supt. Wayne Schalbie. A district reaches the point where it needs more people to oversee the district's needs, and as programs develop consultants are added, he said.

The district hired its first consultant about eight years ago. Currently the district has seven consultants with several more approved for next year.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 had one of the lowest ratios, with 12.8 teachers for every administrator.

"I don't think it (the ratio) surprises me since several years ago many of the people who would have been called administrators were eliminated," said

James Ervitt, Dist. 59 superintendent.

SEVERAL YEARS AGO, Dist. 59 was forced to cut back because of financial difficulties. However, Ervitt said, "I think the district went below what would be an intelligent level" because all curriculum supervisors were eliminated. He said this has resulted in fragmented programs.

When this type of cutback occurs, he said "expectations have to be lowered."

Tomchek disagreed, saying, "We're tied into a traditional way of doing things." He questioned the number of consultants many districts have and whether they really are needed.

He said the term consultant implies a short-term function where a professional comes in to look at a program and advise about its implementation. He said these professionals actually hold long-term, self-perpetuating roles. "People who are hired into those positions expect to hold the jobs for times to come," he said.

HE ALSO SAID as consultants are hired, the responsibilities of the principal diminish. Most of the consultants' jobs could be done by principals, he said.

Tomchek also said if districts are forced to cut back, consultants usually are the first to go.

Administrator-teacher ratio

The ratio of teachers to professionals in non-teaching positions is taken from 1973-74 school figures. Included as non-teaching professionals are central office administrators, principals and assistant principals, consultants, coordinators, specialists, psychologists, social workers, counselors, librarians and nurses. These professionals, under the heading "ad-

HERALD CLASSIFIED

Determining efficiency tough to do: consultant

Schools are often told to increase their efficiency by following business practices, but according to management consultants contacted by The Herald, businessmen aren't at all sure how many management or administrative people are used in private industry.

"It's a very tenuous kind of thing," said Robert Wells, director of management information services of the American Management Assn.

Wells said, "The AMA attempted a major project to find out what the practices were 10 or 11 years ago. We got cooperation from all sorts of major companies, but the project never reached fruition because there were so many exceptions to anything we found."

Wells said that an article written for a business journal in 1963 said an average of 15.5 per cent of employees were involved in production industries as "general management."

THE AVERAGES cited by Wells result in a ratio of 1 management person to every 6.4 employees. The ratio, however, is not really comparable to ratios comparing teachers and administrators in the schools because all school districts have secretaries, clerks and maintenance persons who are not included in teacher-administrator ratios.

"It's pretty hard to find anything that in any way relates to the function of schools," Wells said.

Professors at the University of Chicago and Loyola University schools of business also could provide little help in finding average figures of the number of management persons in business. An official at the University of Chicago said, "There's no one here who's studied that question quite that way. Our people here tend to be involved more in theoretical issues."

Personnel managers at several companies said that information from their companies also was hard to get. The problem, cited by several, was that it is difficult to determine who is a "manager" because of the problem of comparing jobs in different parts of companies and between companies.

A LESSON IN English is taught by teacher Jean McGough to workers in the Arlington Park race-track backstretch area as part of the Harper College "Winners Circle" summer workshop. Classes in English and Spanish as well as recreational classes in guitar and judo are offered.

Race track workers take advantage of school workshop

by NANCY NORTH

They follow the horses, not with money and betting sheets, but with grooming equipment and push brooms. Without them no race at Arlington Park could begin. They are the 800 migrant race track workers and their families who come each summer to the Arlington Park backstretch.

Moving seasonally from racetrack to racetrack, there is little opportunity for these migrant workers to develop outside interests. But, this summer about 40 racetrack workers at Arlington Park are learning judo, playing guitar and painting in evening classes on the backstretch.

THEY ARE ALSO learning English and Spanish and listening to jazz albums as part of the curriculum offered in the "Winners Circle Summer Workshop." The workshop is sponsored by High School Districts 211 and 214, Harper College and the Illinois Community College Board from June 4 through Aug. 9.

The program was initiated three years ago when a clergyman working on the backstretch contacted the high school districts and suggested a program for adults.

"When we started," says Judy Newton, coordinator of the workshop, "we were the first we know of to have an adult education program for migrant race-track workers."

This summer's workshop is the first to be funded entirely by a grant from the Illinois Community College Board. Students attend the workshop free of charge. In past years there was a small tuition fee.

ENROLLMENT IN this summer's workshop is double last summer's. This is the first summer the workshop has been extended beyond academic courses.

The people who enroll in Spanish and English and the general education course do it because they are subjects they've always wanted to learn," Mrs. Newton says.

"They enroll in the nonacademic courses because it fulfills a social need," she says. "I found, speaking with students, they have a great desire to learn and really want to come."

The classes are designed to be flexible, and students are encouraged to suggest changes. For example, the arts and crafts class was originally designed with an emphasis on crafts. Most of the students enrolled in the art class preferred to paint, Mrs. Newton says, so they've been painting.

Class instructors are mostly adult education teachers from High School Districts 211 and 214 and Harper College. Mrs. Newton said she tries to get teachers for the workshop "who will relate to our students."

THE SPANISH CLASS is the workshop's largest with about 12 students. Most of the students who take this course want to communicate better with their Spanish-speaking coworkers. One student in this class is a race track judge.

The workshop also arranged for the Arlington Heights Memorial Library bookmobile to come to the backstretch one a week. The bookmobile is stocked primarily with children's books, but also carries many adult books.

Earlier the Arlington library donated 200 adult books which have been used to set up an adult reading room at the backstretch.

Mrs. Newton says she plans to conduct student evaluation of the workshop later this summer. If the workshop is awarded a grant for next summer, she says, the evaluation will be used to further develop the workshop and recruit students.

"What's important," says Mrs. Newton, "is that the people who participate get the most out of it."

C.R.C.

Would you like a credit reserve of $300 to $3000 to cover checks beyond the balance in your checking account?

C.R.C.
The end of the overdraw

It happens . . . a genuine once-in-a-lifetime sale is announced . . . unexpected expenses or an emergency comes along . . . and the balance in your check book isn't sufficient to cover the cost. Where will you get the money?

You could apply for a regular loan — if you have the time. Or you could take the easiest, most convenient course of all — and simply write a check for it. With a Credit Reserve Checking account — CRC — you have instant "borrowing power" that lets you write checks for more money than you have in your account. You use your regular personal checks, so no one knows you are borrowing — a feature many users appreciate and you make your purchase just as though you had the money all the time.

A few quick facts about this modern new checking account concept:

☐ You can borrow as often as you like — up to the limit of your credit reserve. Each time you write a check for more money than you have in your checking account, funds are automatically transferred in multiples of $100 from your Credit Reserve to your checking account. When repayment is made, the line of credit is built back to its original amount and can be used again and again.

How much money can you borrow?

A credit reserve of from $300 to $3000 can be established dependent upon your income and ability to make repayments.

Is it costly?

It costs you nothing to open a Credit Reserve Checking Account. In fact, you may never have occasion to use the credit reserve of your CRC account — although it's a good feeling to know that it's there, — and should this be the case, this extra security will never cost you any more than a regular checking account. If and when you do write a check for more money than you have in your account, you pay only a small monthly interest charge.

☐ Repayments will be automatically deducted from your checking account each month in the amount determined by the loan agreement.

☐ Pre-payments can be made at any time without penalty charge.

☐ Notification of all funds deposited to your checking account is sent to you by the bank along with a statement of your Credit Reserve and regular checking account balance.

Cure to tourism deficit sought

by LEROY POPE

NEW YORK — After years of effort, the tourist industry in the United States has narrowed the country's international tourism deficit to $1 billion a year. Now inflation is threatening to widen it again.

"Inflation also might play havoc with the country's total $61 billion-a-year tourist business, which provides jobs for four million persons," says Robert Jackson, spokesman for the Commerce Department's U.S. Travel Service.

To help avert such a disaster, the Commerce Department's travel service and a private group called Discover America Travel Organizations Inc., will hold its fourth annual "Discover America Pow Wow and Travel Mart" at Orlando, Fla. Sept. 7-11. Some 1,100 people in all segments of the travel industry from all over the world will be there, 750 of them Americans.

ALTHOUGH IT will have all the trappings of a show and a good time gathering, this really will be a horse-trading occasion, to do actual business. It's the fourth annual such affair. At last year's meeting in Tucson, almost $30 million worth of packaged tour business actually was sold. "We hope a lot more will be sold at Orlando," John Lindeman, spokesman for Discover America, said.

"For many years, Americans spent a great deal more on travel abroad than foreigners spent visiting us and nobody cared about the deficit. Now with our other international balance of payments problems, the gap is important," Jackson said.

"It probably never can be entirely closed. The increasing American interest in traveling to the Communist countries alone could defeat that, but we should get foreigners to spend much more than the estimated $3.2 billion they paid out on touring the United States last year. Americans spent $6.2 billion on travel abroad last year.

The key to that is to offer better packaged tours to Europeans, Latin-Americans, Asians and other foreigners.

"To be blunt the tourist industry abroad is a lot more hep than we are in selling attractively packaged tours," Lindeman said. "We have the attractions but we don't package and market them nearly as well as the Europeans do."

BOTH JACKSON and Lindeman said the celebration of the nation's bicentennial in 1976 should provide a golden opportunity for a breakthrough in improving the packaging of American tours for foreigners. "The meeting in Orlando will be concerned with 1976 tourist trade since realistic plans have to be made 18 months in advance," said Jackson.

They agreed that, so far, the effort of communities in the United States, even those with the most important historical associations with the revolution against King George, to plan bicentennial events that would attract large numbers of foreign tourists, aren't highly impressive. A lot more must be done between now and 1976, they said.

The Orlando meeting also will be concerned with a lot of other things, with improving the long range outlook for tourism in many parts of the country. It will be a two-way selling effort. European and Asian tourist people will be in Orlando seeking to reverse the decline in American travel abroad caused by this year's inflation.

Central Telephone reports 15% increase in net income

Central Telephone & Utilities, Lincoln, Neb., reported a 15 per cent increase in net income for the 12 months and quarter ended June 30. The company's Central Telephone Co. of Illinois division is based in Des Plaines.

Primary earnings per average common share rose to $2.03 for the latest 12 months, compared with $1.79 in the corresponding 1973 period. Net income, before extraordinary items, climbed 15.1 per cent to $39,114,000.

Second quarter primary earnings were 55 cents per average common share versus 50 cents for the year-ago period, despite a 5.6 per cent increase in outstanding shares. Net income advanced 15.5 per cent to $11,001,000.

The company said it has $2.4 million in telephone rate increases pending in two states, and is seeking an additional $986,000 in electric rates to recover the increased costs of purchased power. Higher gas rates, which went into effect May 1, are expected to add $700,000 to annual revenues.

The company estimated 1974 construction spending at $132.8 million and expects to finance 60 per cent of the program from internal sources of funds. Of this amount, approximately $18 million was budgeted for use in Illinois, with more than $15 million appropriated for use in the Des Plaines-Park Ridge and surrounding service areas.

COOPERATIVE BLOOD REPLACEMENT PLAN 477-7500

Jump in job opportunities foreseen

Business optimism accounts for a 19 per cent boost in available job opportunities for 1974 college graduates, says researcher Frank S. Endicott, a retired placement director and professor emeritus at Northwestern University.

His findings are based on a late May survey of 96 firms across the country. These firms had participated in his earlier 28th annual Endicott Report, a copy-righted Northwestern University survey of 196 medium-to-large companies which provide Endicott with their employment projections for university graduates.

Endicott said he re-polled the firms about their plans because of the uncertainty created in the job market by the energy crisis last winter and the economic climate this spring.

THE 1974 Endicott Report, issued last December, predicted a 13 per cent increase in job demand for bachelor-degree holders, contrasted with the 19 per cent figure this May.

The May report also indicated most firms are more positive about the future business climate than most economists. Endicott said the most common reason firms gave for employing more graduates in 1974 was belief in the growth and expansion of their business.

"In spite of the lingering effects of the energy crisis, galloping inflation and gloomy economic forecasts, only 8 per cent of the firms responding expect the last half of 1974 to be worse than the first six months," Endicott said.

The survey indicated that 43 per cent of the firms said the economy would be better and 49 per cent expected conditions to be about the same.

Endicott noted that the firms who predicted an improved economic picture for their companies cited plans for expansion, projected increases in sales and new business and products as the basis for their positive outlook.

ENDICOTT ALSO asked the 96 firms about their business prospects for 1975. About 64 per cent said they thought next year would be better than this year. Only three firms said they thought 1975 would be worse.

Many of Endicott's earlier employment findings were reaffirmed in May. He reported that the 96 firms indicated they will hire more engineering and accounting graduates than last year. About 53 per cent of them will employ more women than last year, and 58 per cent will employ more black graduates.

Endicott's findings also were confirmed by Victor R. Lindquist, director of NU's placement center, who reported that employers' recruiting activities have increased by at least 50 per cent from last fall. Lindquist noted employers' especially high interest in women and minorities.

Taxpayers big losers in townships' lawsuit

For five years now, opponents and backers of township government have been filling benches on opposite sides of a courtroom to resolve the lengthy and wasteful battle over township collectors.

Most recently, 15 lawyers stood before Judge Donald J. O'Brien in a hearing on lifting a 1969 injunction which has effectively taken tax collection away from the township collectors and given it to the county treasurer.

Now it appears the case will be appealed for a fifth time to the Illinois Supreme Court by the collectors because of O'Brien's refusal to lift the injunction.

The township collectors, 30 elected officials who now receive no salaries and have no duties because of the court order, have been perpetual losers in the case which started as a class action suit to eliminate the fees collectors raked off the top of the tax levies.

But local taxpayers are even bigger losers in the suit, not only because they must endure the political squabbling between county and township, but also because they must pay for it.

It is the taxpayer who will have doled out more than $35,000 in legal fees to finance the collector's fight to be reinstated.

And it is also the taxpayer who paid the $750,000 in collection fees which Judge O'Brien has awarded to attorneys William J. Harte and Kevin M. Forde who originally brought the class action suit. However, a suit filed by Cook County may decrease or eliminate the money Harte and Forde will receive.

There are some who would say that enough is enough and the whole case should be dropped right now. But there is a legitimate question to resolve, the question of whether the court should use its power to eliminate the job of an elected official.

What we can plead for, particularly on the part of township governments, is an effort to pull together in the fight rather than paying legal fees to seven different lawyers.

There is a common thread in the arguments of all the attorneys representing the townships and the collectors. While it may be right for the collectors to rely on tax funds to fight the court battle to keep their elected jobs, the least they can do is try to keep the costs to a minimum.

Tom Wellman's column

U.S. crooks deserve prison luxury

Chief Editorial Writer

It's about time we began to treat decently the men and women who are flooding into our federal prisons.

In the past 100 years we've given them slightly larger prison cells and a host of social scientists to attend to their needs, but the process is still pretty much as primitive as it was in 1874.

Today, however, our prisons are filling up with a better class of lawbreakers—and it's about time we tidied up our jail-houses to accommodate this new breed.

U.S. Rep. Morgan Murphy, D-Chicago, had the right idea last week when he expressed outrage in the Chicago press at the dissimilar manner in which two former Illinois political giants — Otto Kerner and Theodore Isaacs — were herded off to prison. Kerner was welcomed with a handshake, but Isaacs was ushered away in handcuffs, the news photos revealed.

Murphy, as quoted in Kup's gossip column, wants a law to give the chief marshal discretion on whether to slap on the handcuffs. The logic seems almost that those metal cuffs might mark the silk sleeves worn by such self-made millionaires as Kerner.

We must learn to accommodate such men as Kerner and Isaacs, for they represent a far more genteel brand of felon than the machine-gun-totting hoods of the Thirties and the violent draft-card-burners of the Sixties.

Today it's almost necessary to be either a lawyer or a public official to enter a federal prison, for today's criminals are honored, not on the cover of Police Gazette, but on the cover of Fortune.

There are some of the unfortunate felons who were not able to avoid prison in the manner of Agnew and Kleindienst. Despite the triumph of plea bargaining, an unfortunate few must languish in federal prison, and the system should offer an accommodation.

No longer should felons, for example, be forced to make their own travel arrangements in order to reach prison. If Kerner can arrive in Lexington, Ky., in his own Mercedes, then federal officials should pick up all such public offenders in limousines (or in Porsches, at worst).

For the Ehrlichs, the Deans and the Colsons, the minimum security prisons to which these felons are frequently sentenced must be updated to meet the special needs of these special men.

At Lexington, prisoners are permitted to bring in their personal radios and TVs. This luxury should be expanded to include stock tickers. After all, if you cleaned up while in office, you'd want to follow carefully your investments, right?

If such men as Jeb Magruder (now residing in a federal prison) are to support their families while serving time, then they must write about their tragic errors of judgment undertaken while violating the public trust. Such memoirs usually sell well, and it's a good reason for each federal prison to keep a ghost writer on call.

Some of those pointy-headed corrections officials will argue that such privileges will only sharpen the contrast between impoverished state prisons and county jails and the country-club style of low-security prisons now dotting the land.

They'll whimper that criminology in America is too often based on class, and that public officials who violate the public trust which they are sworn to protect have broken the law even more than some poor black guy who stole a car or carved up a relative.

Finally, they will mutter that the new brand of affluent prisoner too often buys off a long sentence by purchasing top-drawer legal talent — while other prisoners languish in county and state prisons because they lack the cash and have the misfortune of not breaking a federal law.

All of these arguments are nonsense. All that the Kerner, the Colsons and the Stavroses among us did was to violate the public trust, line their pockets, rip off the political process and make a sham of public service in America. But you've got to admit they're a better class of criminal than your average black car thief, aren't they?

Martwick's stand ripped

I was amused the other evening to watch Richard Martwick, our Cook County Superintendent of Schools, waving a paddle in front of the TV cameras and denouncing the Dwyer School for emotionally disturbed children in Arlington Heights for beating its students. Clearly, here was a politician milking the moment for everything it was worth. "We who have children," he said, "should be appalled at such practices. Paddles should be used on horses, not children," he added, giving the board another swipe for emphasis.

Betsy Brooker

Anyone not familiar with the charges levied against John Whipple, director of the Dwyer program, or the program itself, would naturally conclude from Martwick's performance that we are certainly fortunate, indeed, to have such a righteous man protecting our children from the abuses of some of our public educators.

But having made numerous visits to Dwyer School and having had several conversations with Whipple as a former reporter for Paddock Publications, I could only see Martwick as a charlatan making political mileage out of the destruction of what I feel is a valuable and worthwhile program. Sensationalism and self-promotion seemed to be Martwick's motive, rather than the welfare of the children who are unfortunate enough to need the special attention available at Dwyer.

It is interesting to note Wanda Lynn Rice's article where she reports that Martwick left a NEC meeting after Whipple's opponents had presented their case, but before Whipple's supporters had had an opportunity to defend the Dwyer program and its director.

It is impossible for me to know whether the specific charges against Whipple are true. However, I also don't believe Martwick has that answer either, and furthermore he is making a very poor effort at getting the facts from both sides. I think it is very irresponsible for him to wield the power of his office in dramatizing a rumor of misconduct before guilt has been proven. But, if after thorough investigation, Whipple or anyone else at Dwyer is found guilty, then the public has a right to be informed.

I can't help but wonder if the misconduct of any one individual is worth depriving emotionally disturbed children of an education in a public school system. I think it would be difficult to deny that Martwick's type of public display is undermining the effectiveness of the Dwyer program and hurting the children in the process.

I found the Dwyer staff as a group to be admirable in their efforts to reach out to children who can not cope nor benefit from a regular school program. It is really a shame that their efforts and the children's education are being impaired by Martwick's quick-trigger bid for public attention.

'She's taking it hardest'

Pat Nixon upset by impeachment

by HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House:

Pat Nixon is trying to keep her spirits up, according to her aides. But the First Lady is "upset" with the burgeoning drive to impeach the President.

The First Lady volunteered her services to the correspondence section which handles the family mail, and she has been personally reading and replying to many of the letters of support that have been pouring in.

But mainly she is in seclusion, and has no social engagements on her August schedule. She was seen by reporters only three times during her 16-day stay in California — when she got on and off Air Force One, and when she attended a party in honor of President Nixon at the home of Budget Director and Mrs. Roy Ash in the fashionable Bel Air section of Los Angeles.

"She's taking it the hardest," said one of the aides.

Others say the President has never felt closer to his family and that the impeachment crisis has brought on a new "togetherness."

But with her Irish background, Mrs. Nixon is a fighter and not one to encourage her husband to give up the battle. Last spring when there were many calls for Nixon's resignation, she passed the word to reporters: "We've decided he will not resign."

Some loyal supporters have called the White House in tears. But mostly the mail has been a comfort.

PAT NIXON

The following excerpts were taken from messages sent to encourage the Nixons:

"My dear President," an elderly woman wrote. "At last I have gotten the courage to write you. Please stay and fight. You know and I know you are innocent."

"I am sure when you meet St. Peter that he will say 'pick up your harp and enter — you have had your hell on earth.'"

A telegram said: "We never forget our daily prayers for you. You are the greatest President we have ever had."

One woman wrote: "I know it is a small comfort to you and yours, but there are many of us who want you to know that you have our sympathy and prayers during these troublesome times."

A housewife told Mrs. Nixon: "Please, please don't let the President give up. I know things don't look good, but we believe in our dear President and need him."

An American woman living in Casablanca wrote: "Because of his foreign policies all Americans abroad can now walk taller. He has brought a dignity and respect to our country it has not appreciated under any other President for too many years."

"My dear Pat Nixon," said one letter writer. "We are so sorry that all of these stupid people won't let our dear Dick alone. We are sorry for you and the girls because we become so upset, we can imagine how it must affect you when we know their accusations are so unfair."

She cheers emergency aid

To the Arlington Heights Police Department:

I was in an automobile accident on July 2, and would like to personally and openly commend the police and emergency squad for their fast and efficient arrival on the scene and handling of every detail.

I believe it was less than three minutes after the collision that they were there — it is this promptness that saves lives. They were most courteous and I feel that today, when so much is said of the "bad" and so little said of the "good" that I did not want an opportunity to pass to praise the Arlington Heights police and emergency squad.

Public bodies may pay more for gas

by ANNE SLAVICEK

A federal regulation aimed at making sure there is enough gasoline and fuel oil for schools and other governments may hike the cost local governments will have to pay.

The regulation, which requires public bodies to purchase gasoline, diesel fuel and fuel oil from the same supplier they used in 1972, results in boards having to contract with suppliers whose bids may not be the lowest received in competitive bidding.

Two school districts, High School Dist. 214 and Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, have already encountered the problem and on the advice of attorneys have awarded contracts to the 1972 suppliers even though their bids were higher than those of some of the other suppliers who bid.

DIST. 15 WILL PAY $4,650 more than it would have to the low bidder.

In actuality, the problem may not work out to be as extreme as it seems.

The contracts issued by both districts have escalator clauses to allow price increases at the time of delivery if the suppliers costs have increased. Therefore, it is possible that even if the districts had been able to accept the low bids, the costs would escalate to negate any savings.

The Federal Energy Office (FEO) regulation which requires public bodies to stick to their 1972 supplier in all but a very few instances, is aimed at "stability," according to a spokesman who is in charge of Illinois for the FEO.

The regulation sets allocation amount at 1972 consumption levels but allows for increases if the government body can show expansion which would justify additional fuel, for example a school district with more classrooms or school buildings headed by fuel oil.

ONE REASON THE problem is not more expensive for local school districts is that most of the newer school buildings have natural gas heat while generally only older buildings are heated with fuel oil.

While admitting that the regulation could mean governments will pay more for their fuel, the FEO spokesman, Ray Swiderski, noted that at least the 1972 supplier had been low bidder in competitive bidding that year and "will probably still give . . . a relatively good deal."

The regulations are aimed at making sure that there is fuel available to meet the government agencies' needs and stiff fines are imposed against suppliers who use their fuel allocations for public bodies for someone else, he said.

MAPLE TREES ARE gracing the parkway on the main driveway at Harper College in Palatine. The trees, along with bushes, evergreens and two flowering plum trees, were recently donated to the college by a utility company which had bought out a nursery in Roselle. College officials say they are nursing the transplants, some of which still have not completely taken hold, but hope most of the 311 donated plants will live.

HE HAS A WAY with a brush. Brian Stoller, 6, globs glue on his pop can in preparation for the second important step in print-making process, the string. Children in Countryside Center classes are encouraged to experiment using the basic principles of art taught by Jill O'Connell.

Kids in summer

Messing around with art

by KAREN THOMPSON

They're experimenters now, but who knows, with practice one of them may become tomorrow's Picasso.

Countryside Art Gallery in Arlington Heights offers youngsters a chance to develop their artistic talents. The gallery, a cooperative center featuring monthly exhibits and classes for both adults and children, is just one of the groups concerned about teaching children the visual symbols they need to express their ideas of the world around them.

The 6 to 10-year-olds arrive at the gallery in sparkling white T-shirts, Cubs baseball caps and new gym shoes. Up three flights of stairs they trudge to the attic, a room with a peaked roof and tiny windows that look out over downtown Arlington Heights. A newly-found fan blows away stored up heat. The sink in the corner is stained with remnants of past projects. The bees that plagued the young artists earlier in the summer are long gone. Today's project is printmaking.

USING TIN CANS of various sizes and string, each child designs a pattern and glues it on. Paint is applied and the entire entanglement rolled over a sheet of paper to form the oddest of designs — each one intriguingly different.

Thought and feeling accompany every gesture of the children's work. A tongue peeks out of a little boy's mouth and wags with each loop of the string. A little girl bites her lip. Eyes grow wider. There's meaning even in the slightest line.

According to instructor Jill O'Connell, the class is designed to expose the children to all the different principles of art. Covered in the 6-week course, besides print-making, are drawing, painting, clay sculpture, color mixing, sandcasting and weaving — a little bit of everything.

"We don't stress the finished product, but rather, working toward it and what is learned by doing," Mrs. O'Connell, a former elementary school teacher in Mount Prospect, explains.

THERE IS A wide variation in the art work due to personality, age, sex and many other factors. As each child works, he distinguishes himself through the different ways he performs a common art form.

They're young but each of the children has likes and dislikes, even in art.

"They each have their own bailiwick, comments Mrs. O'Connell. "Last week we had a weaving lesson and one little fellow just likes to draw pictures. It's hard to encourage them to experiment, but that's what is important in this kind of introductory class."

Watching each child create gives a glimpse of his view of the world. They fantasize and possess dynamic spontaneity. They take enthusiastic pleasure in making and doing.

According to Mrs. O'Connell, the children definitely develop artistic talent at an early age. "It's inborn in some of the children," she says. "They don't need too much direction. The creative ones just go off on their own tangents."

WHILE THE FIRST masterpieces are drying, the 10 youngsters try out new printing forms, using the sides of half lemons, sponges, fork tongs and whatever happened to be there to jar their imaginations. They're learning how shapes become strange patterns when combined on paper.

The two-hour session flies by and at the end, the clean white T-shirts are speckled with blue paint and the visor of the Cubs cap is smudged. But, did Picasso ever worry about making a mess?

NIBBLING ON HER bottom lip in deep concentration, Lisa Klein, 6, creates her one-of-a-kind print masterpiece to take home to mom.

Counting one's giblets

Anyone with a child under 12 has heard of the Six-Million Dollar Man — the humanoid hero of the TV show of the same name. Well, our family of children under 12 is convinced that for dinner last night, we ate the Six-Million Dollar Chicken.

This concept came about when I was preparing dinner. One of our boys was setting the table and stopped to watch with interest while I unwrapped a chicken.

I opened the package of giblets, and he pointed to a heart on top.

"What's that?" he asked.

"The heart," I replied. I continued unwrapping and found no liver or gizzard but five more hearts instead. My son continued to watch.

"Those look like hearts, too," he observed.

"They are."

Then he asked in a matter-of-fact tone,

"Do all chickens have six hearts?"

"Apparently this one did," I said, watching for his reaction.

"HMMM," HE RESPONDED, mildly impressed with such a phenomenon. Then, without further question, he finished setting the table.

At first I was a little disappointed with my son's biological logic. But then I began to look at it from a different angle. With TV characters composed of flesh and blood, transistors and printed circuits, and recent scientific claims of test-tube babies, what's so great about a chicken with six hearts?

A short while later, I realized that I probably had it all backwards, and it was actually the chicken that came first.

This jumbling of giblets has been going on for a long time — at least as long as I have been cooking. What you get with the chicken has always been sort of a chance thing. Considering this, I suddenly could picture a 10-year-old child looking at what appeared to be a six-hearted chicken as mine did. Then sometime in the future this child, now grown and in the field of medical research, would subconsciously retain the chicken heart memory and conclude that such successful mutations might also work in humans.

I AM FULLY convinced that such was the origin of all this organic transplanting mania. Furthermore, I suspect that as with packaging giblets, no one in the operating room really worries whether there's anything left over. It just goes into the next package.

Now I haven't been faithful enough to the Six-Million Dollar Man to know if he has all his giblets. However, even though he isn't real, just his fictional existence on TV assures me that there are researchers lurking out there who are interested in such experimentation.

And if I wanted to test my chicken theory, I suppose I could volunteer myself for the advancement of science.

But I think I'll stick around with the chicken-hearted.

Bangs do something for your eyes

What's your best feature? Glenn Roberts of Elizabeth Arden says the eye is every woman's top facial feature. But the new hairstyles, with sweeping bangs and feathery fringes, are keeping the eye overshadowed. Special make-up techniques are necessary.

Bangs can do something for eyes. Calu-dette Colbert and Veronica Lake were famous for their one-eye-covered, one-eye-open looks. While bangs actually focus more attention on eyes, the fact remains that they present a challenge to make eyes stand out from behind the fringe.

Glenn Roberts gives some suggestions if you're looking out from under. Bangs are a signature of the '70s... a new way to look young and fresh. They're not only stylish but immensely versatile once you learn to coordinate the look with your make-up.

Here are a few of Robert's make-up ideas:

- Eyes should make a dramatic statement — one that is definitely different from your hair color. For instance, contrast blonde bangs on the forehead with a dark smoky eye shadow. Darker bangs cast a shadow on the face and require a lighter frosted shadow. No matter what shade you choose, the important point to remember is that eye make-up should be more, not less, than usual.

- Don't forget the eyebrows. Just because bangs may cover them, they shouldn't be neglected. Color brows slightly lighter than hair color. Shape them carefully and pluck neatly.

- Keep bangs under control. Bangs should be trimmed frequently, conditioned just like the rest of the hair and kept in good shape. Bangs should have a purpose, either swept back, curled or waving softly, never just hanging limply.

Fashion

by Karen

- Don't forget eyelashes. For day lots of mascara brushed on top and bottom lashes. For an eye that needs more emphasis, a woman should supplement her own by adding a few individual, false eyelashes.

- Color cheeks liberally. The whole feeling of bangs is a nostalgic one. To add balance to the face, apply rouge on cheekbones and temples. A face alive with healthy color is an important plus to carrying off this look.

- Lips should be glossy. The highly polished look is, again, the idea of balance — eyes, cheeks and lips all wearing a pretty amount of make-up. Lips should be of medium tone and very glossy. Try outlining the mouth with a darker color for a more dramatic effect. Then fill in with a soft fresh lipstick.

Bangs are back and if you decide they're for you, be sure to keep in mind the points mentioned after the snipping occurs. Whether you like the subtle sweep, carotid curls or well behaved waves, you will notice that beyond the fringe, with the proper make-up, eyes seem bigger, mouths more important and cheeks brighter than ever.

THE SMOOTH BOB and well manicured bangs that wave softly warrant the gentlest tones of pale, bright clear eye shadows. Contrast is the key.

Women still prefer to be blonde. So say leading beauty experts. At least 40 per cent of American women have regular hair colorings and at least 70 per cent have tried to be blonde once.

If you need a simple and quick face refresher, try this. Beat the white of an egg until it peaks. Add one teaspoonful of honey and mix well. Gently apply to your face and neck, carefully avoiding eyes. Leave on until you feel the drawing action (about five minutes). Wash off with cool water and you are ready to go.

There's help on the way for publicity chairmen

"I've just been appointed publicity chairman and I don't know the first thing about it!"

The frantic calls have been pouring in — but there's help on the way.

The annual publicity workshops sponsored by the women's department of the Horakids will be held Thursday, Sept. 5. There'll be three sessions: morning, afternoon and evening, and publicity chairmen and organization presidents are invited to whichever session best fits their schedules.

All sessions will be held in a place familiar to all — Woodfield Shopping Center, Schaumburg. Exact spot will be the Woodfield Community Room, located off the upstairs hall between Penny's and Bramson's.

The morning session will be held from 9:15 to 11. The afternoon session is from 1:15 to 3, and the evening session from 7:15 to 9.

Sessions will be informal with coffee and donuts whenever you feel thirsty or hungry. And so there will be chairs and enough coffee for all, reservations are requested. The number to call is 394-2300, Extension 331.

P.S. We aren't mailing notices this year but ask that all clubwomen whose organization news is published in the women's pages remind their president and publicity chairman to attend.

Changing attitudes:

How are they affecting today's Kids?

We have women's lib, men's lib, but what about children's lib?

A Michigan State University sociologist asks what the effect of today's changing attitudes is doing to the children.

Dr. Ruth Hill Uscem said that not only psychologists and child development experts, who have long studied the physical, mental and emotional development of children, but also economists, sociologists, historians and literary people need to examine what's happening to the young.

"For one thing," she said, "the Zero Population Growth policy means that for children there will be fewer siblings and fewer peers."

Thirteen years ago, Dr. Uscem was making predictions and commenting that "his" and "her" labels would fade from the job world, that the role of homemaking should have such dignity that men and women could perform it within multiple roles or in full-time roles, and that both men and women stood to lose certain vested interests and special privileges which normally accrued to them on the basis of sex.

"THE COMPLEXITY of the world of today and tomorrow," she then told a convention of the National Association of Women Deans and Counselors at East Lansing, "is mirrored in the fact that when the citizen moves in on one current problem, its solution ricochets off to create a new problem for other groups or other sections of our society."

Recently Dr. Uscem was asked to review what's been going on with society since her 1961 remarks. The professor of sociology and of the Institute for International Studies in Education at MSU said parents of teen-agers have listened for many years to talk of wanting to find "who I am" and "what I want to do with my life."

Now, those parents and many other women and men have begun to ask the same kind of questions about themselves.

"Some of the heat has gone out of women's lib," she said, "but there should be no delusions that the end is near and that presently everything will revert back to how things were. They won't."

"THERE ARE NEW life styles now; there probably will be more ahead."

Dr. Uscem anticipated more frequent marriages, more marriages involving not only older men and younger women, but abandonment of children by mothers, more recognition by divorce courts that some fathers are well suited to assume child custody, and more single parents of both sexes.

"Ahead," she said, "is a painful, upsetting time for everybody and, as a result, many people are very self-oriented."

"Much has been written on the people working through this turmoil and its effect on the present society, but few have observed and thought about its impact on the children who carry on the thread of life."

"We must, in consequence, concern ourselves with what this new adult world is doing to and for children... we have a whole new category of young people who have little respect for the social norms honored before this behavioral revolution."

"THE AMERICAN scene," she said, "is marked by anti-norms, a surge toward individual fulfillment and by de-emphasis on work ethics."

How the turmoil affects today's growing children, she said, will depend in part on the children's ages and the depths of their roots into the social culture, for a bent twig isn't inevitably an inclined tree.

"Let us see clearly what it was we are doing to children. Let us concern ourselves also with their wants and needs."

PIONEER WOMEN

Allyah Chapter of Pioneer Women meets Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Reva Zimmerman, 1030 Nightingale, Palatine. Members and guests wishing to attend should call 359-4830.

Illinois' scenic and historic tourist attractions are the subject of a multi-screen slide presentation to be narrated by Jerry Brown of Illinois Bell Telephone. The program, entitled "Right Here! In Illinois," takes the group from Chicago's skyscrapers to the rugged hills of the Shawnee National Forest in the southern part of the state.

Brown will point out some of the off-the-beaten-track vacation attractions as well as provide useful tips on camping grounds, fishing spots and other recreation places.

Local BPW members attend convention

Mount Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club was well represented at the recent national BPW convention, held July 21-23 at the Hilton Hotel in Chicago. Delegate was Norma Divlo, president, with Ann Rosengren, president-elect, as alternate.

Other local members attending were Ruth Avalon, Betty Bolanes, Mary Conklin, Naomi Dockery, Dolores Haugh, Marlan Henkin, Dorothy Karger, Helen Macior, Helen Shaughnessy and Charlotte Shaugnessy.

The Mount Prospect club's contingent spent the week at the convention acting as pages during the business sessions and hosting out-of-state delegates on a night club tour to Mr. Kelly's and a dinner-theater evening at Drury Lane.

Brookwood gives student scholarships

To encourage more young people to enter the nursing profession, Brookwood Convalescent Center, Des Plaines, has provided two $500 scholarships for students entering or continuing education in the field of registered nursing.

Nancy Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard A. Allen, 107 N. Donald Ave., Arlington Heights, has been named one of the winners.

A graduate of Prospect High School, she will attend Valparaiso University, working toward her B.S. and B.N. degrees in a four-year program. She has worked at Northwest Community Hospital both as a volunteer and as an employee.

THE OTHER WINNER is Barbara Biel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester F. Biel of Niles. She is a graduate of Maine Township High School East and will attend Illinois Wesleyan University.

The scholarship stipends will be formally presented to these girls on Monday, Aug. 12, at 10 a.m. at the office of Mayor Herbert Behrel in the Des Plaines City Hall.

The scholarship committee was headed by James Lawler of Holy Family Hospital. Institutions participating in selection of the winners, in addition to Holy Family, were Lutheran General Hospital, Resurrection Hospital, Oakton Community College and Harper College.

Lawler, who will chair the scholarship committee again next year, said the dual scholarships will become an annual project. Competition this year was from areas served by High School Districts 207 and 214 but in the future will be open to candidates from a wider area.

Camping honeymoon out west

Newlyweds Kathleen and James English left for a two-week camping trip through the western states following their June 29 wedding. After the honeymoon the couple settled in a condominium in Palatine.

Kathleen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy A. Grimes, 4400 Hoover St., Rolling Meadows. Her husband's parents are the Harold Englishes of 655 W. Lake Cook Rd., Palatine.

The couple exchanged vows in an 11 a.m. ceremony in St. Theresa Catholic Church, Palatine, and then greeted 90 guests at a reception at the Lancer Steak House, Schaumburg.

KATHLEEN chose Karen Wall, Palatine, as her maid of honor and Chris English, Chicago, was his brother's best man. The bride's sisters, Gail Lynn and Betty Jane, were her bridesmaids, and groomsmen were Steve Hayes, Palatine, cousin of the groom, and Bob Crane, Mundelein.

Kelly English, 5, a niece of the groom living in Palatine, served as flower girl and Thomas Miller, 4, as ring bearer. The boy is a nephew of the bride and lives in Buffalo Grove.

Both the bride and groom graduated from Fremd High School, she in '73 and he in '70. Kathleen works for Motorola, Inc., in Schaumburg. James is an insulator but also is studying for a realtor's license.

Double duty halter

Now get twice the fashion with a reversible halter. One side is a solid color, the other side a lively print. A real plus when traveling.

Lois Stewart goes east for marriage

Mrs. Daniel Lyman

A Palatine girl, Lois Elaine Stewart is making her home in Fayetteville, N.C., as the bride of Sgt. Daniel Stephen Lyman, who is a member of the Special Forces Medical Branch at nearby Ft. Bragg.

Lois has been working at Northwest Community Hospital since graduating from Fremd High School. Her parents, the Paul T. Stewarts, now live in Charleston, W. Va.

It was in Charleston that Lois and Daniel were married July 20 in the Church of Christ at 2:30 in the afternoon. After the candlelight, double ring ceremony there was a reception in the Stewart home. Seventy-five guests attended.

THE BRIDE's two sisters wore her attendants. Donna Stewart of Palatine was maid of honor and Janet, of Charleston, was the bridesmaid. The bride's brother, Roger of Charleston, and Thaine Lyman Jr., Wheeling, brother of the groom, were ushers, while another brother, Mark Lyman of Vernon Hills, Ill., was best man.

Daniel and his brothers are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. H. Thaine Lyman of Wilmette. Before going into service he attended Loyola Academy and then Loyola University.

THE COLOR scheme chosen by Lois for the nuptials was in mint green and yellow. She complemented her own gown of white peau de sole and embroidered eyelet with a bouquet of yellow Sweetheart roses, daisies and baby's breath. Her short veil was held by a simple cap-type headpiece.

Her attendants appeared in the mint green, their A-line gowns with matching bolero jackets sprinkled with white and yellow embroidered daisies. The girls wore hairpieces of daisies and baby's breath and carried the same variety of flowers in their bouquets.

Wanted: single suburban Jewish adults, 24 to 40

A new group aimed at single, suburban, Jewish adults who are 24 to 40 years old is seeking members in the northwest area. Those interested in something different in social and cultural programs are welcome.

The group, called New Perspective, will hold its first activity Wednesday, Aug. 14, a cocktail party and tennis match at the Lake Shore Racquet Club, 1340 W. Fullerton, Chicago. A cocktail period beginning at 6 p.m. precedes the match at 8 featuring Yvonne Goolagong and Ken Rosewall, two of the world's top seeded players.

Reservations on a first-come first-served basis are due by Friday. They are $3.50. Requests should be sent to Tennis Tickets, Apt. 1006, 3930 N. Pinegrove, Chicago, 60613.

Further information on the new group can be obtained by calling 477-2586.

Beetles eating her roses

Dear Dorothy: My roses were beautiful, but now I find them being eaten up by Japanese beetles. What do I use for these pests? — Mrs. R. Mathews

Sevin is recommended as the best insecticide for this nuisance, and I understand that repeated use of this spray on the roses might result in an infestation of spider mites. In such a case, a miticide can be mixed with the Sevin. I puzzled over this until a chat with one of the top horticulturists. It turns out that the original spray kills many of the parasites that infest mites. With the reduction of natural parasites, the mites develop more rapidly and live longer. Often seems that there is no way to win.

Dear Dorothy: You mentioned using a meat tenderizer in a marinade for the chuck to be broiled. Doesn't it concern you that we are ingesting so many chemicals? — Mary Sucherman

If I was a health "nut" I'd be analyzing everything I ate. Have you looked at the additives on just a plain box of salt? As you surely know, salt itself is a chemical. At least the main ingredient of the meat tenderizer is taken from a common fruit — the papaya.

Dear Dorothy: When I let down the hem of my favorite tennis dress, I discovered the hemline worn. It looks terrible. I've heard that sponging with vinegar and then pressing will take out such a line. Do you think it will work? — Laurie Schroeder

Vinegar won't help if the hem is abraded. With such a dress, you can sew on a strip of braid, tape or ribbon and then

Insects about home can be controlled

Insects that get inside the home can be controlled with a minimum of effort, says Roscoe Randell, University of Illinois Extension entomologist.

Flying insects such as flies and mosquitoes may be effectively controlled indoors by using "no pest strips" or "Vapona strips." One strip per 1,000 cubic feet should be adequate. These resin strips give good control in tight, enclosed areas for about three months.

Randell warns, however, "Do not use resin strips in kitchens, nurseries or rooms where infants, ill, or aged persons are confined or in rooms where you have tropical fish."

Flying insects can be temporarily knocked down with an aerosol spray containing pyrethrin.

For crawling insects such as roaches, carpet beetles and silverfish Randell recommends using residual insecticides. Residual insecticides such as diazinon, Baygon and Dursban remain effective and should control insects from four to eight weeks.

These residual insecticides are available to the home owner as 0.5 per cent solutions in pressurized spray cans, notes Randell. To use, spray runways, baseboards, closets, edge of carpeting and other places.

A waterbase spray of chlordane or diazinon sprayed on the outside of the foundation of your house will prevent insects such as ants, crickets and spiders from migrating into your house in the first place, says Randell.

Episcopal woman speaks for change

by GAY PAULEY
Times change, traditions with them, and one day the Episcopal Church will accept women as priests, even as bishops, says a daughter of an Episcopal priest who herself might have followed her father into the clergy had her church allowed.

Dorothy J. Scovill continued the family's principle of service, however, and today is director of the Human Development Center, a pastoral counseling clinic at Wall Street in New York City.

As such, she is on the staff of the oldest Episcopal church in America, one of the few women to be so recognized in a denomination that does not yet admit women to the priesthood and the right to perform sacramental services.

We were talking of the shock waves sent through the 3.1 million members denomination from the action last week at the Church of the Advocate in North Philadelphia. Four bishops, in a controversial ceremony that defied church law and tradition ordained 11 women as priests.

"A WOMAN HAS as complete right as a man to serve as a priest, yes even to be a bishop if she wants," said Miss Scovill. "Tradition will break down. It will take time but I feel it will happen. But there will be a lot of griping. The church is trying to find its own way."

I mentioned the comment of one of the Philadelphia women, Suzanne Hlatt, who said after the ordination was over, "If the church believes that women are inferior, then I have no use for the church."

"Rather than that," said Miss Scovill, "I feel sorry for the church. I suggest that those who think women are inferior and have no right to ordination should be looking at their own deep seated needs for sexuality."

The attitude of her father, the Rev. Dr. David Scovill, probably would be along the lines of present church laws, that women should not perform priestly duties, she said.

Episcopal women are permitted to become deacons, ranking below bishops and priests, enabling them to perform pastoral services only. Miss Scovill herself is a candidate for a deaconate.

HEIT FATHER, former dean of the Episcopal Cathedral in Los Angeles, now is priest in charge of St. Thomas of Canterbury, in Long Beach, Calif.

"He never said he wanted his daughter in the ministry," she said. Miss Scovill is an identical twin. Her sister, Mary, is a therapist working in a children's shelter on the West Coast.

"I gather he would be proud were I to be ordained a deacon, but he wouldn't want me to be a priest. He would fear that women in the priesthood would create a schism . . . that unity with the Catholic Church would be impeded."

"I'm not sure a schism would be all bad. Destructive and painful, yes, but it could lead to redemption. In a way, it'd be like the racial schism."

Dorothy Scovill, born in Oxnard, Calif., has a bachelor's degree in psychology from Kansas State College and a master's from Union Theological Seminary in New York.

SHE ALSO IS a graduate in counseling from the Blanton-Peale Graduate Institute, the Institutes of Religion and Health, New York, and a fellow of the American Association of Pastoral Counseling.

She worked as counselor and assistant chaplain at youth and child centers before she set up the outpatient counseling service for Trinity, located in the heart of New York's financial and corporate headquarters community.

Where can a woman best service her religion, I asked her.

"Wherever she can fulfill her own wants, whether as a mother, a career woman, a clergy person," she said. "Fulfilling self is tremendously important. If that is selfish in a sense, it is to be free to love other people more freely. Remember Christ said, 'Love thy neighbor as thyself.'"

NIU couple wed July 27

Mrs. Brian M. Hirst

Marcia Jane Moody, daughter of Mrs. Hodgins Moody of Ridgefield, Conn., a former area resident, was married July 27 in Long Grove United Church of Christ to Brian Mark Hirst, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard A. Hirst of Schaumburg.

A graduate of Hersey High School, Marcia and her bridegroom both attend Northern Illinois University, DeKalb. She is studying journalism and Brian, who has completed his undergraduate work at Northern, is beginning graduate study.

The bride chose a gown of swiss voile with tucked bodice trimmed in Valenciennes lace for the candlelight service. A duchess cap of matching fabric and lace held her veil, and she carried a nosegay of white roses and lily of the valley.

ALAIINE DAVNIE, Bloomington, Minn., was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Cynthia and Heather Cate, Goffstown, N.H., and Mrs. David Clarke, Corning, N.Y. The girls were in old-fashioned gowns in Williamsburg stripe of muted pinks and blues, and they carried nosegays of pink Elegance carnations, blue bachelor buttons and purple statice.

Paul Hirst, Santa Cruz, Calif., was his brother's best man. Ushers were Paul Higdon, Villa Park, Ronald Newcomer, Schaumburg; and the bride's uncle, Matthew Hodgins, Charlestown, Ind. The groom's 2-year-old cousin, Morgan McCarthy, was ring bearer and the bride's nephew, Matthew Hodgins Jr., was candlelighter.

A dinner reception was held at the Hobson House in Long Grove.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Indoor exercises keep body fit

The suburb where I live has no area available for exercise walking. There are no sidewalks. The highway is traveled heavily and is too busy for safety, and there is no bus service available to ride to a safe walking area.

I don't need to exercise for weight reduction, but I realize the benefits from exercise. I am somewhat limited in home exercise because of a slightly touchy back. Could you suggest or direct me to information concerning acceptable exercise under such conditions. An exercise stationary bicycle or a treadmill has been suggested but both are expensive.

For many people indoor exercises are the best solution, for some of the reasons you mentioned, and the unwillingness to exercise in public. Many people are self-conscious and won't go for a walk for that reason. Safety in some areas is another factor.

If you have a bad back you should check with your doctor before starting any vigorous program. Actually, many exercises are very good for improving the back, depending upon what the problem really is. A large percentage of bad back complaints are the direct result of not enough of the right kind of regular physical activity.

Any number of home exercises can be used to help maintain the strength of the abdominal muscles (usually very important in preventing back problems), to maintain good posture so essential to good appearance, and to maintain the muscle mass and function of the arms, legs and shoulders.

Exercise bikes are fine and so are treadmills if you can afford them and have room for them. You can also run in place in a small space if you want to. Just jog in one spot, but be careful to run at a comfortable speed and let your foot sink to the floor each time, or run on your heels. There is a right and wrong way to jog or run in place. If you run on your toes you will injure your ankle tendon. Also start at a low level, a hundred steps at most at first, and gradually increase the amount.

Then you can run in place to music or go ahead and dance to music. You don't need a partner to enjoy the dancing movement. It's more fun if you have someone to dance with, but you can dance for a while when you get up, and it will awaken your body ready for the day's work. You might even want to join a dance club. You don't have to join an expensive one to have fun and get some good exercise.

Swimming is a wonderful exercise. It is usually great for weak backs. The water helps support the body, and you can get in a lot of exercise without straining the back muscles. Many places have indoor pools you could use, if you can get to them.

Remember, whatever you do, start at a low level, increase the amount gradually, and do it regularly. The key to success with any good exercise program is to train, don't strain.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

South finds a diamond mine

Oswald: "Let's have a be-kind-to-declarers week."

Jim: "Just to those declarers who don't make bad plays. Thus, South wins the spade lead in dummy. He has to. Then he stops to try to count to nine tricks. He sees that the way to get them is to collect three of those tricks in diamonds. At trick two he leads the deuce of diamonds from dummy. His plan is to finesse his ten spot if East plays low, but East plays the ace."

Oswald: "This is a reasonably happy development. Obviously East has played that card because he holds the singleton ace or the doubleton ace-jack. In the first case South isn't going to make three diamond tricks; in the second case he will if he plays carefully."

Jim: "The careful play must occur right here. It is up to South to play his ten of diamonds, not the four spot."

Oswald: "Let's see what happens after he plays the ten. East leads back a spade to knock out dummy's ace. South leads a diamond to his king and is delighted to see East's jack drop. Now he leads his four of diamonds, finessses dummy's eight and has his three diamond tricks."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION

NOTICE OF PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

Pursuant to law in such case made and provided notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to the Illinois Constitution will be submitted on a separate ballot to the electors of the State of Illinois for adoption or rejection at the General Election to be held on November 5, 1974.

ARTICLE IV THE LEGISLATURE

Section 9. Veto Procedure (a) The Governor may return a bill together with specific recommendations for the correction of technical errors or matters of form to the house in which it originated. The bill shall be considered in the same manner as a vetoed bill. If, however, the specific recommendations are accepted by a record vote of a majority of the members elected to each house, the bill shall be presented again to the Governor and, if he certifies that the acceptance conforms to his specific recommendations, the bill shall become law. If he does not so certify, the Governor shall return it as a vetoed bill to the house in which it originated.

SCHEDULE This amendment of Section 9, paragraph (a) of Article IV of the Constitution is effective for each session of the General Assembly newly convening after its adoption by the electors of this State.

Form of Ballot The proposed amendment to Article IV will appear upon the constitution ballot in the following form:

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO SECTION 9, PARAGRAPH (a) OF ARTICLE IV

EXPLANATION OF AMENDMENT The amendment would limit the Governor's "amendatory veto" power to specific recommendations for the correction of technical errors or matters of form.

YES	For the proposed amendment to Section 9, paragraph (a) of Article IV of the Constitution.
NO

CAPITOL BUILDING SPRINGFIELD, ILLINOIS OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE

I, MICHAEL J. HOWLETT, Secretary of State of the State of Illinois, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true copy of the proposed amendment to the Illinois Constitution as it appears upon a separate blue ballot at the General Election to be held on the 5th day of November, A.D. 1974, pursuant to House Joint Resolution Constitutional Amendment 7 of the Seventy-eighth General Assembly, the original of which is on file in this office.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I hereunto set my hand and affix the Great Seal of the State of Illinois, Done at my office in the Capitol Building, in the City of Springfield, this 3rd day of July, A.D. 1974 and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and ninety-eighth.

MICHAEL J. HOWLETT Secretary of State (SEAL)

NOW HEAR THIS! Coach, Lloyd Meyer of Arlington Heights makes his instructions perfectly clear during 7-6 win over Bellwood in Cook County ty finals. Bruce Hanson's 12th inning double scored Jerry DeSimone from first base to win the game.

THAT WINNING LOOK Arlington's Meyer, flanked by his players, flashed an oversized grin after his club defeated Bellwood. To Meyer's right is Hanson who delivered the key hit. Starting pitcher Paul Kastner is also in the foreground. That's Carl Pederson behind Meyer. Arlington had plenty to smile about all weekend as they won three straight games to move into the championship contest Monday of the Cook County American Legion baseball tournament in Bellwood.

Still perfect after three appearances

Red-hot Arlington marches to title contest

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
BELLWOOD — Bellwood, Ill., is a small, slightly grimy suburb that takes its American Legion baseball seriously, and the local attitude toward Arlington Heights is one of open loathing.

Except for a single reporter here Saturday evening, the press box was solidly anti-Arlington, the main gripe apparently that they didn't stay seated and quiet.

That's why some fans suffered when red-hot Arlington marched into the Cook County finals with a dramatic 6-5 victory over Calumet City, a third straight triumph in an American Legion tourney that has been plagued by the weatherman.

Coach Lloyd Meyer's outfit is scheduled to return to Bellwood for the championship game (or games) Monday at 11 a.m., but once again that schedule is dependent on how the weatherman handled the Sunday proceedings.

No matter when the game is played (dial 394-1700 for any changes in the schedule), Heights needs only one more win to earn a spot in the state finals in Rockford.

It didn't come easy Saturday night.

The Arlington team, sponsored by Fallon Ford and the Des Plaines Post, seemed on the verge of real problems as the first inning unfolded. Dar Townsend couldn't get a pitch over the plate, let alone get anyone out, and the bases soon were loaded with Cal City runners.

Townsend walked three in the first inning and gave up two very inexpensive hits. The first was an infield single to lead off batter Jay Szelski.

The runner was sacrificed to second by Ted Serbin and a walk and an error loaded the bases. Townsend then walked Tom Nalezny to force in the first run. He followed that with a freebie to John Pivornas to push in the second.

After a strikeout, Bob Celarek chopped a grounder to second baseman Ricky Sidor which looked like the final out. But the ball hit a clump of dirt, bounded over Sidor's head and rolled into the outfield. Two more runs scored on the bad hop double.

Arlington started to claw away at Cal City's lead in the third inning. After a Townsend walk, George Vukovich came through with his second straight single of the game.

Cal City starting pitcher Chris Hatfield then issued back to back walks to Jerry DeSimone and Bruce Hanson to force in Townsend.

Hatfield's accuracy was no more outstanding than Townsend's, he walked nine batters, yet he had the misfortune of losing control late in the game just as Townsend was sharpening up.

Tom Good took advantage of the loaded bases to drive a double down the right field line and score Vukovich and DeSimone.

Townsend continued to hang, loading the bases in the third and pitching his way out of trouble by striking out Pivornas and picking Celarek off first.

In the fourth he gave up a ground rule double to Szelski, the only solid hit Cal City had all night, then left the runner at second by fanning the next two batters.

The fifth inning was Townsend's shakiest with three more walks to load the bases with only one out. A popup to the catcher and a strikeout got the right hander out of that mess and began a string of 13 consecutive batters over four innings who couldn't handle Townsend.

Hatfield, who was being checked out by an area scout for the New York Mets, broke down in the seventh and allowed Arlington to take the lead before he was relieved.

Vukovich was the first runner, making it to first after being hit by a pitch. Consecutive walks to DeSimone and Hanson again filled the bases.

Good hit a grounder to second base and the throw forced Vukovich at the plate with the first out. With the bases still loaded and the Arlington contingent whooping it up, the PA man made his futile bid for law and order.

Hatfield then walked Brett Frase and Joe Riplinger to shove across the tying and go-ahead runs. Ted Serbin was finally brought in to spell the exhausted Hatfield and fanned the next two batters to end the inning.

Arlington was a single out away from the win in the top of the ninth after Townsend got Szelski on a fly to left and Serbin on a ground out to Sidor at second.

He worked Greg Pierzchalski to a 3 and-2 count then walked him. Townsend then repeated the routine on Kevin Mar-ich who hit a full count pitch for a single to drive Pierzchalski to third.

Nalezny's grounder to DeSimone should have wrapped it up but the ball died quickly on the damp grass and DeSimone couldn't find the handle before the tying run crossed the plate.

Frase got the Arlington ninth going with a sharp single to right. He stretched that hit to second when the ball got by Nalezny.

Riplinger then took advantage of a gap in the infield at shortstop and rammed a single through that pushed pinch runner Don Kamps to third.

Meyer then worked a bit of sneakiness as Riplinger took an enormous lead off first and enticed Serbin into attempting a pick off. Caught in a rundown, Riplinger sprinted for second and drew a throw to second baseman Derek Singleton for his efforts.

The added time allowed Kamps a nice jump toward the plate where his slide beat the throw with the winning run.

Halas three-hitter sends Arlington to 6-0 triumph

by MIKE GARBUS

BELLWOOD — Arlington's fireplug righthander Tim Halas hurled a route-going three-hitter to shut out Wilmette 6-0 in Cook County tournament action here Saturday afternoon at Memorial Park.

Overnight rains left the infield playing surface virtually submerged; but a park grounds crew, working since 4 a.m., managed to allow the game to begin three and one-half hours after its scheduled starting time of 9 a.m.

Halas worked his way out of jams in the first three innings that were engendered, in part, by his own wildness. Six of the eight total walks he issued in the contest came in those three tense rounds. Alert defense by Halas' teammates also played a major role in Wilmette's scoring drought.

Arlington, playing the role of home team, opened its scoring in the first stanza as Jerry DeSimone coasted a walk out of Post 649 loser Steve Borre. Coach Lloyd Meyer flashed the hit and run, and DeSimone had no trouble motoring to third on Bruce Hanson's double into the right field power alley. Cleanup hitter Tom Good then slapped a grounder to second, but DeSimone was cut down at the plate, with Hanson moving on to third.

TIM HALAS

Borre, a southpaw, trapped Good off first, but as Good was being chased toward second, the first baseman's toss sailed into left-center, and Hanson trotted home with all the support Halas was to need.

Post 36 struck for three more tallies in the third as they batted around. George Vukovich led off with a walk, and with the runner going, the left-handed swinging DeSimone rapped a dribbler into the vacated hole at shortstop leaving runners at first and second. Hanson then drew a walk before Good laced a two-run single to left-center. A strikeout and ground ball later, Rick Sidor beat out a swinging bunt down the third base line as Hanson sprinted home.

The local closed out their run production in the fifth with Good's second straight hit starting things off. Brett Frase sacrificed, and after Joe Riplinger popped to second, Sidor cracked a liner to center, giving Good ample time to score. During a fruitless try to nail Good, Sidor alertly slid into second, and moments later he counted when Steve Breitbell dumped a Texas-leaguer into right.

Meyer's crew mounted yet another solid threat in the seventh when two walks and a throwing error on a sacrifice attempt loaded the sacks with nobody out. Wilmette took the starch out that danger though when a missed squeeze play caught Good at sea off third where he was tagged out.

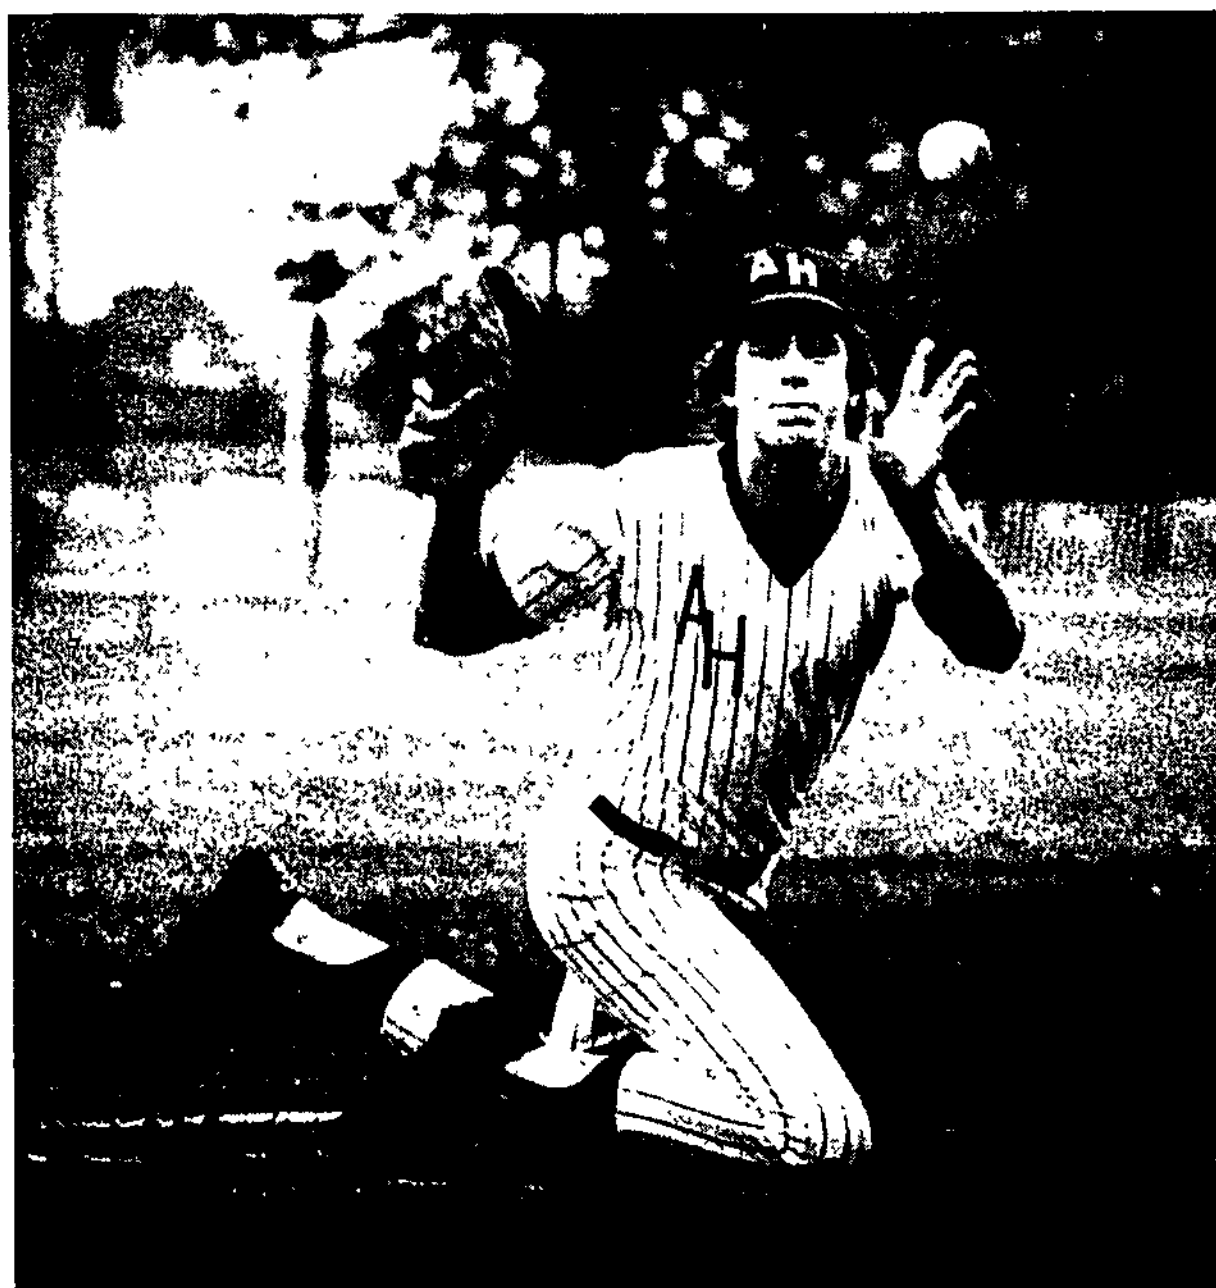

It was typical of the frustration for both teams as each stranded nine baserunners in the game.

Arlington flashed its infield prowess in the ninth when the visitors' Bob Ridenour and Bruce Dahlheim ripped back-to-back singles, Wilmette's first since the fourth.

Catcher Breitbell tried to pick Dahlheim off first and when the ball momentarily skidded away, Ridenour had visions of third in his head. But Good's peg to shortstop DeSimone dashed those as Ridenour was caught trying to check back in. After a wild pitch, Charlie Elzele lined to reserve Rance Aguirre at second, and his flip to DeSimone completed a double play putting the spotlight on Halas, who struck out four.

Kemmerly tourney opens Aug. 10

Meadows Park, one mile west of Route 63 on Northwest Highway, will be the site of the First Annual Kemmerly 16-inch Softball Invitational Tourney this Saturday, Aug. 10.

The class "A" tournament will feature the top city and suburban teams in a one day, single-elimination playoff. Twenty four teams are set to begin the competition at 9:00 a.m. with the finals set to begin at 8 p.m. that evening.

The tournament is sponsored by Jack

Kemmerly of Kemmerly Realty. A sports enthusiast, Kemmerly will present the top prizes at the conclusion of the final game.

The tournament is also being supported by the Windy City Softball magazine and is thought to be the forerunner to a seeding playoff for next season's impressive tournament schedule. Admission is free and the public is invited to the all-day affair.

New champion in 'A' class

A new champion was crowned in the Class "A" Division of the Northern Illinois Swimming Conference.

After years of also-rans but always nipping at the heels of Park Ridge, Northbrook scored a close 400 to 397 decision in the 64 event swimming and diving program at Olympic Pool in Arlington Heights.

Park Ridge held a 373 to 368 lead through 61 events but the Northbrook team gained two seconds and a first place in the final three relays to win the meet.

Arlington, the host team, jumped off to a seven point lead over Northbrook in the four diving events to give Coach Wayne Oras an unbeaten record in the diving portion of the summer season. Mike Duro, Jeff Munk, and Kelly Holland won three of the diving events with Gina Donahue of Northbrook gaining the remaining first.

Three events later Northbrook gained the lead which they held over Park Ridge until the 49th event as Park Ridge kept a steady flow of winners especially at the older divisions. Coach Jim Runkel's hopes of finally upsetting the strong Ridge team became a reality by hanging in close and pulling it out in the end. It was a disappointing loss for Coach Terry Townsend's fine team as a disqualification and a swimming technicality in backstroke finish cost his team some valuable points.

Arlington also came from behind to edge Barrington out for third place with Mount Prospect close behind, Elk Grove finishing sixth. Park Ridge led in first places with 17 individuals and only two relays. Northbrook had 12 individuals and five relays. The 15 and over divisions produced two triple winners in Joe Nitch of Arlington and Kim Lindstrom of Park Ridge, both also turning in excellent times.

Three double winners came out of the eight and under divisions with Carrie Weber of Mount Prospect, John Ratcliffe of Barrington and Sean Brady of Park Ridge turning in the doubles. Northbrook had three doubles in the 9-10 division with Bev Koenig, Lori Dellefeld, and Greg Changnon while Barrington produced Larry Ratcliffe. Park Ridge doubled up Diane Griebel and Rob Chapin in the 11 and 12 division with Mike Harvey of Barrington also scoring two wins.

Mark Markwell of Arlington and Patti Pence of Park Ridge each had twin killings in the 13, 14 age division. Barrington, though only fourth, had 10 individual wins and Mount Prospect, six, Arlington eight which brought a lot of balance to the final results.

Tuesday, Arlington will entertain the top three divers from each of the four Divisions of the Conference and Wednesday at 6, Buffalo Grove will host the All-Star swimming meet with the top 12 swimmers from the four divisions taking part.

Complete results of all place winners will appear in the Wednesday Herald.

Deadline for entry is Aug. 21.

Plan association for WFL; vote slated Wednesday

The World Football League is watching from the sidelines now as the National Football League Players Association tangles with management, but the WFL may have their own freedom battles in the years ahead.

A WFL Players Association will be formed Wednesday in Chicago, according to Bill Byrne, personnel director of the Chicago Fire.

"It's organized now and ready to be formed," Byrne told the Arlington Heights Rotary Club at the Arlington Park Towers. "Our two representatives will meet at the Regency Wednesday with the other representatives. The by-laws and constitution are laid out, and all it needs now is a vote."

According to Byrne, Ed Garvey, Executive Director of the NFL Players Association, had originally opened an office in Washington, D.C. and "put up a sign . . .

Bill Byrne

WFL Players Association." "They sent out players to check this out and eight of the 12 walked out and said "No way," explained Byrne. "We have a fellow out of Detroit named Allen, who formed the first players association for the NFL before Garvey stepped in, organizing ours."

Byrne sees some valid points in the NFL strike, saying "I don't believe in the option or the Rozelle Rule, that's a dictatorship," but he also believes that "good management will prevent a lot of the problems."

Byrne told the Rotarians that there definitely is enough quality coming out of college football for another pro league, and he hinted at possible expansion, even in the WFL.

"There were 423 people drafted out of colleges in 1972," he said, "and only about eight per cent of those played. The quality is there. It's just that there weren't that many jobs. Look at all the years a Ray Nitschke played, for example. There were players coming out but no one was going to take his job."

Byrne has been gratified with the acceptance of the WFL thus far, stressing the television ratings, the crowds, and the number of NFL players who have jumped leagues.

"We signed 72 per cent of our draft choices," said Byrne, "and right now 172 NFL starters have signed to jump. Three hundred and eighty-two are playing out their option. This league will make it. There's no question about it."

Wei falls in third round at national net tourney

After winning his singles matches in the first two rounds, Paul Wei of Arlington Heights lost, 6-2, 7-6, to California's Peter Herrmann in the junior national tennis tourney last week at Davidson, N.C.

The 14-year-old lefthander was competing in the 14-and-under division following a second-place finish in the Junior Boys' Western Closed Tournament three weeks ago at Okemos, Mich.

Wei, who will begin his sophomore year at Arlington High School in September, defeated Robbie Hill, 6-2, 6-2, in the opening round, and he held back Mike Leach, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5, in the second round.

That set up Wei's match with Herrmann, the eighth seed, in the round of 32. Wei dropped the first set, 6-2, and fell in the second set, 7-6, in a tiebreaker.

Wei came back to capture a consolation match in three sets from Ross Dubins, 6-7, 7-5, 6-2, before losing a final match to 12th seeded Jeff Turpin in a tough 6-4, 4-6, 7-5 fashion.

In doubles competition, Wei and his partner, Greg Amaya of Harland, Mich. weren't so fortunate as they failed to get past the first round. The two 14-year-olds, who had taken first place in the Western Closed, were eliminated in the very first round at Davidson, 6-4, 6-4.

In the singles championship top-seeded Blaine Willenborg of North Miami Shores, Fla., defeated second-ranked Tim Wilkinson of Shelby, N.C., 7-6, 1-6, 7-5.

Washington Park Handicap Saturday

A headliner steeped in tradition

The $50,000 added Washington Park Handicap, the very mention of which brings to mind some of the most memorable moments in Chicago thoroughbred racing, will be renewed for the 46th time this Saturday at Arlington Park.

Steeped in tradition, the mile and one-quarter classic for three-year-olds and upward has a history that few stakes races can boast of. Among the immortals of the American turf gracing the past winners roster are Armed, who captured consecutive runnings in 1946 and '47, Coalstown, Pet Bully, Swaps, Round Table, who gave jockey great Bill Schoemaker his fourth of five Washington Park 'Cap winners, T.V. Lark, Gun Bow, and Dr. Fager.

This year's edition of the fabled attraction promises to be no less exciting. A small but stellar band of 13 handicap veterans, nine of which have earned their stakes brackets, were nominated, including High Country Stable's Blazing Gypsy, Hasty House Farms' redoubtable entry of Super Sail and Zografos, W. "Archie" Lofton's Tom Tulle, Rogers Top Farm's Buffalo Lark, and Crimson King Farm's Crimson Falcon.

Blazing Gypsy, upset hero of Ak-Sar-Ben's $100,000 Cornhusker Handicap and before that the Omaha oval's King's Handicap, brings an $85,000 plus bankroll into the Washington Park Handicap garnered from four 1974 triumphs. The five-year-old son of Gallant Lad seems to improve with age.

Super Sail and Zografos have each accounted for a chapter of Arlington's million dollar stakes program for the current season. The former earned laurels in the Laurance Armour Handicap while Zografos posted a game victory over sloppy going in the Stars and Stripes. Both trainees of Harry Trotsek are proven distance specialists.

Tom Tulle, the stretch running handicap star of the Midwest, sports earnings bordering on the $200,000 plateau gleaned from four 1974 added money conquests. The son of Tom Rolfe made his most notable triumph the $100,000 Michigan Mile in which he bested his rivals by two and one-half lengths. Before that he captured the National Jockey Club Handicap at Sportsman's Park and a pair of stakes at the Fair Grounds during the winter.

Buffalo Lark, who left a lot of promise unfulfilled as a sophomore, has more than made up for it as a four-year-old. A double stakes winner at Arlington this season with victories on the main course in the Governor's Cup and over the turf in the recent Diplomat Way, Buffalo Lark has really emerged a star for trainer Joe Bolero. His Diplomat Way Handicap win was a picture effort in which jockey Larry Snyder drove him up on the outside to prevail by a nose in a six horse blanket photo.

The $12,500 added Whisper Jet Stakes for two-year-olds bred or foaled in the state of Illinois headlines the midweek card.

The Whisper Jet, named in honor of the state bred star of the late sixties now retired to stud duty, will celebrate its fourth running. Barely Once was victorious in 1970 and 1972 with Welsbroek Road winning the '71 edition.

This season's renewal lured 17 nominations, including Gene Ackerman's duo of Gay Larum and Sweet Larum, H.D. Denson's Challe Boy, William A. Wieland's Marlene's Troy, R. and D. Amberg's Flame Cookie, and L. and J. Janok's Beau Carol.

Sweet Larum, hero of Sportsman's Park's Orange and Blue Stakes in May, was third in the recent Fairmount Futurity at Cahokia Downs. The Larum colt has been favored in all three of his career outings, emerging victorious on two occasions.

Broke n Hungry, Challe Boy, Beau Carol, and Lou's Charger all bested fields of maidens here at Arlington in recent attempts. Rend Lake has been keeping company with some of the finest juveniles on the grounds in open stakes competition.

The Whisper Jet champion could bring the local thoroughbred scene some hope for the upcoming $200,000 estimated gross Arlington-Washington Futurity. The nation's premier attraction for juveniles is slated for Sept. 2.

Schaumburg hockey league seeking top area talent

The Schaumburg Hockey League will be selecting the top hockey talent from the entire Northwest Suburban area to fill the rosters of its newly formed program for accelerated hockey players.

The six new Schaumburg King teams, mites through juniors, will be members of the newly formed Chicago Hockey League. Other clubs in the league include the Chicago Minor Hawks, the Bridgeview Saints, the Glenwood Gulls and the Downers Grove Royals.

The Chicago Hockey League will have a 20 game schedule during the 1974-75 hockey season, as well as a full schedule of exhibition games with leading hockey clubs from other states and Canada.

Joe Zeller, president of the Schaumburg Kings, said the club was expanding in this direction to provide realistic competitive opportunities to the many outstanding players throughout the area.

According to Zeller, many players in every age group have developed to the point that they have outgrown the competition available to them in most programs. "The Kings, along with the other clubs in the Chicago Hockey League, have recognized this and have formed the new league to provide competitive opportunities equal to the calibre of these players," Zeller said.

The Schaumburg Hockey League will be offering a total hockey program during the 1974-75 season for boys of all ages and ability levels, including a L.I.L. KING program for the 4-6 years old. With the exception of the pre-mite program, the club will provide a 29 week program for every team beginning Sept. 15. Each team will have at least three ice sessions every week, and will include regular league play, practice, state tournament competition and invitational tournament competition.

In addition to the new C.I.L.L. Division teams, the Kings will field their Gold Division and possibly their Purple Division, depending on interest in tryouts. Last year, four Gold Division teams and two Purple Division teams placed fourth, or better, in state tournament competition, and two of the Gold Division teams won league championships.

Tryouts for the Kings, for all teams, will begin on Sept. 9 at the Polar Dome in Dundee. There will be four tryout sessions following which players will be assigned to various King divisions.

Registration for King tryouts will be held at the Meineke Community Center, 220 E. Weathersfield Way, Schaumburg on Saturday, Aug. 17 and Saturday, Aug. 24. Registration hours will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The registration fee is $15, which will entitle players to four tryout sessions.

J. P. Bordeleau to work with hockey school

J.P. Bordeleau

J. P. Bordeleau, who plays right wing for the Chicago Black Hawks, will be guest and head instructor of the Schaumburg Hockey School.

The school will be held at the Woodfield Hockey Center, 1330 Remington Rd., Aug. 26 through Aug. 31.

Classes will be from 9:00 to 11:30 a.m. and will consist of 2 1/2 hours of on-the-ice training by Bordeleau.

Students ages 8 through 18 may obtain registration information at the Woodfield Hockey Center or by calling the Chicago number: 262-6533. The deadline for registration is Aug. 15.

Minstrel brings CBS song to America

NEW YORK — Ken Chandler may be one of CBS' rising young stars, but even if you fell over him on the street, you might not recognize him. Unless:

- he was strumming a guitar.
- wearing a derby.
- and sporting a huge grin across his painted white face.

Ken Chandler is the TV troubadour — that wandering minstrel who keeps popping up on your screen to remind you that CBS has been the No. 1 network for the last 18 years. NBC was on top 19 years ago.

Whether or not you agree with the promotion — some people think it's a bit arrogant — it appears to be a success. It gets the message across in an entertaining and catchy way.

"Let's face it," said Louis Dorfman, the CBS VP who developed the 60-second spot around Chandler. "Americans love winners. My theory is that people gravitate toward winners. And we don't hide it under a rock."

Dorfman said he decided on the distinctive white face of a mime because he didn't want viewers to focus their attention on Chandler, but on what he was saying.

"HE WOULD BECOME the symbol of CBS entertainment," he said. "I wanted a veil in front of his face, a white Marcel Marceau-like face, that would take him away from being Ken Chandler and make him Mr. CBS."

Last year Dorfman promoted CBS by using comedy combined with the Guinness book of records. This year, he decided to drop the humor and do what he called "mini-musicals."

"We were going to have Kenny wear a white suit and ride a white horse across the U. S. singing an ode to CBS and thanking the viewers for 18 years of loyalty. But we soon realized it might take

Television in review

by Frank S. Swertlow forever for him to cross the country on horseback.

"So then we decided on something more practical and we chose several geographic locations that would symbolize the U. S. and its differences. We wanted to do it out of the city to show how beautiful the country is."

Dorfman and Chandler joined CBS camera crews in the French Quarter of New Orleans, at a beach in Northern California and in a wheat field in Kansas. They also went to a rodeo in Oklahoma and a village in Maine.

DORFMAN ESTIMATED they traveled 8,000 miles to do the promotion and spent one week scouting locations, filming, and editing the spot. The only professional performer used was Chandler.

Dorfman said that for each place he and Chandler went they received a different reaction from the people they came in contact with.

"In Maine, we got a little stiffness from the people," Dorfman said. "They were suspicious. They didn't want us to mention the name of the town for fear they would be inundated by tourists."

"Some of the people even thought we were big New York operators out to buy all the land."

eled to Kansas he advised members of the camera crew to cut their long hair short.

"We didn't want anybody to look too hip, but when we got there we were amazed how hip the people themselves were. Amazing."

Chandler, 33, said that despite the anonymity of his white face, his career was beginning to take off. He has been asked to do a number of commercials, a record company is interested in him and there is a possibility of a part in a Broadway show.

"People who know me rave about it," he said, "and I've been getting a lot of calls that way. People who don't know me, want to know who I am. It's great."

Lower densities requested

Lake County tables plans for two housing projects

by JOE FRANZ

Lake County has deferred action on plans for two housing developments in Buffalo Grove, asking the village to request that the builders lower the densities.

The two developments in question are Winston Square by Centex Homes Corp. and Arrowhead West by the Chesterfield Development Corp. Both projects already have been given final approval by the village.

Recently, the Lake County Plats Committee considered the two projects, but refused to act until the village considers its request. In a letter to the village, Cranston Byrd, chief of the current planning division, said the committee feels the densities of the projects are too high.

VILLAGE ATTY. Richard Raysa, in a legal opinion to the village board, said the county has no legal authority to regulate density within a municipality, such as Buffalo Grove. The county's authority, in this area, he said, lies only in unincorporated areas.

Byrd said Friday, he does not know what action would be taken in the event the village and developers refuse to lower the densities of the two developments.

"I would assume the plats would be signed, but I wouldn't attempt to speak for the plats committee on that matter," he said. "I just wrote the letter to Buffalo Grove at their request."

Morton Kaplan, an attorney for Centex, said Friday his firm is opposed to lowering the density of Winston Square and that Lake County does not have the authority to require it.

"County approval of the plat is a mere formality," he said. "They're obligated to approve it and I don't think it's even worth commenting on."

Fred Hillman, executive vice president of Chesterfield, said Friday he too would be opposed to lowering the density of his firm's project. "It seems to me the Village of Buffalo Grove has a right to decide what is done within its boundaries," he said. "It seems to me the county is changing the rules without telling anybody."

IF THE COUNTY attempts to force Chesterfield to lower its density, Hillman said he would consider court action. "I sure will contact our attorney if that happens," he said.

Chesterfield's Arrowhead West project is to be built on 27 acres at the northeast corner of Arlington Heights and Lake Cook roads. As approved by the village, it would consist of 284 townhouses, about 10.5 units to the acre.

Centex' Winston Square development is planned for 57 acres east of Welland Road, north of the Lake-Cook county line. As planned, it would consist of 420 townhouses and single-family homes, about 7.3 units to the acre.

Both Arrowhead West and Winston Square have lower densities than Centex' Winston Park North development which was approved by Lake County several months ago. That development is directly north of Chevy Chase Country Club and will consist of 940 units on 86 acres, or about 11 units to the acre.

The Winston Park North project was turned down by the village board early this year and the developer decided to remain unincorporated and build under county zoning.

The village board will consider Lake County's request tonight at 8 p.m. in the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

TELEVISION CAMERAS AND a filmed interview were a part of the fun Friday morning for Mrs. Hofstede and her Golden Years Club members at the County Building. Other members looked on and enjoyed.

Celebrities!

It all started when 25 senior citizens went on TV—and all they wanted were new county ID cards

by TONI GINETTI

The ladies and gentlemen of the Rolling Meadows Golden Years Club never had it so good.

Cook County Clerk Stanley T. Kuser, laughing and joking with the ladies, coffee and sweet rolls galore, television cameras and radio and newspaper interviewers following them around and the red carpet treatment from the county clerks attending them—all just because they had come to apply for some identification cards.

What the fuss was all about was the fact that the 25 senior citizens were the first to receive newly-devised personal identification cards Friday morning. The seniors and Kuser, whose brainchild the new IDs are, loved every minute of it.

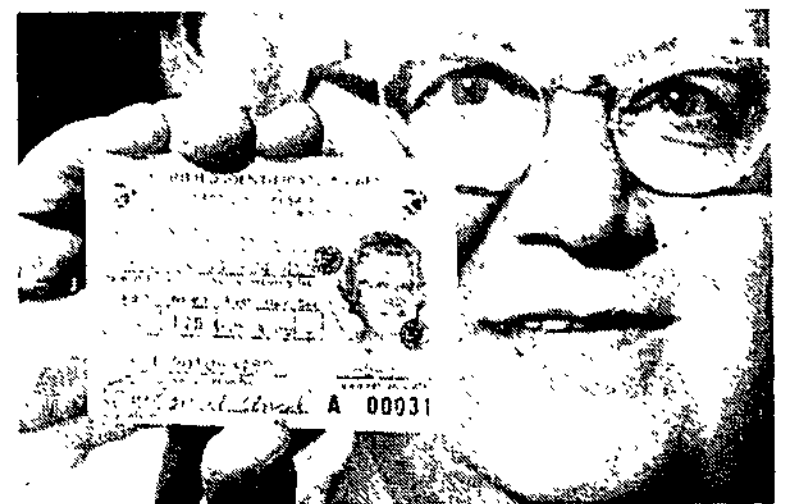

"THERE'S MY GIRL," the debonair Kuser beamed when Mrs. Henry Hofstede, president of the club, announced their arrival. The group, after stepping off a specially chartered bus provided by Mayor Roland Meyer, was in a rousing mood following a noisy ride down the Kennedy Expressway. For many it was the first trip to the Chicago Loop in years.

The royal treatment started as the ladies and three men alighted from the bus at the door of the County Building on Clark Street, with no less than a police officer as doorman.

Inside, the club members boarded two elevators to go to the second floor clerk's office where the new identification department is located.

"I feel like I'm getting married again," one of the women laughed as the group passed the marriage license bureau located next to the new department.

Before the seniors received their $3 cards, which Kuser calls "a favorite project of mine" to provide acceptable identification for persons, county officials including Kuser were processed for their cards.

THE CARDS WILL be available to the general public starting today.

"Mr. Kuser, we're from Rolling Meadows," Mrs. Hofstede told the clerk, pulling him aside from the others.

"Oh you do. Look, we've got all these people from Rolling Meadows," Kuser said out loud. "Have some coffee and a roll while you wait."

It seemed the 9:30 a.m. arrival of the group was a little premature, ("we didn't expect them until 10 a.m.," one aide said,) but the seniors were more than happy to wait while the cameras aimed at them and Mrs. Hofstede was ushered aside for interviews.

"The cards will make it easier for us to cash checks," she told a television interviewer. Did she have trouble cashing checks, the interviewer asked? "Oh, no, I don't have any trouble cashing checks because I don't cash that many checks," she laughed.

THEN CAME KUSER, arms enfolding some of the ladies, to pose for pictures.

"I thought we were going to march in and march out like a bunch of old ladies," Mrs. Hofstede said. "I never expected this kind of treatment."

The group's trip and selection as first recipients of the cards stemmed from a visit some months ago by Kuser to the Rolling Meadows City Hall.

"We had come there to speak to them and in the conversation this came up," Kuser said. "We started kicking it

Village expects to approve pact for reservoir tonight

Buffalo Grove officials tonight are expected to approve a three-party agreement for a 100-acre reservoir on Buffalo Creek that is expected to alleviate many flooding problems in the area.

Under the agreement, the Lake County Forest Preserve District will acquire the needed land, the Metropolitan Sanitary District will pay for construction and the village will maintain the facility after it is built.

Once the $2.1 million reservoir is built, the forest preserve district would have additional recreation area and the village and surrounding area would benefit from the added water retention.

THE VILLAGE has not acted on the agreement because officials were waiting for clarification on maintenance responsibilities in the recreation areas. Officials said village should assume responsibility for maintenance of the reservoir, but not for the adjacent recreation areas. The forest preserve district has agreed to maintain these areas.

The reservoir is planned for the southwest corner of Arlington Heights Road and Checker Drive. When completed, it will hold 260 million gallons of water and provide major flood relief for downstream homes in Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and parts of unincorporated Cook County.

Buffalo Grove officials have said they would like to see construction of the reservoir completed by mid-1975.

In other business tonight the village board will:

• Consider an agreement that would clear the way for a referendum to put the entire village in the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District.

• Review a request by Levitt and Sons Inc. to waive an ordinance which would require the firm to plant trees and install a sidewalk along the Twin Grove School and park site.

• Review plans for study on the town center and discuss a recent meeting with the property owners in the proposed area.

• Review a request for a rear yard variation for a home at 3 Weldner Ct.

• Approve an ordinance regulating traffic at University Drive and Downing Road.

High school to have 2 foreign students

Buffalo Grove High School will have its first two AFS (American Field Service) foreign exchange students when school opens this fall.

The two, who will spend the year in the school, are Diana Coutts from Australia and Tony Contreras, from Honduras. Miss Coutts will live with the Ed Leadley family in Arlington Heights and Contreras will live with the Gayle Anderson family of Buffalo Grove.

In addition, Valerie Kolf, a Buffalo Grove student, will spend the year in Belgium under the AFS sponsorship. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Kolf of Arlington Heights.

The Buffalo Grove AFS chapter also plans to host short-term exchange students during the school year.

Builder finishes work on ditch

Work on the Aspen drainage ditch in Lake County was completed last week by Levitt and Sons Inc.

The open ditch, which lies between Twisted Oak Lane and Aspen Court, has been a subject of controversy between homeowners and the developer for about a year.

Residents complained to the village board last year that the ditch was "a potential safety hazard." They said Levitt had not made improvements to the ditch that were promised at the time the homes were purchased.

After the protests, the village and Levitt officials met and agreed on a plan to eliminate the hazards and make the ditch more attractive. The work was scheduled for completion last fall, but encountered numerous delays.

Work consisted of cleaning and eliminating standing water at the bottom of the ditch and resloping and planting grass on the banks of the ditch. Residents had complained that the banks were too steep and that they were eroding away.

A small retaining wall also was constructed along the west bank of the ditch. Village Engineer Arnold Seaberg said Levitt has fulfilled its obligations and all that remains is for the village to erect a fence at the top of the retaining wall to prevent persons from falling into the ditch.

7 applicants give qualifications for school board post

by JILL BETTNER

Pupil-teacher ratios, individualized instruction, career education and better communication between the school board, parents, students and teachers are among the concerns of seven Dist. 21 residents seeking appointment to the vacant seat on the Board of Education.

The applicants were interviewed for five minutes each last week at a special meeting of the school board. The appointment will be announced Thursday at the board's regular meeting.

The person named to the board will serve out the unexpired term of Mary Jo Reid of Buffalo Grove. The term ends next April. Mrs. Reid resigned earlier this summer to accept a $9,000 per year job as public relations and volunteer coordinator for the district.

ONE APPLICANT for Mrs. Reid's seat, Gerald McGlothlin, 1047 S. Carol Ave., Wheeling, is unqualified for the post because of his age. The Illinois School Code requires school board members to be at least 21 years old to serve. McGlothlin is 20.

Despite McGlothlin's age, he was interviewed last week along with the other school board candidates. Kenneth Roddeck, board secretary, said Friday the board was aware of the age requirement before the interviews, but had not had an opportunity to double check the law with the district's attorneys. He added that board members decided to hear McGlothlin's views on the district before bringing the problem up.

McGlothlin who became the first student representative on the Harper College Board of Trustees last January, told the Dist. 21 school board his main concern is increasing communication between the board and parents, teachers and students.

He suggested the board consider asking junior high school students to attend one meeting every three months or so to provide student input on school issues. McGlothlin is a former Dist. 21 student and believes his experience would be useful on the board. As a resident of the unincorporated area of Wheeling, McGlothlin also said he thought he could provide broad citizen representation.

A June graduate of Harper, McGlothlin is employed this summer as promotions manager for Just Games, Inc., Mount Prospect. He plans to enroll at Northwestern University this fall and follow a pre-law course of study.

IMPROVING communication, especially the board's awareness of community concerns, also was a priority mentioned by school board applicant Susan Tripp Rose, 174 Timber Hill Rd., Buffalo Grove.

Mrs. Rose, 33, recommended that school board members offer to speak at meetings of community organizations about educational matters in the district. She said this could be one way of getting feedback.

An active volunteer and PTA board member at Alcott School in Buffalo Grove, Mrs. Rose suggested that board members also try to spend time at various local schools talking with teachers, students and parents.

A former substitute teacher in Dist. 21 schools, Mrs. Rose received a bachelor's degree in biology and master's degree in school administration from Indiana University. She has two children attending local schools.

JEANNE PETERS, 2413 E. Dundee Rd., Arlington Heights, in a written statement to the school board, said, "We need to equip our children with adequate tools to deal with the unknown world of tomorrow so that future shock does not disorient them to the extent that it has many of ours and past generations."

Mrs. Peters said she believes schools should be more attuned to the needs of students and more emphasis should be placed on developing creative thinking and good decision-making skills. She added she also would like to see more individualized instruction which would allow children to learn at their own rate.

Mrs. Peters, 34, taught English at Robert Frost and Helen Keller junior high schools in Schaumburg Dist. 54 for four years and is a former Dist. 21 substitute teacher.

She obtained a bachelor's degree in speech at Northern Illinois University and has completed 14 hours of graduate work in group dynamics, curriculum and innovative teaching methods at Northwestern University, the University of Illinois and the University of Chicago.

Mrs. Peters has two children in Dist. 21 schools.

A. M. MANSUKHANI, 24 St. Armand

Ln., Wheeling, said in his interview he believes his experience as an attorney and his background in civil engineering would make him a valuable school board member.

Mansukhani's primary concern is pupil-teacher ratios in the district. He thinks class sizes should be limited to between 25 and 30 students.

He added that he also is unsure that teaching methods being used in the district, primarily in sciences, allow students to effectively grasp material.

The father of two children who attend local school, Mansukhani has been a resident of the district for almost three years.

JANET GROSS, 331 Cottonwood Dr., Buffalo Grove, believes the current Dist. 21 curriculum is adequate, but said she would like to see more programs for slow learners and gifted children.

Mrs. Gross, 34, said she thinks Dist. 21 is doing a good job of educating local children and is interested in serving on the school board so "it will continue to be one of the very best."

A Girl Scout leader and member of the Alcott School PTA, Mrs. Gross completed one year of business school plus night school courses in the art of communicating and creative thinking.

She has four children in Dist. 21 schools and has lived in the district for the last 10 years.

AS A TEACHER in the Chicago public school system, Arnold Drobny, 3250 Volz Dr., West, Arlington Heights, said he is interested in using his background to become involved in local school concerns

by serving on the Dist. 21 school board.

Drobny, 32, said he believes policies set by the school board should reflect, as much as possible, the wishes of Dist. 21 residents.

He, too, is interested in pupil-teacher ratios and thinks subjects included in the curriculum, such as history, should not be taught by rote.

A resident of the district for more than two years, Drobny received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Roosevelt University. He is a member of the Northgate Civic Assn.

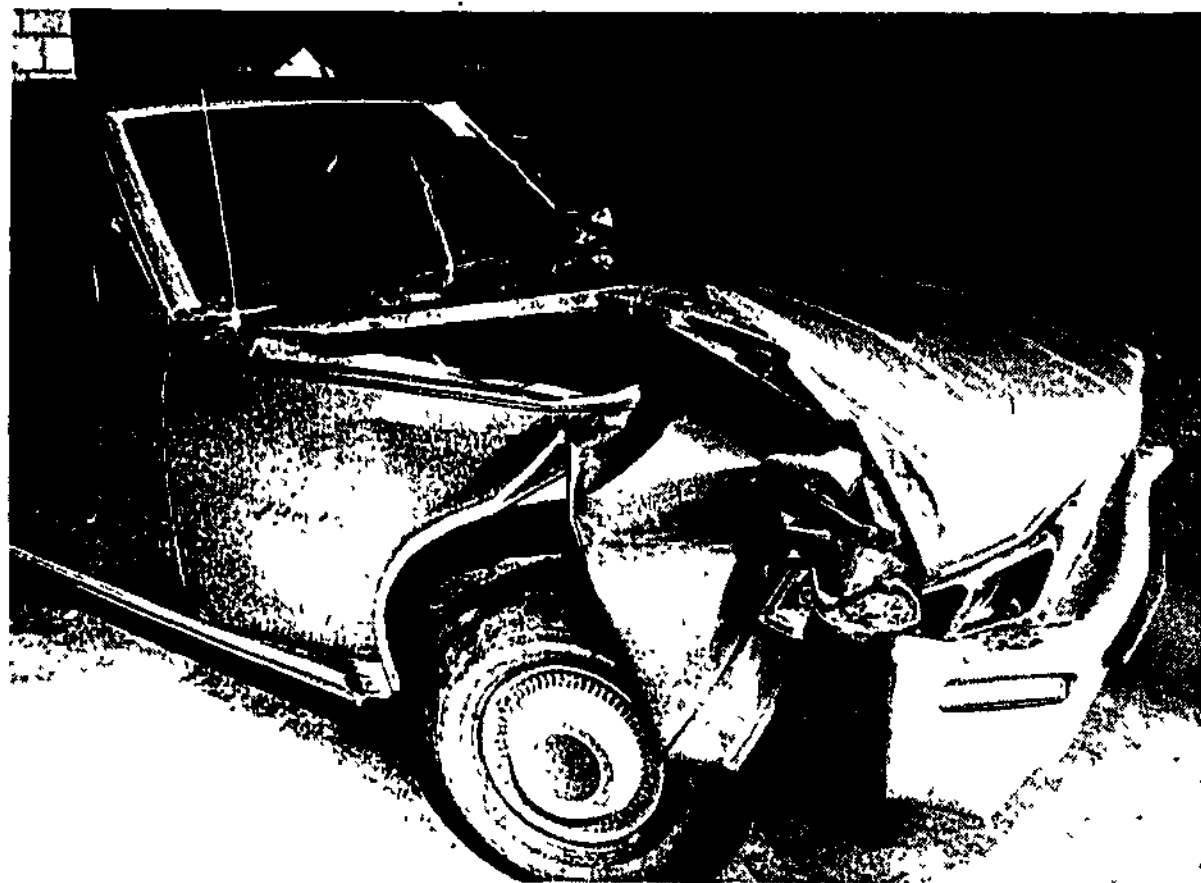

FINDING A "middle of the road" route between the open classroom and traditional methods of teaching is one of the main concerns of Mary Arlene Weil, 624 Ivy Ct., Wheeling.

Mrs. Weil, 23, also said she would like to see more programs in local schools aimed at developing student self-awareness and enough facilities provided so that each child can pursue his own interests.

Along the same lines, Mrs. Weil said she would encourage opportunities for students to work in the community while attending school to give them exposure to various careers.

Mrs. Weil received a bachelor's degree in secondary English education from Chicago State University. She has a 3-month-old child and has lived in the district for one year.

Following the interviews, Dist. 21 School Board Pres. Jack Lane said he hoped the six applicants not chosen for the seat on the board would continue to express an interest in school matters.

THIS IS THE village-owned car issued to Wheeling Police Chief Peter Guttilla as it looked after last Thursday's accident in Northbrook in which Guttilla reportedly struck another car. Wheeling officials said no damage estimate had been determined. Neither Guttilla nor the 17-year-old driver of the other car was ticketed.

Session slated today

by WANDALYN RICE

Officials from the Northwest Educational Cooperative who have been summoned to Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick's office today to discuss the charges about Dwyer School, Arlington Heights, will not show up.

Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC; John Wightman, director of all special education programs in the NEC area; John Whipple, former clinical director of Dwyer School; and Robert Taylor, coordinator of the Dwyer elementary school program, had been ordered by Martwick to come to his office today.

Martwick had said he wanted to discuss the charges which have been made about improper operation of the school with the four and indicated he would consider suspending their teaching and school administration certificates if their answers were unsatisfactory.

FRIDAY, Mrs. Kinney, and Edith Freund, president of the NEC governing board, were drafting a letter to Martwick explaining the four would not appear because Mrs. Kinney will be in the hospital and the governing board believes a report being drafted on the charges will answer Martwick's questions.

"Dr. Kinney will not be available to provide administrative leadership and we don't believe it would be a good idea to have them appear at this time," Mrs. Freund said, in explaining the letter.

Mrs. Freund and other members of the governing board are drafting a report to be submitted Wednesday to State School Supt. Michael Bakalis with detailed answers to the charges made by present and former members of the Dwyer School staff.

The charges had included allegations that children were abused and beaten with paddles, that Whipple and other members of the staff were unqualified for their jobs and that Whipple allowed staff members to engage in "unprofessional" activities in front of children.

THE GOVERNING board at 3 a.m. Thursday, after a seven-hour meeting with Whipple, his attorney and Leo Athas, general counsel for Bakalis, announced that Whipple was being transferred from Dwyer to a full-time position with the Center for Child and Family Studies, which provides counseling for students who remain at their regular schools.

In addition, the board said it would file the report with Bakalis' office.

Officials from Martwick's office said Friday the county superintendent would probably have a statement if the four he has summoned do not show up this morning. Earlier, County officials had indictated they did not believe the NEC action changed the need for the meeting today.

Martwick apparently has the authority under Illinois law to suspend the teaching or administration certificates of the four if he finds evidence of "immorality, incompetency, unprofessional conduct or neglect of any professional duty." If a person's certificate is suspended, he may appeal the action to the State Certification Board and receive a hearing which may overturn the action.

Bids jump 50% on two phases of water project

by STEVE BROWN

It's no secret that prices are going up, but city officials recently got the hard facts on just how much the price tag has skyrocketed on a major water system improvements project.

Bids on two major phases of the city's $2.2 million water system have jumped about 50 per cent over last month's estimates. Those estimates were nearly twice what city engineers had predicted the costs would be when the project was first planned 18 months ago.

Low bids on a proposed four million gallon water storage tank were more than $200,000 higher than the $410,000 estimate made last month by the city.

As a result Ald. Thomas Koplos, 1st, will ask the council to accept an alternate proposal to construct the tank with concrete rather than steel and bring the costs closer to the original estimates.

KOPLoS, WHO HEADS the city council's water and sewer committee, noted that the tab for the concrete tank will run at least $477,000 and there may be additional increases.

However, he explained contractors are bidding high on all steel work because of skyrocketing prices and serious delays in delivery.

"Besides holding down the price we should be able to complete construction in one year, rather than the estimated two years it would have taken with the steel tank," Koplos said.

The low bidder on the project was Talsma Builders of Alsip. Their $477,000 bid was $120,000 under the next lowest bids. Two contractors submitted bids of more than $610,000 for a steel storage tank.

Koplos theorized that the city may have to increase a water revenue bond issue to pay for the improvements on the city's north side. He suggested a $2.5 million bond issue might be needed. Original estimates started at $1.8 million and skipped last month to $2.2 million and appear to be heading higher.

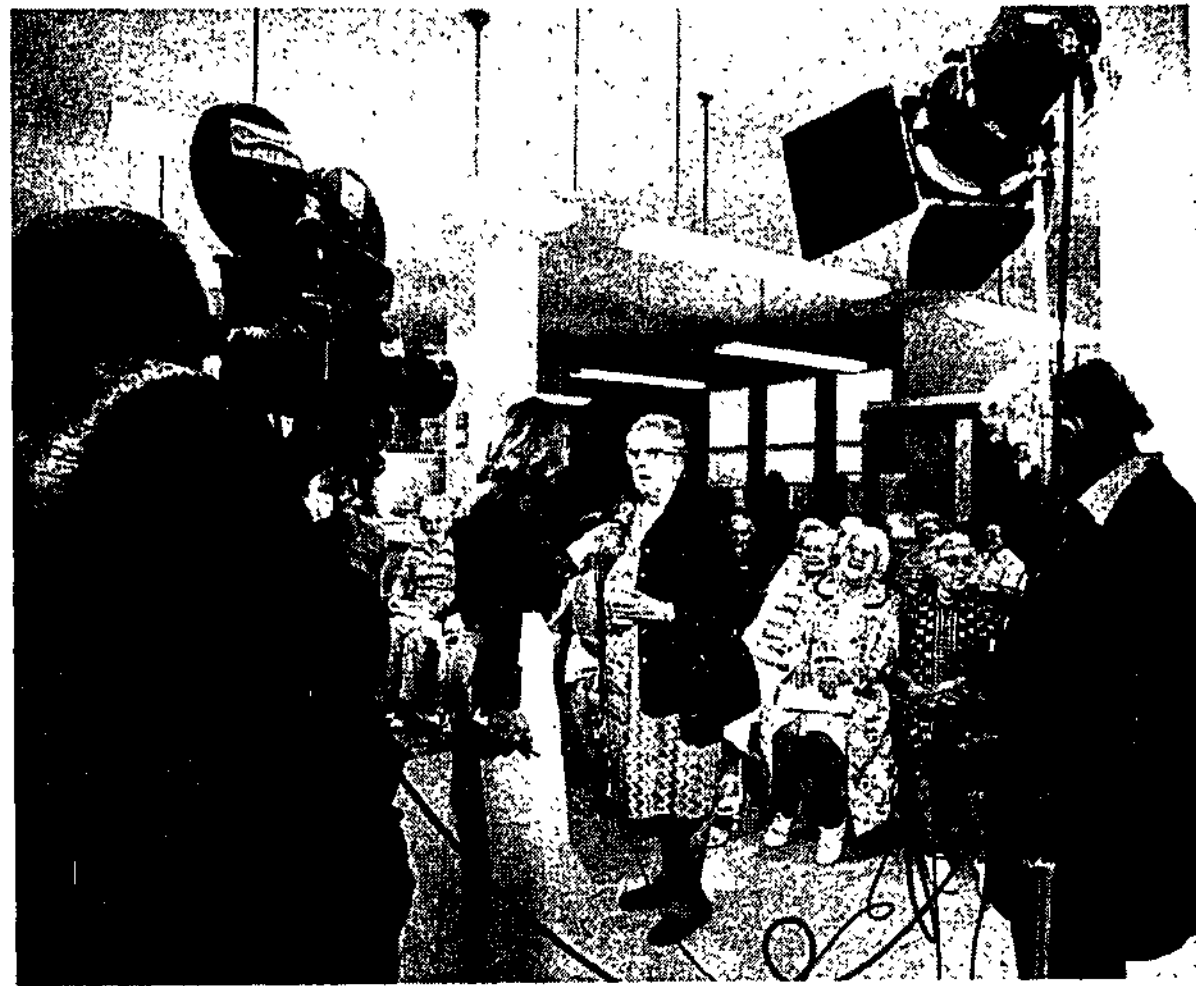

Koplos also explained that he will seek a delay in council action on bids submitted for the construction of a water pumping station that will be built adjacent to the storage tank.

BIDS ON THAT project ranged from $187,000 to more than $345,000. Engineering estimates placed a $143,000 price tag on the improvement.

Koplos repeatedly has pressed the city council for action on the project because he said he anticipated major cost increases and possible delays in obtaining material.

The original improvement program was proposed in April, 1972, in a comprehensive study conducted by Carl F. Buetner and Associates, St. Louis.

The entire project will be financed through water revenue bonds which will be paid off through funds received from the city's water customers. The cost of the improvement project and a hefty hike in the price charged to Des Plaines by Chicago for water was put into a rate increase last year.

TELEVISION CAMERAS AND a filmed interview were a part of the fun Friday morning for Mrs. Hofstede and her Golden Years Club members at the County Building. Other members looked on and enjoyed.

New fire recruit training program begins next month

by JOHN MAES

A new training program in the Des Plaines Fire Dept. will be initiated next month. The program will require new recruits to complete 200 hours of training.

The new plan will be in accordance with guidelines included in the Fire Protection and Training Act, passed in 1971 by the Illinois Legislature. The city council approved the course last year.

To handle the intensive training, Deputy Fire Chief David Clark will be named the department's full-time training officer. Clark said Capt. David Wolf will be appointed to take over his duties.

Clark said he will start the new training plan with 10 new recruits next month. The recruits will receive classroom instruction in 23 areas of firefighting operations.

CLARK SAID HE will conduct classes in areas such as rescue operations, use of communications devices and other equipment and techniques of firefighting. The recruit training will take about 10 weeks, he said.

The recruits, and future firefighting candidates also will be required to successfully complete Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) and paramedic training before being named to the department.

Starting next January, all city firemen will be required to take the 200 hours of basic instruction as well as an additional 400 hours of training leading to an advanced firemen's certification, Clark said.

Similar training programs are in effect in 73 fire departments throughout Illinois and in Texas and Florida.

Mount Prospect village officials also have adopted the state training guidelines for its fire department.

CURRENT TRAINING policies call for classroom and practical instruction, but there is no designation of the number of hours recruits must spend in training.

A total of $3,500 is included in the city budget for the program and Clark said he expects a larger amount will be allowed for instruction next year.

The state will reimburse the department 50 per cent of the recruits' salaries while they are in departmental phases and during EMT training.

State training standards allow for firemen reaching advanced firefighting status to take additional instruction in one of five areas of specialized operations such as instructing new firemen, fire inspection and prevention and airport firefighting.

Clark said city firemen will not be required to become specialists, but they will be required to obtain the advanced firemen's status.

Thieves split with hares

A rabbit's warren was invaded by thieves in Des Plaines sometime between Saturday night and Sunday morning and a mother rabbit and her five bunnies stolen.

Ronald Leslie, 14 N. Fourth St., told police the rabbits valued at $25, were missing when he went to a backyard cage where they were kept.

In addition to the theft of six rabbits, the thieves took a nesting box that housed the domestic animals. Police believe the rabbit thief entered the yard from an alleyway.

It all started when 25 senior citizens went on TV and all they wanted were new county ID cards

by TONI GINNETTI

The ladies and gentlemen of the Rolling Meadows Golden Years Club never had it so good.

Cook County Clerk Stanley T. Kasper laughing and joking with the ladies, coffee and sweet rolls galore, television cameras and radio and newspaper interviewers following them around and the red carpet treatment from the county clerks attending them—all just because they had come to apply for some identification cards.

What the fuss was all about was the fact that the 25 senior citizens were the first to receive newly-devised personal identification cards Friday morning. The seniors and Kasper, whose brainchild the new IDs are, loved every minute of it.

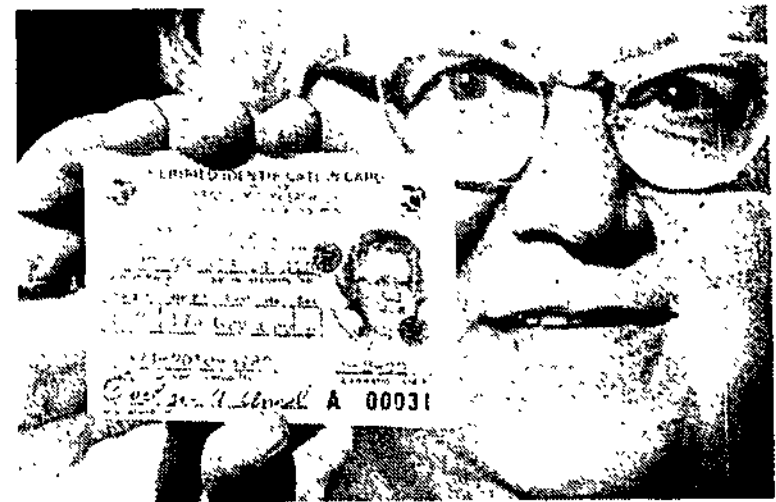

"THERE'S MY GIRL," the debonair Kasper beamed when Mrs. Henry Hofstede, president of the club, announced their arrival. The group, after stepping off a specially chartered bus provided by Mayor Roland Meyer, was in a rousing mood following a noisy ride down the Kennedy Expressway. For many it was the first trip to the Chicago Loop in years.

The royal treatment started as the ladies and three men alighted from the bus at the door of the County Building on Clark Street, with no less than a police officer as doorman.

Inside, the club members boarded two elevators to go to the second floor clerk's office where the new identification department is located.

"I feel like I'm getting married again," one of the women laughed as the group passed the marriage license bureau located next to the new department.

Before the seniors received their $3 cards, which Kasper calls "a favorite project of mine" to provide acceptable identification for persons, county officials including Kasper were processed for their cards.

THE CARDS WILL be available to the general public starting today.

"Mr. Kasper, we're from Rolling Meadows," Mrs. Hofstede told the clerk, pulling him aside from the others.

"Oh you doll. Look, we've got all these people from Rolling Meadows," Kasper said out loud. "Have some coffee and a roll while you wait."

It seemed the 9:30 a.m. arrival of the group was a little premature, ("we didn't expect them until 10 a.m." one aide said,) but the seniors were more than happy to wait while the cameras aimed at them and Mrs. Hofstede was ushered aside for interviews.

"The cards will make it easier for us to cash checks," she told a television interviewer. Did she have trouble cashing checks, the interviewer asked? "Oh, no, I don't have any trouble cashing checks because I don't cash that many checks," she laughed.

THEN CAME KASPER, arms enfolding some of the ladies, to pose for pictures.

"I thought we were going to march in and march out like a bunch of old ladies," Mrs. Hofstede said. "I never expected this kind of treatment."

The group's trip and selection as first recipients of the cards stemmed from a visit some months ago by Kasper to the Rolling Meadows City Hall.

"We had come there to speak to them and in the conversation this came up," Kasper said. "We started kicking it

Group answers Young

Independent voters 'not pro-liberal'

Officials of the Independent Voters of Illinois (IVI) rejected claims by U. S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, that their group is pro-liberal.

In a letter to Young dated July 26, Lee J. Epstein, IVI state chairperson, said that affiliation with the IVI or the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) "does not in any way guarantee a candidate IVI support."

Epstein wrote the letter in response to Young's refusal to be interviewed by the IVI because of a link between the organization and Young's Democratic election opponent Abner J. Mikva. Mikva is a national vice chairman of the ADA, with which the IVI is affiliated.

IN HIS LETTER, Epstein noted that the IVI chose not to endorse several people connected with the IVI in elections for the 1970 Constitutional Convention, a state representative's position and village trustee position. The group makes endorsements in village elections especially in the North Shore where it has an active chapter there.

"IVI felt that other candidates in the elections — or none — merited our support," he said.

Kirsten L. Svare, IVI executive director, declined to name the candidates because there's "no need to hurt these people."

"We were just answering Young's charges and pointing out that association with the IVI and ADA doesn't guarantee an endorsement," she said.

EPSTEIN ALSO REJECTED Young's suggestion that the IVI not endorse a congressional candidate from the 10th district "since, obviously, the IVI would be strongly biased in favor" of Mikva.

The IVI official said he was "dumfounded at your (Young's) request that we sit out the 10th Congressional District this time."

"One of the IVI's chief activities is endorsing candidates for office," he said noting that most candidates, "whether or not they agree with IVI viewpoints, welcome the chance to present themselves to the IVI."

"They feel, as we do, that organizations that endorse candidates make a valuable contribution to the political process," Epstein added.

Young's charge that the IVI is not "a truly independent organization" and has a "liberal bias" was denied by Epstein.

"IVI'S ENDORSEMENTS run the political gamut from liberal to rather conservative," Epstein citing IVI endorsements of State Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill.; Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill.; former Illinois Gov. Richard Ogilvie; Gov. Daniel Walker; States Attorney Bernard Carey; Peter Bensinger, Republican candidate for Cook County Sheriff; Lola Flamm, Republican candidate for Cook County clerk; and Abner J. Mikva, Republican candidate for Cook County assessor.

"We endorse candidates for both parties, both liberal and conservative, whom we feel will do the best job," he said. "We look for honest, effective, hard-working, committed persons."

Young declined a second invitation to be interviewed by the IVI.

"I see no reason why I should submit my candidacy to such a biased jury," he said. "I hope that when you endorse Mr. Mikva, you will state the full facts in connection with your endorsement."

Meeting slated today

NEC heads to skip Martwick session

by WANDALYN RICE
Officials from the Northwest Educational Cooperative who have been summoned to Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick's office today to discuss the charges about Dwyer School, Arlington Heights, will not show up.

Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC; John Wightman, director of all special education programs in the NEC area; John Whipple, former clinical director of Dwyer School; and Robert Taylor, coordinator of the Dwyer elementary school program, had been ordered by Martwick to come to his office today.

Martwick had said he wanted to discuss the charges which have been made about improper operation of the school with the four and indicated he would consider suspending their teaching and school administration certificates if their answers were unsatisfactory.

FRIDAY, Mrs. Kinney, and Edith Freund, president of the NEC governing board, were drafting a letter to Martwick explaining the four would not appear because Mrs. Kinney will be in the hospital and the governing board believes a report being drafted on the charges will answer Martwick's questions.

"Dr. Kinney will not be available to provide administrative leadership and we don't believe it would be a good idea to have them appear at this time," Mrs. Freund said, in explaining the letter.

Mrs. Freund and other members of the governing board are drafting a report to be submitted Wednesday to State School Supt. Michael Bakalis with detailed answers to the charges made by present and former members of the Dwyer School staff.

The charges had included allegations that children were abused and beaten with paddles, that Whipple and other members of the staff were unqualified for their jobs and that Whipple allowed staff members to engage in "unprofessional" activities in front of children.

THE GOVERNING board at 3 a.m. Thursday, after a seven-hour meeting with Whipple, his attorney and Leo Athas, general counsel for Bakalis, announced that Whipple was being transferred from Dwyer to a full-time position with the Center for Child and Family Studies, which provides counseling for students who remain at their regular schools.

In addition, the board said it would file the report with Bakalis' office.

Officials from Martwick's office said Friday the county superintendent would probably have a statement if the four he has summoned do not show up this morning. Earlier, County officials had indicated they did not believe the NEC action changed the need for the meeting today.

Martwick apparently has the authority under Illinois law to suspend the teaching or administration certificates of the four if he finds evidence of "immorality, incompetency, unprofessional conduct or neglect of any professional duty." If a person's certificate is suspended, he may appeal the action to the State Certification Board and receive a hearing which may overturn the action.

Thieves net $2,300 from burglaries

Thieves netted more than $2,300 in cash and merchandise in a series of burglaries late last week. They struck at a motel, several stores and two vehicles in what police say appear to be unrelated incidents.

Harvey D. Rosenthal, a guest at the Des Plaines Holiday Inn, 1450 Touhy Ave., Des Plaines, told police he was asleep when thieves broke into his room and took more than $1,200 in jewelry and other items.

The door to his room had been pried open and a dresser drawer containing the jewelry was stolen.

A radio valued at nearly $600 was stolen early Thursday from a truck in a parking lot near 1744 Oakton St., police said.

A PASSENGER door was forced open and the radio was taken from the rear of the truck, according to reports.

In another burglary, $480 in cash and auto accessories was taken from the S & H Citgo service station, 2579 Ballard Rd., late Wednesday or early Thursday, police said.

A bay door window was broken, probably to gain entry, according to reports. A pair of pliers was then used to get through one door of a supply room and a second door was forced open with a crowbar. The pliers were found on the floor nearby.

Most of the stolen cash was taken from a safe in the room and also missing were five 12-volt batteries and 12 boxes of spark plugs. The car accessories were worth $200.

AN ATTENDANT working in a gas station across the street told police he noticed two autos, a blue Ford Mustang, and a Cadillac near the burglarized station a short time before the break-in was reported.

Bud's Barber Shop, 1602 Oakton St., also was burglarized for $88 in cash and other items, early Thursday, said police.

According to reports a door window was discovered broken and the burglars apparently reached through to open the door.

Once inside the burglars took a hair dryer, comb and $45 in cash.

Mowbrays win national sailboat title after 14 years in race

by JOHN MAES
Kenneth and Ellie Mowbray of Des Plaines made enough waves to win a national sailboat title during a championship regatta in Springfield.

The Mowbrays, who live at 728 Laurel, took first place in the race last week sponsored by the National Rebel Assn.

"At the end of the series, I just scored well enough to be national champ," said Mowbray, 43, who is commodore of the Des Plaines Yacht Club.

THE MOWBRAYS finished ahead of 65 other boats in elimination races last Saturday and a 33-boat championship round Sunday.

The Mowbrays also were awarded a trophy for the best husband-wife team in the race.

Mowbray sailed his 18-foot, fiber glass Rebel sailboat well enough to finish ahead of competitors from all over the country including Texas, Virginia, Ohio, Michigan and Indiana.

Mowbray said he was especially proud of winning the top honors because the highest he had ever been able to finish was eighth place after 14 years of competing in the race.

LAST YEAR, MOWBRAY won the Egyptian Cup regatta, a 40-boat timed-event held in Carbondale.

The Des Plaines Yacht Club sent nine boats to the Springfield race. Daniel Socha, 345 Stratford Rd., finished seventh in the championship, while Mark Quinliff, 936 Cora St.; Clayton Mott, 1159 Jeanette St.; Thomas Washburn, Leo Helphinstine and Ronald Whyman also placed.

Overall, the club won the second-place team trophy and was cited for being the largest fleet competing in the event.

Local youngsters also did well in the competition. John Mowbray and Jeffery Socha finished third and seventh, respectively. In the regatta for 14-to 17-year-olds, Grace Mott placed third in the 11-to 13-year-old division.

The Des Plaines Yacht Club conducts its own races on Lake Opeka, Howard and Leo Streets, on Sunday afternoons.

'Point of Law' radio program begins today

The Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. will sponsor a new award-winning series of five-minute radio programs entitled "Point of Law" beginning today.

The programs, produced by Signal Productions of Hollywood, will be heard Monday through Friday at 5:25 p.m. on WLTD-AM, 1590.

The programs are based on actual court records, said John E. Owens, NWSBA president. He said the programs should provide valuable information and be entertaining.

The programs will cover a range of legal situations in criminal and civil law. Each story was selected for dramatic value and because it illustrates a point of law every well-informed person should know, Owens said.

The programs are sponsored locally by the bar association and the Citizens Bank and Trust Co. of Park Ridge. The series was recently awarded a George Washington Honor Medal by the Freedom Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa.

Century-old hardware store gets first historical marker

The Des Plaines Historical Society presented its first historical marker recently to the grandsons of the founder of a 100-year-old hardware and industrial supply store in the city.

Historical society officials selected B. F. Kinder, Sons, Inc., 1545 Ellinwood St., to honor with the first in a series of historical markers.

The bronze plaque was presented to James and David Kinder, grandsons of the store's founder, Benjamin F. Kinder.

The store, started in 1872, is the oldest continuous business to be operated by the same family in Des Plaines, according to historical society officials.

In addition to the commemoration of the family business, the society also noted that its headquarters are in the Kinder family home, 777 Lee St.

The plaque was designed by Art Welter, vice president of the society and chairman of its plaque and citation committee. The plaque was cast at Main Township West High School under the direction of Robert Cochran, chairman of the school's industrial education department.

A continuing program of awarding plaques to the oldest businesses, industries and private residents and citations to the pioneer citizens is being planned by the historical society in conjunction with the city's celebration of the nation's bicentennial.

Police investigate possible cab arson

Des Plaines police are investigating the possible arson of a Martin Cab Co. vehicle. The incident occurred Sunday.

According to police reports, a cab parked in the alleyway in the 1500 block of Miner Street was found burning shortly after midnight.

The cab interior was gutted with damage estimated at $500.

Martin Cab Co. is located at 1501 Miner St., Des Plaines.

Service in unincorporated areas

Free fire protection may be reconsidered

by JERRY THOMAS

Elk Grove Village Trustee Nanci Vanderweel probably will make a motion Tuesday for a comprehensive review of a village policy to provide free fire protection and ambulance service to residents in nearby unincorporated sections of Elk Grove Township.

Mrs. Vanderweel, who cast the only dissenting vote last January to provide service as a stop-gap measure while state lawmakers considered legislation to protect the areas, responded to questions last week about what action the village would take now that the legislation had failed to gain approval.

A rural aid bill, which would have empowered townships to tax for emergency services, was resurrected after the Jan. 6 tragedy which took the life of a woman in unincorporated Elk Grove Township, Jean Pettee.

THE LAW WAS reintroduced in April, but has been bottled up in committees in both houses of the Illinois General Assembly.

Mrs. Pettee, who was eight months pregnant with her sixth child, died at her home which was three blocks from a hospital and only four blocks from the Elk Grove Village Fire Dept., while waiting for ambulance service from another fire department the family had contracted with which was located six miles away.

"When the village board adopted a policy to provide emergency services to township people, it was stressed it was an interim measure while legislators worked for passage of the bill that would, according to them, ensure protection for every resident in an unincorporated area," said Mrs. Vanderweel.

"Now the bill is virtually dead and buried in committee and I believe this board should review our former decision," she added.

BECAUSE THE family lived in an unincorporated pocket of the township where residents pay no fire tax to any district, they had the option of contracting with nearby Elk Grove Village, another department or not contracting with anyone.

Elk Grove Village operated on the policy that ambulance or fire service would be provided only in a life or death situation to unincorporated areas, unless contracted for in advance.

The Pettee's had no such contract, but had called the Elk Grove Village Fire Dept. ambulance for aid and were referred to another department.

In the investigation and furor that followed Mrs. Pettee's death, the village was exonerated of any blame in the incident.

However, in the midst of the issue, village officials decided they would change the village's previous policy and provide free service to unincorporated Elk Grove Township residents, whether it was paid for or not. That policy still stands.

WHEN THE POLICY was adopted, Trustee Vanderweel's was the only dissenting vote.

"I believed then, as I do now, that we have a responsibility to our village taxpayers to provide services they pay for in advance and by giving the services free to some people we are discriminating," she said.

Trustee Vanderweel said she will bring the question of review up at Tuesday's village board session.

"I don't want anyone to think that I want a reoccurrence of the Pettee tragedy. However when we passed the emergency service policy it was with the announcement that we will work hard and support passage of a bill that would ensure that protection to all unincorporated areas," she said.

"I DON'T KNOW if it will take any amendments or changes to re-resurrect that bill, but obviously we have to get things rolling again," said Trustee Vanderweel.

The bill would give townships the option to provide services to unincorporated areas. (Continued on Page 5)

Firm agrees to replace sod

A Niles firm, subject of several complaints by Elk Grove Village residents who said the company laid dead sod on their property, has agreed to replace the sod, an official for the Illinois Attorney General's Consumer Fraud and Protection Division said Thursday.

Paul Brott, a volunteer at the local consumer fraud office, said that Northern Nurseries have agreed to replace the dead sod by Aug. 24.

A complaint against the company was first brought by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Conroy, 1287 Parker Pl., who paid Northern $640 for the installation of sod. "A week later the new lawn looked like a checkerboard — every other row appeared dead," said Mrs. Conroy.

The Conroys contended the nursery laid dead sod; however, the field manager for Northern, Arthur Parr, contended the sod is dormant.

James Fizzell, horticulturist with the University of Illinois Agriculture Extension Service in Des Plaines, examined the sod and said it was "cooked," meaning it became heated while waiting for installation and destroyed all the top green growth.

$510 in tools taken from truck

A Schiller Park resident's truck parked in an Elk Grove Village parking lot was broken into and $510 worth of tools stolen.

Dennis Sedlac, of 10139 Hartford Ct., told police Wednesday someone broke into his locked truck parked at 1801 Landmeier Rd. Wednesday night.

THE CARDS WILL be available to the general public starting today.

"Mr. Kasper, we're from Rolling Meadows," Mrs. Hofstede told the clerk, pulling him aside from the others.

"Oh you doll. Look, we've got all these people from Rolling Meadows," Kasper said out loud. "Have some coffee and a roll while you wait."

It seemed the 9:30 a.m. arrival of the group was a little premature, ("we didn't expect them until 10 a.m." one aide said,) but the seniors were more than happy to wait while the cameras aimed at them and Mrs. Hofstede was ushered aside for interviews.

"The cards will make it easier for us to cash checks," she told a television interviewer. Did she have trouble cashing checks, the interviewer asked? "Oh, no, I don't have any trouble cashing checks because I don't cash that many checks," she laughed.

THEN CAME KUSPER, arms enfolding some of the ladies, to pose for pictures.

"I thought we were going to march in and march out like a bunch of old ladies," Mrs. Hofstede said. "I never expected this kind of treatment."

The group's trip and selection as first recipients of the cards stemmed from a visit some months ago by Kasper to the Rolling Meadows City Hall.

"We had come there to speak to them and in the conversation this came up," Kasper said. "We started kicking it

A public hearing called by the Elk Grove Village Plan Commission to hear village residents' comments on plans to build a funeral home in town turned into a three-way attorneys' battle with little talk from residents for or against the plan.

At Village Atty. Edward Hofert's advice and arguments on the importance of having all the legal briefs or expert opinion possible, the commission decided to postpone until Aug. 29 a decision on resident Anthony Maiorillo's plans to build a funeral home.

Plan commission members heard strong support of the plans from neighbors Thursday.

HOWEVER, FUNERAL home objectors convinced the commission to put off consideration until later this month to allow the resident's special use request to use his residential property to build a funeral home, because their new attorney knew nothing about the issues in the case.

After a series of motions, proposals and deadline delays and extensions, the commission decided to adjourn the hearing to allow the objectors' new attorney to file legal objections to the project.

"The action came as a surprise and disappointment," said petitioner Anthony Maiorillo, seeking a special use permit for a large 47,722 square-foot lot on which he plans to build a combined residence and funeral parlor.

Maiorillo had been turned down by both the plan commission and village board in a series of meetings during the past 2½ months when he sought transitional business office zoning for the property.

However, both commission and board encouraged him to seek a special use of his property on Arlington Heights Road and indicated the threat of possible further encroachment of business zoning was the only reason they denied his petition.

AT THURSDAY'S meeting, Maiorillo's attorney, Joseph Moschetti, repeated the presentation of plans for the funeral home for the commission. He offered assessor's appraisals of land values in the block his client wants to build on and said he believed the development would enhance the area.

After receiving encouragement from the commission and the village board, Maiorillo said he had expected some action Thursday.

The objectors' attorney, Robert Stucker, said he will challenge the legality of the commission's ability to grant a special use permit for residential property and wanted the time to bring in his own "experts" to disprove Moschetti's claim a funeral home would enhance the neighborhood.

It was not until after the long deliberations between attorneys that eventually led to the postponement of the meeting,

McGrenera denies funeral home 'dealings'

Elk Grove Village Plan Commission Chairman Edward McGrenera challenged a resident's accusation as neighborhood gossip that he had "dealings" with a funeral director petitioning the commission for zoning.

McGrenera took special pains Thursday at the end of a public hearing to consider allowing special use for a funeral home, to ascertain that an objector, Norman Denbroeder of 21 Kenilworth St., was sworn in as a witness.

Then McGrenera asked Denbroeder "Did you make allegations that there were dealings between the commission, and specifically me, and the petitioner at meetings or individually to your neighbors or others?"

Denbroeder admitted he had met with people to discuss the issue, but denied he had made any remarks about the commission's integrity.

McGrenera said later he was not accusing Denbroeder. "I just wanted to get his answer under oath as part of the record of the hearing. He said he had heard that Denbroeder had slandered him and wanted the record cleared by Denbroeder's statement."

Denbroeder would not comment on the issue later except to say he didn't understand the chairman's question.

that residents had an opportunity to say how they felt about location of the funeral home.

A WOMAN WHOSE property at 2 Lancaster is directly across from the side yard of the funeral home site said she does not object to the development.

She described the present old frame home the Maiorillo family lives in as an eyesore. She praised the petitioners plans as a great improvement.

Jim Good, who lives directly behind the site at 29 Kenilworth Lane, said, "They are damn good neighbors now, attempting to keep the lot looking good since they moved in a few months ago and I'd like to see them be able to go ahead with their plans."

Funeral directors from other neighboring villages spoke in the petitioners support and said they have been well accepted by residential neighbors. They called the four-lane road the funeral home would be built on an ideal site for a funeral home.

Radioactive materials lab under two flags

by BETTY LEE

The mystique that surrounds the Amersham/Searle Corp. begins with its sprawling cream-colored building just north of the Northwest Tollway in Arlington Heights. From a distance, a motorist can see only two flags fluttering in the sky.

At a closer range, the flags are identifiable as those of the United States and Great Britain. Amersham/Searle, jointly owned by G. D. Searle and Co. in Skokie and the Radiochemical Center in Amersham, England, produces radioactive products for medical purposes and scientific research. Some of the materials are being manufactured in Arlington Heights.

The general public had not heard much about the corporation until last February when some radioactive materials were reported missing. Three months later, the company made news again when a truck accidentally smashed two shipping vials of radioactive drugs at O'Hare Airport.

THE PUBLIC is unfamiliar with radioactive materials and knows little about how they are used, said Werner Wahl, president of the Amersham/Searle Corp. Because of the strict guidelines imposed by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, a tight control is kept on these products, he added.

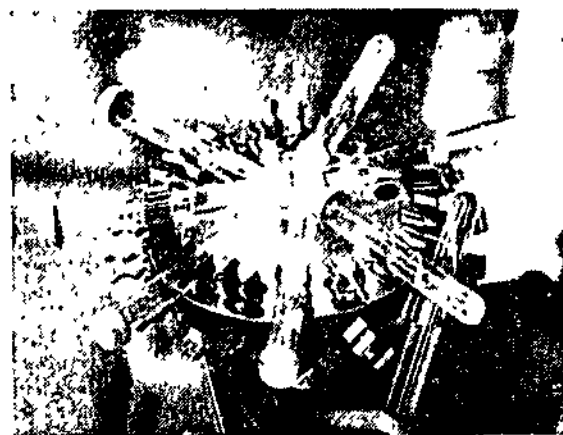

"If the same kind of attention were given to more dangerous materials, there would be countless lives saved," Wahl said.

Accidents do happen but happen seldom, Wahl said. There have been no more than six fatalities in the U.S. nuclear industry, he added. Special containers are currently being designed to minimize shipping accidents.

Because the public knows little about radioactive materials, The mystique remains and people harbor misconceptions. With visions of nuclear mushroom clouds or the after effects of the Hiroshima bombing, they may not know that radioactive drugs are now being used in many phases of medicine.

At the turn of the century, nuclear medicine was being explored and researchers knew then that radioactive materials could be used to obtain new information in diagnosing patients.

NUCLEAR MEDICINE is why medicine is making progress, said Wahl. The researchers are currently working on a radioactive drug for detecting a particular blood disorder, which is "much needed" in the field, he said.

TEST TUBES GET a spin on the rotary shaker, one of many pieces of equipment used in the laboratories of Amersham/Searle Corp., which handles radioactive materials for medical and research use.

With radioactive drugs, doctors can obtain more sophisticated information about their patients than before. Radioactive techniques will not replace other diagnostic techniques such as X-rays and electroencephalograms (EEG's), but will be used hand in hand, Wahl said.

A dose of a radioactive drug into the bloodstream enables the doctor to obtain "scans" at different areas of the patient's body. Gamma cameras, now commonly used at larger hospitals, record radioactive detections in the brain, thyroid, lungs, liver, heart and other organs of the body.

While an X-ray may not show any abnormalities in the brain, for example, a radioactive scan may detect trouble that could have gone unnoticed.

For those persons who are skeptical of the safety of these drugs, Wahl said that it would take a syringe the size of a human being to hold a dangerous dose. A typical injection is about the same amount of other shots given to patients, he added.

AND TO QUASH other misconceptions, radiation will not make men sterile. Massive doses of radiation from atom bombs or nuclear accidents could make men temporarily sterile, but an atom bomb dose is so large it usually kills people first.

Arlington Heights was chosen for the site for the American portion of the company because of its close proximity to the tollway and O'Hare Airport. Wahl, a nuclear chemist, became president when the facility at 2636 Clearbrook was first occupied in 1970.

Since the effectiveness of the radioactive materials depends on time, many are transported by air. Each package is carefully prepared by indicating the potency of the material with a sticker showing the international symbol for radioactivity.

At the Arlington Heights plant, there are no facilities to "make anything radioactive." Radioactive materials are manufactured at the Radiochemical Centre, which is the world's largest producer.

Radioactive-related materials are produced in Arlington Heights. Wahl said the company hopes to expand its manufacturing.

IF SMALL AMOUNTS of radioactive materials are assumed to be relatively harmless, why are the materials handled in such a meticulous manner?

According to Wahl, the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission has been involved in the nuclear industry since it began expanding after the world wars. The nuclear industry was and still is imposed with restrictions on secrecy, control and source of radioactive materials.

"It's currently being modified," said Wahl, who added that until the modifications occur, manufacturers must follow the present guidelines.

Wahl said he sees a future in nuclear medicine which is becoming "more and more common." An increasing number of doctors are becoming specialists, he added. "In the last three years it has become a separate specialty."

THE MASKED MAN above is Bob Platkowski, a research technician working at the radioactive drug production facility at Amersham/Searle. Platkowski must wear special clothing such as a mask, cap and gown before entering the area.

District 54 wrapup

Additional liaison, truant officer OK'd

An additional police liaison officer to work in the junior high schools and serve as truant officer for the district was approved by the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education.

The district has had an officer working in this capacity since Keller Junior High School opened in 1967. At that time two junior high schools were open, Keller and Frost Junior High School. Since this position began, two more junior highs have been opened.

To meet the growth of the district, the additional position was approved. The officer will work four hours a day in two junior high schools as an additional truant officer for the district.

An officer from the Schaumburg Police Department will serve Addams and Frost junior high schools. Eisenhower and Keller junior high schools will be served by an officer from the Hoffman Estates Police Dept.

The officers will be paid according to their regular salary. It is estimated the salary will range from $4,000 to $5,000 depending upon the officer's current salary.

Mileage payment increased

A 18 cents-per-mile compensation fee was approved for teachers on school business by the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education. Teachers had been receiving 12 cents per mile under the previous agreement in the teachers contract.

NEC heads to skip Martwick session

by WANDALYN RICE

Officials from the Northwest Educational Cooperative who have been summoned to Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick's office today to discuss the charges about Dwyer School, Arlington Heights, will not show up.

Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC; John Wightman, director of all special education programs in the NEC area; John Whipple, former clinical director of Dwyer School; and Robert Taylor, coordinator of the Dwyer elementary school program, had been ordered by Martwick to come to his office today.

Martwick had said he wanted to discuss the charges which have been made about improper operation of the school with the four and indicated he would consider suspending their teaching and school administration certificates if their answers were unsatisfactory.

FRIDAY, MRS. Kinney, and Edith Freund, president of the NEC governing board, were drafting a letter to Martwick explaining the four would not appear because Mrs. Kinney will be in the hospital and the governing board believes a report being drafted on the charges will answer Martwick's questions.

"Dr. Kinney will not be available to provide administrative leadership and we don't believe it would be a good idea to have them appear at this time," Mrs. Freund said, in explaining the letter.

Mrs. Freund and other members of the governing board are drafting a report to be submitted Wednesday to State School Supt. Michael Bakalis with detailed answers to the charges made by present and former members of the Dwyer School staff.

The charges had included allegations that children were abused and beaten with paddles; that Whipple and other members of the staff were unqualified for their jobs and that Whipple allowed staff members to engage in "unprofessional" activities in front of children.

THE GOVERNING board at 3 a.m. Thursday, after a seven-hour meeting with Whipple, his attorney and Leo Athas, general counsel for Bakalis, announced that Whipple was being transferred from Dwyer to a full-time position with the Center for Child and Family Studies, which provides counseling for students who remain at their regular schools.

In addition, the board said it would file the report with Bakalis' office.

Officials from Martwick's office said Friday the county superintendent would probably have a statement if the four he has summoned do not show up this morning. Earlier, County officials had indicted they did not believe the NEC action changed the need for the meeting today.

Martwick apparently has the authority under Illinois law to suspend the teaching or administration certificates of the four if he finds evidence of "immorality, incompetency, unprofessional conduct or neglect of any professional duty." If a person's certificate is suspended, he may appeal the action to the State Certification Board and receive a hearing which may overturn the action.

Elgin man, 33, charged with six burglaries

Elk Grove Village Police Sunday arrested an Elgin man for the alleged burglary of six businesses as he was leaving the scene of the last burglary.

Patrolmen Jeffrey Stone and Jon Scharpenter on squad patrol responding to an alarm shortly after midnight apprehended David L. Buchanan, 33, of Elgin as he was leaving a burglarized building in the Elk Grove Village Industrial Park.

Buchanan must appear in Cook County Circuit Court this morning for a bail hearing. He faces multiple burglary charges.

Buchanan was stopped by the police as he was leaving the parking lot of the Bano Metal Co. of 744 Lively Blvd. Police investigating the alarm found the building that also houses the Tempo Office Machinery Co. had been burglarized.

A further check of the area revealed that in addition to the building on Lively the Camis Mold and Tool at 1165 and the G.M. Mold Products, at 1167 Howard Street and two other businesses at 620 Bennett Street had been burglarized.

In all cases entry had been made by prying open the rear door of the buildings, police said.

Buchanan had burglary tools in his auto and police found items taken from the burglarized businesses, in Buchanan's possession.

Township bus lines may expand service

Elk Grove Township's senior citizen bus service may be available for use by some Rolling Meadows residents soon if a required licensing application is approved by the city.

Township officials plan to attend the next regular city council meeting Aug. 13 to request approval of the licensing application required by the city in order for the transportation system to operate in the city.

If the request is approved, it would entitle senior citizens living in Rolling Meadows south of Central Road to use the free township bus service.

TOWNSHIP SUPERVISOR Richard Hall said Wednesday Township Auditor Wayne Hult will attend the meeting with "all the necessary forms filled out" to apply for the license. Hall said if approval is granted the township would be ready to start the service "immediately" for senior citizens in the city's Elk Grove Township limits.

The township's bus service for senior citizens began in December, but has never operated in Rolling Meadows because of the license required by the city. A similar bus service for senior citizens in Palatine Township, which began in February, also has not operated in the city because township officials chose not to go through the licensing procedure.

"I'm a little confused," Hall said in reference to the city's licensing requirement. He said no other community in which the service is provided, including Elk Grove Village, parts of Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines, have required a license.

Before Palatine Township decided against seeking the city license, Mayor Roland Meyer said he might not sign a license application because of questions surrounding the legality of using federal revenue-sharing money to fund the service.

MEYER REFERRED to an opinion handed down by Ill. Atty. Gen. William Scott which apparently bars townships from using the funds for transportation. Because townships are limited by Illinois law in the areas for which they may spend funds, Scott ruled revenue-sharing monies could only be used for areas on which the townships could expend their own funds.

Transportation is not included in that area, however, township officials have said the revenue use was justified as a service for the youth, poor and aged. Scott's ruling is under appeal from both Elk Grove and Wheeling townships.

Meyer could not be reached Wednesday to comment on whether he would consider signing a license for the Elk

Village to review fire policy

portunity to tax and contract for services. Mrs. Vanderweel said "obviously it met with opposition from some politicians because it would give power to the townships."

"I don't care if the governor or the township collects a fire tax; I believe the village has done its part and we have a duty now to review a policy we termed temporary when we adopted it seven months ago."

Assistant Village Mgr. Robert Franz said members of the Itasca Meadows Homeowners Assn. agreed to contract with Elk Grove Village for fire and ambulance service in February. The Pottee family lives in the Itasca Meadows subdivision.

Grove Township bus service.

The township service provides free transportation for senior citizens to any location in the township. Seniors make appointments for bus service one day prior to when it will be used and are picked up and taken home free. There also is a once-a-week service to the Woodfield and Randolph shopping centers.

Hall said only a small portion of the city would be entitled to the service, but the township was pursuing the licensing procedure to attempt to extend the service to the city's eligible seniors.

"We have received several calls from people wanting to use the service," Hall said. "We would like to serve those people and believe we can. We can't understand why Rolling Meadows wouldn't want us to."

THE CONTRACT was approved by the homeowners and is being reviewed by Village Atty. Edward Hofert, said Franz. The homeowners association volunteered to collect the $42 per home contract fee.

Franz said to date a few homeowners in unincorporated areas have signed up for individual contracts, but the association has not, to his knowledge, paid the village for subdivision service.

He added that the fire department has not been called to the Itasca Meadows area since the January tragedy.

Franz said the village is aware the rural aid bill did not pass in the House or Senate and said the village will contact legislators for some answers.

"We will want to know why it was put in committee and where does the bill or we go from here," he said.

18% aggregate pay hike on table

No early agreement seen on new teachers' contract

Contract talks between Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15 teachers and the school board resumed Aug. 1, but a quick settlement is not in sight. The two groups had not met to discuss the contract since June.

"Guarded optimism" is the term David Tomchek, Illinois Education Assn. representative, used to describe his view of a contract settlement before school starts Aug. 29. Teachers are scheduled to report for a teachers' institute Aug. 28.

Tomchek said the negotiating teams have not discussed issues, and that only minor points have been settled thus far in the talks. The biggest issue, an 18 per cent aggregate salary increase requested by the teachers, has not been discussed, he said.

AN AGGREGATE INCREASE includes the raise a teacher regularly gets for an additional year of experience, plus an added raise.

"It (the 18 per cent salary increase) might sound a little high, and I agree, it is high," said Tomchek. However, he said Dist. 15 teachers are not only trying to win a raise for themselves, but they are hoping to bring their salaries in line with surrounding school districts which pay their teachers more.

At present, Dist. 15 teacher salaries range from $8,250 (bachelor's degree and no experience) to $16,306 (master's degree plus 30 graduate hours) annually. The salaries are behind neighboring school districts in Arlington Heights (Dist. 25), which pays between $8,800 and $18,382, and Schaumburg (Dist. 54), which pays between $9,000 and $17,550. Tomchek mentioned that Dist. 15 used to be on a par with Wheeling Dist. 21, but that district's recent contract settlement now pays teachers between $9,000 and $17,010.

"Of course, we're still nowhere near the scale paid to high school teachers, which is the greatest inequity," Tomchek said. Teachers in High School Dist. 214 are paid between $9,233 and $21,256; those in High School Dist. 211 are paid between $8,950 and $19,019, but the teachers there are negotiating a new contract.

TOMCHEK SAID this year is the first time Dist. 15 is negotiating a so-called "master contract," which includes settlements on working conditions, teacher evaluation, the handling of grievances and leaves of absence. Districts typically negotiate only salaries each year, he said.

Deputy Supt. Joseph Kiszka, speaking on behalf of Frank Whiteley, Dist. 15 superintendent who was on vacation, issued the following statement:

"The (Aug. 1) meeting was relatively brief. The consultants for each respective group appear to have clarified or resolved certain key issues. However, a definitive report is not available at this time.

"The next meeting date has not been established, but will be agreed upon at an early time. Both groups are working diligently to arrive at a settlement and substantial progress has been made."

Tomchek said two smaller negotiating groups, composed of Whiteley and District Negotiator Richard Zwieback for the administration, and Thomas Kelley and Tomchek for the teachers, will meet Aug. 14 or 15 to deal with the many unresolved issues in the contract. Kelley is chairman of the teachers' negotiations team.

Dist. 15 will employ 605 teachers this fall, Tomchek said that about 550 teachers in the district are IEA members.

TELEVISION CAMERAS and a filmed interview were a part of the fun Friday morning for Mrs. Hofstede and her Golden Years Club members at the County Building. Other members looked on and enjoyed.

Old Madrid plans may get tentative approval today

Revised development plans for the Old Madrid complex may receive tentative approval today pending the developer's acceptance of a compromise proposal resolving five remaining areas of disagreement.

Palatine officials offered the compromise proposal last week in hopes of expediting the hearing on the revised plans for the development of the 63-acre parcel at Baldwin and Hicks roads.

Howard Sellegren, the developer, is expected to accept, reject or offer an alternative compromise proposal at today's 8 p.m. meeting of the planning, building and zoning committee of the Palatine Village Board at village hall, 54 S. Brockway St.

THREE OF THE areas of disagreement between Sellegren and village board members involve the developed section of the property where a 14-story apartment building is located. The board, in its compromise package, suggested the 14th floor be developed as penthouse apartments instead of the proposed restaurant and lounge; additional landscaping be done to conform with proposed landscaping in other sections; and land for a well site and underground reservoir be donated to the village.

The other two items in the compromise package are the issuance of four liquor licenses instead of the originally requested seven and a timetable calling for completion of the entire development by 1980.

The revised plans, if approved, would change the concept of the Old Madrid complex from high-rise apartment buildings to a condominium development with office, commercial and recreational use.

THE REVISED plans call for the construction of nine mid-rise condominium buildings with 421 dwelling units, a 10-acre recreation-commercial development, 8-acre office-commercial development and 18-acre shopping center. Current approved plans are for the construction of four 14-story apartment buildings and a 28-acre commercial development.

The Palatine Zoning Board of Appeals, following a series of hearings, has recommended denial of the revised plans. A two-thirds vote of the village board is now necessary to overturn the zoning board's recommendation.

The planning, building and zoning committee recommendation will have to be formally acted upon by the village board at a regularly scheduled board meeting.

Dwyer officials will skip meeting today with Martwick

Facilities 62% paid for

Buehler Y still owes $600,000

Palatine's Buehler YMCA opened in October, 1973. Nine months, 173 programs and 8,000 members later, 62 per cent of the facilities' cost has been paid.

The YMCA must still pay $600,000 of the total $3.2 million cost of the new facility on Northwest Highway and Countryside Drive.

Herman Hertog, executive director of the YMCA, said that a pledge to help support the building payments, payable over a four-year period, is one of the five "responsibilities that members are required to meet."

Hertog said that the pledges, the amount of which are set by each member, have been collected and account for the 62 per cent payment on the building costs.

A $400,000 YEARLY operating budget pays the maintenance costs of the new building. Forty per cent of the operating budget comes from annual non-instructional program fees, another 40 per cent from instructional program fees, and 20 per cent from operating fund contributions.

"The Buehler YMCA members have assumed the responsibility of paying for the facilities they use and supporting the building's payment and maintenance," Hertog said.

The Buehler YMCA, unlike other Chicago area YMCAs, is not funded by charity organizations such as The Crusade of Mercy or the United Fund and local taxes are not levied. Membership contributions

Celebrities!

It all started when 25 senior citizens went on TV —and all they wanted were new county ID cards

by TONI GINETTI

The ladies and gentlemen of the Rolling Meadows Golden Years Club never had it so good.

Cook County Clerk Stanley T. Kasper laughing and joking with the ladies, coffee and sweet rolls galore, television cameras and radio and newspaper interviewers following them around and the red carpet treatment from the county clerks attending them — all just because they had come to apply for some identification cards.

What the fuss was all about was the fact that the 25 senior citizens were the first to receive newly-devised personal identification cards Friday morning. The seniors and Kasper, whose brainchild the new IDs are, loved every minute of it.

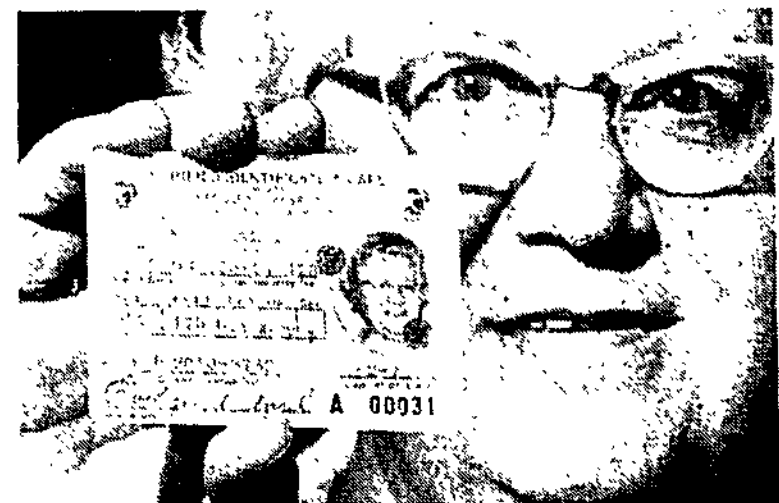

"THERE'S MY GIRL," the debonair Kasper beamed when Mrs. Henry Hofstede, president of the club, announced their arrival. The group, after stepping off a specially chartered bus provided by Mayor Roland Meyer, was in a rousing mood following a noisy ride down the Kennedy Expressway. For many it was the first trip to the Chicago Loop in years.

The royal treatment started as the ladies and three men alighted from the bus at the door of the County Building on Clark Street, with no less than a police officer as doorman.

Inside, the club members boarded two elevators to go to the second floor clerk's office where the new identification department is located.

"I feel like I'm getting married again," one of the women laughed as the group passed the marriage license bureau located next to the new department.

Before the seniors received their $3 cards, which Kasper calls "a favorite project of mine" to provide acceptable identification for persons, county officials including Kasper were processed for their cards.

THE CARDS WILL be available to the general public starting today.

"Mr. Kasper, we're from Rolling Meadows," Mrs. Hofstede told the clerk, pulling him aside from the others.

"Oh you doll. Look, we've got all these people from Rolling Meadows," Kasper said out loud. "Have some coffee and a roll while you wait."

It seemed the 9:30 a.m. arrival of the group was a little premature. ("We didn't expect them until 10 a.m.," one aide said,) but the seniors were more than happy to wait while the cameras aimed at them and Mrs. Hofstede was ushered aside for interviews.

"The cards will make it easier for us to cash checks," she told a television interviewer. Did she have trouble cashing checks, the interviewer asked? "Oh, no, I don't have any trouble cashing checks because I don't cash that many checks," she laughed.

TIEN CAME KUSPER, arms enfolding some of the ladies, to pose for pictures.

"I thought we were going to march in and march out like a bunch of old ladies," Mrs. Hofstede said. "I never expected this kind of treatment."

The group's trip and selection as first recipients of the cards stemmed from a visit some months ago by Kasper to the Rolling Meadows City Hall.

"We had come there to speak to them, and in the conversation this came up," Kasper said. "We started kicking it

18% aggregate pay hike on table

No early agreement seen on new teachers' contract

Contract talks between Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15 teachers and the school board resumed Aug. 1, but a quick settlement is not in sight. The two groups had not met to discuss the contract since June.

"Guarded optimism" is the term David Tomchek, Illinois Education Assn. representative, used to describe his view of a contract settlement before school starts Aug. 29. Teachers are scheduled to report for a teachers' institute Aug. 28.

Tomchek said the negotiating teams have not discussed issues, and that only minor points have been settled thus far in the talks. The biggest issue, an 18 per cent aggregate salary increase requested by the teachers, has not been discussed, he said.

AN AGGREGATE INCREASE includes the raise a teacher regularly gets for an additional year of experience, plus an added raise.

"It (the 18 per cent salary increase) might sound a little high, and I agree, it is high," said Tomchek. However, he said Dist. 15 teachers are not only trying to win a raise for themselves, but they are hoping to bring their salaries in line with surrounding school districts which

pay their teachers more.

At present, Dist. 15 teacher salaries range from $8,250 (bachelor's degree and no experience) to $18,306 (master's degree plus 30 graduate hours) annually. The salaries are behind neighboring school districts in Arlington Heights (Dist. 25), which pays between $8,800 and $18,382, and Schaumburg (Dist. 54), which pays between $9,000 and $17,550. Tomchek mentioned that Dist. 15 used to be on a par with Wheeling Dist. 21, but that district's recent contract settlement now pays teachers between $9,000 and $17,010.

"Of course, we're still nowhere near the scale paid to high school teachers, which is the greatest inequity," Tomchek said. Teachers in High School Dist. 214 are paid between $9,233 and $21,256; those in High School Dist. 211 are paid between $8,950 and $19,019, but the teachers there are negotiating a new contract.

TOMCHEK SAID this year is the first time Dist. 15 is negotiating a so-called "master contract," which includes settlements on working conditions, teacher evaluation, the handling of grievances and leaves of absence. Districts typically negotiate only salaries each year, he said.

Deputy Supt. Joseph Kizka, speaking on behalf of Frank Whiteley, Dist. 15 superintendent who was on vacation, issued the following statement:

"The (Aug. 1) meeting was relatively brief. The consultants for each respective group appear to have clarified or resolved certain key issues. However, a definitive report is not available at this time.

"The next meeting date has not been established, but will be agreed upon at an early time. Both groups are working diligently to arrive at a settlement and substantial progress has been made."

Tomchek said two smaller negotiating groups, composed of Whiteley and District Negotiator Richard Zwieback for the administration, and Thomas Kelley and Tomchek for the teachers, will meet Aug. 14 or 15 to deal with the many unresolved issues in the contract. Kelley is chairman of the teachers' negotiations team.

Dist. 15 will employ 605 teachers this fall, Tomchek said that about 550 teachers in the district are IEA members.

TELEVISION CAMERAS and a filmed interview were a part of the fun Friday morning for Mrs. Hofstede and her Golden Years Club members at the County Building. Other members looked on and enjoyed.

Old Madrid plans may get tentative approval today

Revised development plans for the Old Madrid complex may receive tentative approval today pending the developer's acceptance of a compromise proposal resolving five remaining areas of disagreement.

Palatine officials offered the compromise proposal last week in hopes of expediting the hearing on the revised plans for the development of the 63-acre parcel at Baldwin and Hicks roads.

Howard Sellsgron, the developer, is expected to accept, reject or offer an alternative compromise proposal at today's 8 p.m. meeting of the planning, building and zoning committee of the Palatine Village Board at village hall, 54 S. Brockway St.

THREE OF THE areas of disagreement between Sellsgron and village board members involve the developed section of the property where a 14-story apartment building is located. The board, in its compromise package, suggested the 14th floor be developed as penthouse apartments instead of the proposed restaurant and lounge; additional landscaping be done to conform with proposed landscaping in other sections; and land for a well site and underground reservoir be donated to the village.

The other two items in the compromise package are the issuance of four liquor licenses instead of the originally requested seven and a timetable calling for completion of the entire development by 1980.

The revised plans, if approved, would change the concept of the Old Madrid complex from high-rise apartment buildings to a condominium development with office, commercial and recreational use.

THE REVISED plans call for the construction of nine mid-rise condominium buildings with 421 dwelling units, a 10-acre recreation-commercial development, 8-acre office-commercial development and 18-acre shopping center. Current approved plans are for the construction of four 14-story apartment buildings and a 26-acre commercial development.

The Palatine Zoning Board of Appeals, following a series of hearings, has recommended denial of the revised plans. A two-thirds vote of the village board is now necessary to overturn the zoning board's recommendation.

The planning, building and zoning committee recommendation will have to be formally acted upon by the village board at a regularly scheduled board meeting.

Dwyer officials will skip meeting today with Martwick

by WANDALYN RICE

Officials from the Northwest Educational Cooperative who have been summoned to Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick's office today to discuss the charges about Dwyer School, Arlington Heights, will not show up.

Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC; John Wightman, director of all special education programs in the NEC area; John Whipple, former clinical director of Dwyer School; and Robert Taylor, coordinator of the Dwyer elementary school program, had been ordered by Martwick to come to his office today.

Martwick had said he wanted to discuss the charges which have been made about improper operation of the school with the four and indicated he would consider suspending their teaching and school administration certificates if their answers were unsatisfactory.

FRIDAY, MRS. Kinney, and Edith Freund, president of the NEC governing board, were drafting a letter to Martwick explaining the four would not appear because Mrs. Kinney will be in the hospital and the governing board believes a report being drafted on the charges will answer Martwick's questions.

"Dr. Kinney will not be available to provide administrative leadership and we don't believe it would be a good idea to have them appear at this time," Mrs. Freund said, in explaining the letter.

Mrs. Freund and other members of the governing board are drafting a report to be submitted Wednesday to State School Supt. Michael Bakalis with detailed answers to the charges made by present and former members of the Dwyer School staff.

The charges had included allegations that children were abused and beaten with paddles, that Whipple and other members of the staff were unqualified for their jobs and that Whipple allowed staff members to engage in "unprofessional" activities in front of children.

THE GOVERNING board at 3 a.m. Thursday, after a seven-hour meeting with Whipple, his attorney and Leo Athas, general counsel for Bakalis, announced that Whipple was being transferred from Dwyer to a full-time position with the Center for Child and Family Studies, which provides counseling for students who remain at their regular schools.

In addition, the board said it would file the report with Bakalis' office.

Officials from Martwick's office said Friday the county superintendent would probably have a statement if the four he has summoned do not show up this morning. Earlier, County officials had indicated they did not believe the NEC action changed the need for the meeting today.

Martwick apparently has the authority under Illinois law to suspend the teaching or administration certificates of the four if he finds evidence of "immorality, incompetency, unprofessional conduct or neglect of any professional duty." If a person's certificate is suspended, he may appeal the action to the State Certification Board and receive a hearing which may overturn the action.

Celebrities!

It all started when 25 senior citizens went on TV —and all they wanted were new county ID cards

by TONI GINETTI

The ladies and gentlemen of the Rolling Meadows Golden Years Club never had it so good.

Cook County Clerk Stanley T. Kuser laughing and joking with the ladies, coffee and sweet rolls galore, television cameras and radio and newspaper interviewers following them around and the red carpet treatment from the county clerks attending them — all just because they had come to apply for some identification cards.

What the fuss was all about was the fact that the 25 senior citizens were the first to receive newly-devised personal identification cards Friday morning. The seniors and Kuser, whose brainchild the new IDs are, loved every minute of it.

"THERE'S MY GIRL," the debonair Kuser beamed when Mrs. Henry Hofstede, president of the club, announced their arrival. The group, after stepping off a specially chartered bus provided by Mayor Roland Meyer, was in a rousing mood following a noisy ride down the Kennedy Expressway. For many it was the first trip to the Chicago Loop in years.

The royal treatment started as the ladies and three men alighted from the bus at the door of the County Building on Clark Street, with no less than a police officer as doorman.

Inside, the club members boarded two elevators to go to the second floor clerk's office where the new identification department is located.

"I feel like I'm getting married again," one of the women laughed as the group passed the marriage license bureau located next to the new department.

Before the seniors received their 33 cards, which Kuser calls "a favorite project of mine" to provide acceptable identification for persons, county officials including Kuser were processed for their cards.

THE CARDS WILL be available to the general public starting today.

"Mr. Kuser, we're from Rolling Meadows," Mrs. Hofstede told the clerk, pulling him aside from the others.

"Oh you doll. Look, we've got all these people from Rolling Meadows," Kuser said out loud. "Have some coffee and a roll while you wait."

It seemed the 9:30 a.m. arrival of the group was a little premature, ("we didn't expect them until 10 a.m." one aide said,) but the seniors were more than happy to wait while the cameras aimed at them and Mrs. Hofstede was ushered aside for interviews.

Facilities 62% paid for

Buehler Y still owes $600,000

Palatine's Buehler YMCA opened in October, 1973. Nine months, 175 programs and 8,000 members later, 62 per cent of the facilities' cost has been paid.

The YMCA must still pay $600,000 of the total $3.2 million cost of the new facility on Northwest Highway and Countryside Drive.

Herman Hertog, executive director of the YMCA, said that a pledge to help support the building payments, payable over a four-year period, is one of the five "responsibilities that members are required to meet."

Hertog said that the pledges, the amount of which are set by each member, have been collected and account for the 62 per cent payment on the building costs.

A $100,000 YEARLY operating budget pays the maintenance costs of the new building. Forty per cent of the operating budget comes from annual non-instructional program fees, another 40 per cent from instructional program fees, and 20 per cent from operating fund contributions.

"The Buehler YMCA members have assumed the responsibility of paying for the facilities they use and supporting the building's payment and maintenance," Hertog said.

The Buehler YMCA, unlike other Chicago area YMCAs, is not funded by charity organizations such as The Crusade of Mercy or the United Fund and local taxes are not levied. Membership contributions (Continued on Page 5)

UNDAUNTED BY DRIZZLE, about 100 people gathered for the Jesus Rally's opening session Thursday evening. Onlookers stayed dry in cars.

FLYING FINGERS AND joyous hearts provided inspired music at the weekend Jesus Rally. From left, Mal Harding, Kathy Schank and Penney Perkins presented music with a heavy folk-rock flavor. Young people in the crowd said the Christian message took on greater meaning to them in music.

Rallying 'round the gospel

Galilean Ministry tries to bring religion out of the pulpit

DARRELL HURTZ, organizer of the Galilean Ministry and its Jesus Rally, spoke to the crowd between musical selections.

by MARILYN McDONALD
"And they'll know we are Christians by our love, by our love, yes, they'll know we are Christians by our love," the young folk group sang, earnestly strumming guitars and inviting the crowd of about 100 to sing along.

The onlookers huddled under umbrellas or hunched up their coats against the drizzle Thursday evening in Palatine Community Park as the Galilean Ministry's weekend long Jesus Rally got under way.

Young people, most of them clad in jeans and sandals, many with Bibles tucked under one arm dominated the crowd. Some sat on blankets, others on lawn chairs. Still others sat in trucks or cars pulled up to the curb near the park pool where folk groups performed.

DARRELL HURTZ, 34, organizer of the rally and leader of the 40-member Galilean Ministry, hovered on the outskirts of the crowd, occasionally stepping up to the microphone between songs to remind the crowd of Christ's love for them.

"The purpose of the rally is to confront mainly teenagers with the claims of Jesus Christ," he said. "Life is not a mystery, and we do have a purpose."

Hurtz who is from Carpentersville, organized the Galilean Ministry earlier this year with a group of Christians from Palatine. The group meets for informal worship and Bible study at one member's home. This weekend's rally was their first group venture.

"My feelings are that we need a group of Christians who are not too structured, mainly to attract young people — teens or young marrieds," Hurtz said.

Between songs, soft responses of "amen" and "hallelujah" rose from the crowd. Hurtz's church group encourages more open display of religious emotion because "... If we love the Lord we will be excited."

TWO 18-YEAR-OLDS from Palatine's St. Theresa's Catholic Church, Sandy Sletmann and Starr French, came to the rally with a friend, Cornelia Schuelke, 17. Cornelia urged her two friends to come with her because "I want to bring more kids to know how wonderful it is to know Jesus Christ."

Cornelia said that the whole informal setting and music was a better way to get one's faith across.

"Sometimes your faith gets lost," Starr said, commenting on the established church. "This revitalizes it."

A large group of teenagers stood to the left of the performance area waiting to perform. They were "The Common Ground," a 25-member singing group from the Arlington Heights Free Church, led by the church's musical director, Frank Elkenberry.

Nancy Bell, 16, of Prospect Heights, a stylishly dressed young woman with a friendly face, said the group has been together about a year. Dan Tonnesen from Barrington, who claims he's 16 while his friends affirm that he's 15, sings a solo during the group's performance that sounds professional beyond his years.

The group obviously has fun with their material and with each other, but Dan says their religious singing is "very meaningful."

DAVE EITEMILLER, a 15-year-old member of "The Common Ground" said that for many of the group's members, this music gets their faith across better than a traditional church service. "It's really a part of our lives," he added.

As the group swung into the musical story of Jesus, "Get Ready," backed by drums, bass, electric piano and guitar, the crowd joined in the joyous spirit of the music. Enthusiastic applause was given after each number, and the crowd smiled back at the happy faces of "The Common Ground."

Kathy Oval, 35, and Elnora Polacek, 38, two Carpentersville housewives, came out to the rally with umbrellas and lawn chairs to hear the Christian music. Mrs. Oval is part of a women's Bible study group led by Hurtz. "He's a wonderful man, and we love him," she said.

Mrs. Oval enjoyed the modern music as another way of sharing the Christian faith. She said that she also enjoyed more traditional forms of worship. Mrs. Polacek agreed, saying that she did not prefer one type of musical religious expression over the other. "Each has its place," she said.

As "The Common Ground" finished its set, more people had joined the group and the rain had stopped. As the sun set behind pinkish clouds, it seemed coincidental, but right, that a rainbow appeared in the east.

Youth units may name directors

A director for the Palatine Township Bridge Youth Center and a director for the new Regional Youth Services Bureau are expected to be appointed this month.

The Palatine Township Youth Committee met during the weekend to discuss the selection of a new executive director for The Bridge. Former Bridge director Don Hago left at the beginning of July to accept the position of assistant director of Cook County Youth Services.

The director's position will pay between $12,500 and $14,500 a year.

A search has also been conducted for a director of the newly formed Regional Youth Services Bureau. The bureau serves Elk Grove, Wheeling and Palatine Townships with a hot-line and health services that have previously been offered by The Bridge Youth Center in Palatine Township.

Twenty-four persons applied for the regional director's position. Seven of the candidates were out-of-state, and 12 of the candidates had masters degrees in various areas. The median age of the candidates is 27 years.

The regional director would be responsible for coordinating both the hot-line and health services which have been recently regionalized.

The regional director will receive a yearly salary of $12,000 to $13,000.

"We're not here to sell services. Anyone who uses the facilities actually has an investment in them," Hertog said.

And statistics show the concept is effective. The Buehler YMCA established in May, 1968, had only 4,000 members in the northwest suburban area, five staff members and a handful of programs before its new facility was built.

SIX YEARS LATER, the YMCA has had to increase its program offerings by 400 per cent and offer 6 seven-week sessions throughout the year, to meet the needs of 12,000 members.

Most of the major construction work on the facility has been completed. The three-level building includes a gymnasium, pool, handball courts and separate men's and women's fitness centers.

Village to supply bags to merchants

The Palatine Chamber of Commerce and Industry will continue to supply merchants with garbage bags similar to the previous village-approved garbage bags.

The village has rescinded its garbage bag ordinance setting standards for bags, but Browning-Ferris Co. is not obligated to remove debris that falls out of broken bags.

The garbage bags provided by the chamber are 33-gallon bags made of a strong plastic that are comparable in price to the standard commercial bags.

The names of retailers handling the garbage bags can be obtained by calling the chamber at 358-3327.

Vandals turn from graffiti to using axes on equipment

by REGINA OEHLER

Vandals at the Rolling Meadows Park District are spending less time writing four letter words on buildings and more time wielding axes on equipment, say park officials.

Steve Person, superintendent of parks and recreation, said that although the amount of writing on walls is down from past years, more equipment is being destroyed.

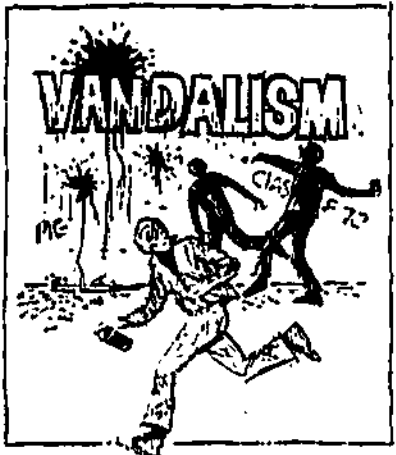

Besides axes, vandals are using crowbars, wrenches and many other kinds of tools, said Harry Kaczmarek, superintendent of parks. "Sometimes I think they're more fully equipped than the park district," he added.

No estimates on the amount of money spent replacing items destroyed by vandals can be obtained. Person did say that about 15 man hours a week are spent patching up the damage.

MONEY TO REPLACE destroyed items comes out of taxes; it is not covered by insurance, Person said.

Vandalism is higher during the summer months, said Kaczmarek. The two parks hit hardest by the tool wielding marauders are Campbell and North Salk parks, he said.

The biggest problem is the bridge behind the Sports Complex, 3900 Owl Dr.,

North Salk, said park district officials. The bridge has been damaged eight times and axes were used three of those times, said Kaczmarek. He said a recent repair bill for that bridge came up to $600.

Vandals this year also tipped over the park district's slide, broke into the light switch box at the tennis courts and baseball fields, tore apart the windbreakers

FRIDAY, MRS. Kinney, and Edith Freund, president of the NEC governing board, were drafting a letter to Martwick explaining the four would not appear because Mrs. Kinney will be in the hospital and the governing board believes a report being drafted on the charges will answer Martwick's questions.

"Dr. Kinney will not be available to provide administrative leadership and we don't believe it would be a good idea to have them appear at this time," Mrs. Freund said, in explaining the letter.

Mrs. Freund and other members of the governing board are drafting a report to be submitted Wednesday to State School Supt. Michael Bakalis with detailed answers to the charges made by present and former members of the Dwyer School staff.

The charges had included allegations that children were abused and beaten with paddles, that Whipple and other members of the staff were unqualified for their jobs and that Whipple allowed staff members to engage in "unprofessional" activities in front of children.

THE GOVERNING board at 3 a.m. Thursday, after a seven-hour meeting with Whipple, his attorney and Leo Athas, general counsel for Bakalis, announced that Whipple was being transferred from Dwyer to a full-time position with the Center for Child and Family Studies, which provides counseling for students who remain at their regular schools.

In addition, the board said it would file the report with Bakalis' office.

Officials from Martwick's office said Friday the county superintendent would probably have a statement if the four he has summoned do not show up this morning. Earlier, County officials had indicated they did not believe the NEC action changed the need for the meeting today.

Martwick apparently has the authority under Illinois law to suspend the teaching or administration certificates of the four if he finds evidence of "immorality, incompetency, unprofessional conduct or neglect of any professional duty." If a person's certificate is suspended, he may appeal the action to the State Certification Board and receive a hearing which may overturn the action.

TELEVISION CAMERAS AND a filmed interview were a part of the fun Friday morning for Mrs. Hofstede and her Golden Years Club members at the County Building. Other members looked on and enjoyed.

It all started when 25 senior citizens went on TV —and all they wanted were new county ID cards

by TONI GINETTI

The ladies and gentlemen of the Rolling Meadows Golden Years Club never had it so good.

Cook County Clerk Stanley T. Kuser laughing and joking with the ladies, coffee and sweet rolls galore, television cameras and radio and newspaper interviewers following them around and the red carpet treatment from the county clerk's attending them — all just because they had come to apply for some identification cards.

What the fuss was all about was the fact that the 25 senior citizens were the first to receive newly-devised personal identification cards Friday morning. The seniors and Kuser, whose brainchild the new IDs are, loved every minute of it.

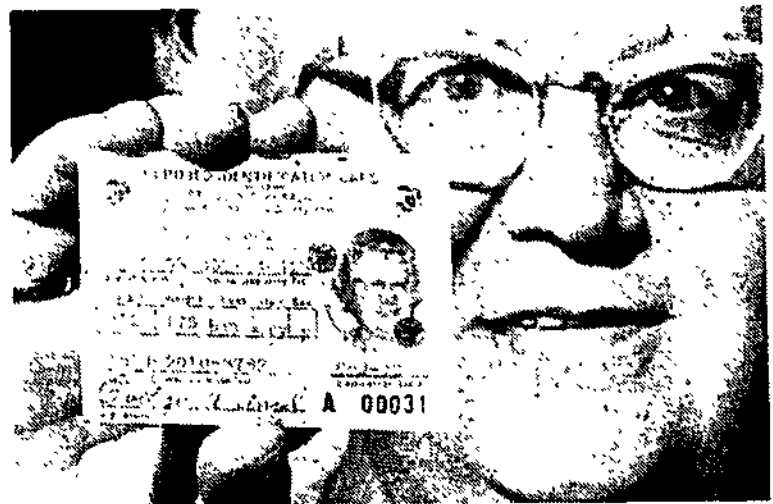

"THERE'S MY GIRL," the debonair Kuser beamed when Mrs. Henry Hofstede, president of the club, announced their arrival. The group, after stepping off a specially chartered bus provided by Mayor Roland Meyer, was in a jovial mood following a noisy ride down the Kennedy Expressway. For many it was the first trip to the Chicago Loop in years.

The royal treatment started as the ladies and three men alighted from the bus at the door of the County Building on Clark Street, with no less than a police officer as doorman.

Inside, the club members boarded two elevators to go to the second floor clerk's office where the new identification department is located.

"I feel like I'm getting married again," one of the women laughed as the group passed the marriage license bureau located next to the new department.

Before the seniors received their $3 cards, which Kuser calls "a favorite project of mine" to provide acceptable identification for persons, county officials

"Mr. Kuser, we're from Rolling Meadows," Mrs. Hofstede told the clerk, pulling him aside from the others.

"Oh you doll. Look, we've got all these people from Rolling Meadows," Kuser said out loud. "Have some coffee and a roll while you wait."

It seemed the 9:30 a.m. arrival of the group was a little premature. ("We didn't expect them until 10 a.m." one aide said,) but the seniors were more than happy to wait while the cameras aimed at them and Mrs. Hofstede was ushered aside for interviews.

"The cards will make it easier for us to cash checks," she told a television in-viewer. Did she have trouble cashing checks, the interviewer asked? "Oh, no, I don't have any trouble cashing checks because I don't cash that many checks," she laughed.

THEN CAME KUSER, arms enfolding some of the ladies, to pose for pictures.

"I thought we were going to march in and march out like a bunch of old ladies," Mrs. Hofstede said. "I never expected this kind of treatment."

The group's trip and selection as first recipients of the cards stemmed from a visit some months ago by Kuser to the Rolling Meadows City Hall.

"We had come there to speak to them and in the conversation this came up," Kuser said. "We started kicking it

Facilities 62% paid for

Buehler Y still owes $600,000

Palatine's Buehler YMCA opened in October, 1973. Nine months, 175 programs and 8,000 members later, 62 per cent of the facilities' cost has been paid.

The YMCA must still pay $600,000 of the total $3.2 million cost of the new facility on Northwest Highway and Countryside Drive.

Herman Hertog, executive director of the YMCA, said that a pledge to help support the building payments, payable over a four-year period, is one of the five "responsibilities" that members are required to meet.

Hertog said that the pledges, the amount of which are set by each member, have been collected and account for the 62 per cent payment on the building costs.

A $400,000 YEARLY operating budget pays the maintenance costs of the new building. Forty per cent of the operating budget comes from annual non-instructional program fees, another 40 per cent from instructional program fees, and 20 per cent from operating fund contributions.

"The Buehler YMCA members have assumed the responsibility of paying for the facilities they use and supporting the building's payment and maintenance," Hertog said.

The Buehler YMCA, unlike other Chicago area YMCAs, is not funded by charity organizations such as The Crusade of Mercy or the United Fund and local taxes are not levied. Membership contri-

UNDAUNTED BY DRIZZLE, about 100 people gathered for the Jesus Rally's opening session Thursday evening. Onlookers stayed dry in cars.

FLYING FINGERS AND joyous hearts provided inspired music at the weekend Jesus Rally. From left, Hal Harding, Kathy Schank and Penney Perkins presented music with a heavy folk-rock flavor.

Young people in the crowd said the Christian message took on greater meaning to them in music.

Rallying 'round the gospel

Galilean Ministry tries to bring religion out of the pulpit

DARRELL HURTZ, organizer of the Galilean Ministry and its Jesus Rally, spoke to the crowd between musical selections.

by MARILYN McDONALD
"And they'll know we are Christians by our love, by our love, yes, they'll know we are Christians by our love," the young folk group sang, earnestly strumming guitars and inviting the crowd of about 100 to sing along.

The onlookers huddled under umbrellas or hunched up their coats against the drizzle Thursday evening in Palatine Community Park as the Galilean Ministry's weekend long Jesus Rally got underway.

Young people, most of them clad in jeans and sandals, many with Bibles tucked under one arm dominated the crowd. Some sat on blankets, others on lawn chairs. Still others sat in trucks or cars pulled up to the curb near the park pool where folk groups performed.

DARRELL HURTZ, 34, organizer of the rally and leader of the 40-member Galilean Ministry, hovered on the outskirts of the crowd, occasionally stepping up to the microphone between songs to remind the crowd of Christ's love for them.

"The purpose of the rally is to confront mainly teen-agers with the claims of Jesus Christ," he said. "Life is not a mystery, and we do have a purpose."

Hurtz who is from Carpentersville, organized the Galilean Ministry earlier this year with a group of Christians from Palatine. The group meets for informal worship and Bible study at one member's home. This weekend's rally was their first group venture.

"My feelings are that we need a group of Christians who are not too structured, mainly to attract young people — teens or young marrieds," Hurtz said.

Between songs, soft responses of "amen" and "hallelujah" rose from the crowd. Hurtz's church group encourages more open display of religious emotion because "... If we love the Lord we will be excited."

TWO 18-YEAR-OLDS from Palatine's St. Theresa's Catholic Church, Sandy Sletmann and Starr French, came to the rally with a friend, Cornelia Schuelke, 17. Cornelia urged her two friends to come with her because "I want to bring more kids to know how wonderful it is to know Jesus Christ."

Cornelia said that the whole informal setting and music was a better way to get one's faith across.

"Sometimes your faith gets lost," Starr said, commenting on the established church. "This revitalizes it."

A large group of teen-agers stood to the left of the performance area waiting to perform. They were "The Common Ground," a 25-member singing group from the Arlington Heights Free Church, led by the church's musical director, Frank Eikenberry.

Nancy Bell, 16, of Prospect Heights, a stylishly dressed young woman with a friendly face, said the group has been together about a year. Dan Tonnesen from Barrington, who claims he's 16 while his friends affirm that he's 15, sings a solo during the group's performance that sounds professional beyond his years.

The group obviously has fun with their material and with each other, but Dan says their religious singing is "very meaningful."

DAVE EITEMILLER, a 15-year-old member of "The Common Ground" said that for many of the group's members, this music gets their faith across better than a traditional church service. "It's really a part of our lives," he added.

As the group swung into the musical story of Jesus, "Get Ready," backed by drums, bass, electric piano and guitar, the crowd joined in the joyous spirit of the music. Enthusiastic applause was given after each number, and the crowd smiled back at the happy faces of "The Common Ground."

Kathy Oval, 35, and Elora Polacek, 36, two Carpentersville housewives, came out to the rally with umbrellas and lawn chairs to hear the Christian music. Mrs. Oval is part of a women's Bible study group led by Hurtz. "He's a wonderful man, and we love him," she said.

Mrs. Oval enjoyed the modern music as another way of sharing the Christian faith. She said that she also enjoyed more traditional forms of worship. Mrs. Polacek agreed, saying that she did not prefer one type of musical religious expression over the other. "Each has its place," she said.

As "The Common Ground" finished its set, more people had joined the group and the rain had stopped. As the sun set behind pinkish clouds, it seemed coincidental, but right, that a rainbow appeared in the east.

Vandalism takes a turn to destruction at the tennis courts and threw tile into the swimming pool.

Kaczmarek said he was primarily concerned about the vandalism at the bridge and light switch boxes. He said bicycle riders might try to cross the bridge at night, fail to see that a few pieces or sections are missing and fall into the creek, perhaps drowning.

"THE LIGHT boxes the vandals have been breaking into have high voltages and could be dangerous," Kaczmarek said. "They (the vandals) should be cautioned," he added.

"There's not a lot we can do," Person said. Last year, the park district and the police department formalized an agreement for regular patrol of the parks. One patrolman goes through the parks on a three-wheeled vehicle during the summer. Police also work in the sports complex on weekends.

City police always have patrolled the parks during their regular rounds, but before 1973, internal security at the parks and sports complex was provided by private firms hired by the park district.

Vandalism involves juveniles almost exclusively and some five to seven youths have been arrested this year for incidents, said police. Most incidents occur at the sports complex, police say.

"I think we have to rely on the eyes and ears of the neighbors," Person said. He said that no one should be in the parks after 11 p.m., closing time. He is requesting that people call police or the park district if they find someone in the parks after 11 p.m. or see someone vandalizing the park district property.

butions and program fees completely support the Buehler YMCA.

"We're not here to sell services. Anyone who uses the facilities actually has an investment in them," Hertog said.

Health inspector hired by city

James M. Demos has been hired to serve as a health inspector in Rolling Meadows.

Demos, a registered sanitarian, will conduct health inspections and work on a part-time basis for the city's health department. He will not be regarded as the city's sanitarian, but will handle the inspection duties of the department.

The sanitarian's post has been vacant since the resignation, June 28, of Donald Schindler. Schindler moved to Wisconsin and his post has not been filled because of difficulty in finding a successor to serve only the few remaining months of Schindler's term of office.

The sanitarian's post is appointed by the mayor with the consent of the city council. Because the sanitarian can only serve to the end of the mayor's term, Schindler's term expires in April when Mayor Roland Meyer's tenure ends.

City officials chose to hire a health inspector on a part-time basis to conduct city inspections until another sanitarian is appointed or until April. Demos will be considered a regular city employee under the supervision of City Mgr. James Watson. He will not be considered a department head.

And statistics show the concept is effective. The Buehler YMCA established in May, 1968, had only 4,000 members in the northwest suburban area, five staff members and a handful of programs before its new facility was built.

SIX YEARS LATER, the YMCA has had to increase its program offerings by 400 per cent and offer 6 seven-week sessions throughout the year, to meet the needs of 12,000 members.

Most of the major construction work on the facility has been completed. The three-level building includes a gymnasium, pool, handball courts and separate men's and women's fitness centers. Many of the members "offer volunteer services in maintaining and servicing the center without any problem," which helps keep the number of employed and paid staff members at a minimum, Hertog said.

"Financial volunteer support by the members has probably been the reason behind the success of the center so far," Hertog said.

Expansion is anticipated for the center, which is situated on a 10-acre parcel, although specific plans have not yet been made. Facilities in the center that are most in demand now, like the pool, handball courts and gymnasium, probably will be duplicated in time.

Administrators will study the growth of the area that the Buehler YMCA currently serves, which includes Arlington Heights, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Barrington and Lake Zurich, to anticipate the needed growth of the center, Hertog said.

by PAT GERLACH

Developers of Woodfield 76, a 237-acre "metro center" planned in Schaumburg, expect rubber stamp approval of their proposed $250 million commercial-residential project, according to two zoning board members.

The development is proposed on the Union 76 Oil Co. property north of Golf Road and west of Ill. Rte. 53.

But both zoners, whose views usually agree with Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher, say they intend to seriously question a number of demands made on the village as outlined in a proposed annexation agreement.

The petition includes a number of demands being made on the village, as a partner in the development, with little or no indication of how village funds would be recaptured.

A STATEMENT filed at village hall by Benjamin J. Randall, an attorney for the developers, says "There will be no burden on (Schaumburg) taxpayers. The cost of these improvements, with the exception of roads, will be met by revenue bonds issued by the village. The roads will be paid for by special assessments against the property served by them."

Principals in the venture include Union Oil Co. of California, the Pritzker family who own the Hyatt Hotel chain, and Bennett and Kahnweiler Associates, a Chicago real estate firm.

As a co-partner, the village is being asked to:

- Annex and zone the property as a planned urban development.
- Provide all utilities.
- Provide a domestic water system.

- Design and construct all external roads necessary to the development.
- Design, construct, operate and maintain an expandable "people-mover" serving the development and linking it initially with Woodfield.

- Provide public transportation between the project and nearby rail stations.
- Pay for design, construction, operation and maintenance of a 900-car parking facility.
- Build a cultural center on a site donated by the developer.

- Build a police or fire station on a site donated by the developer.
- Agree to issue 25 liquor licenses.
- Agree to no increase in permit, inspection or license fees or sewer and water tap-on costs over the 20-year life of the development program.

Rival for Chicago's Loop?

Woodfield 76, a community proposed within Schaumburg, would provide homes for nearly 9,000 persons and jobs for another 10,000 workers, according to a document provided to the village hall by an attorney for the developers.

It is being planned on Union Oil Co. property west of Ill. Rte. 53 and north of the existing Woodfield Shopping Center.

If the Village of Schaumburg agrees to annex the land and give the 236 acres planned urban development zoning, the complex may be on its way toward becoming a suburban "downtown" development which could rival the Chicago Loop, developers claim.

IT WOULD CONTAIN interrelated facilities including offices, a 1,000-room Hyatt convention hotel, specialized commercial space and 3,500 residential units in multi-family high-rise buildings.

Nestled within the "metro-center" would be Schaumburg's proposed cultural center and 120,000 square feet of recreational facilities that developers say will include health clubs, indoor and outdoor pools and tennis courts.

A "people mover," probably a monorail, will handle transportation within Woodfield 76 and could be extended to Woodfield Shopping Center and eventually other areas of the village.

Parking for 14,000 cars will be provided and public transportation also will serve the complex, which also will contain either a police or fire station to be built on a site donated by the developer.

Plans also call for 2.1 million square feet of office space, some in high-rise buildings and other in smaller corporate buildings, as well as 200,000 square feet of commercial space, including shops and restaurants. A 10-acre lake for recreation and storm water retention and environmental landscaping completes the urban center picture.

Construction will be continuous for 20 years, developers say, although they plan site work for the total development (installation of utilities, streets and other improvements) will be completed early so the area will be attractive at all times.

PLANNING, PROGRAMMING and design for Woodfield 76 has been done by Skidmore, Owings and Merrill, architects of the Sears Tower, John Hancock Center, and many other buildings.

Construction aspects are being handled by Tishman Construction Co., builders of Gateway Center in Chicago and the World Trade Center in New York.

erating three months after the developers claim a demand for it.

Randall Friday refused to answer questions on the project and said a press conference will be held Aug. 14 or 15 when developers will be available to provide information.

Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel could not be reached for comment on the proposed responsibilities of the village.

The plan will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 14 to zoning board members and a special village board meeting has been scheduled for 8 p.m. Aug. 20 to consider the proposal.

Both meetings will be held at Schaumburg Civic Center Lincoln Hall. They are open to the public.

School board grants Schaible raise from $31,000 to $34,000

by JUDY JOBBITT

A 10 per cent salary increase for Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Supt. Wayne Schaible has been approved despite a strong verbal protest by board member Brenda Pulla.

In a statement presented to the board at Thursday night's meeting, Mrs. Pulla said, "I feel that it is necessary to take a portion of this discussion time to explain my vote. I intend to vote an emphatic 'No.'"

Schaible received a salary increase from $31,000 to $34,000 annually by a 5-to-1 vote. Board member Donnie Rudd was absent.

Mrs. Pulla said, "I have tried to base my evaluation of the administration not on personalities but on facts."

Situations she outlined include:

- Difficulties with absentee ballots in the April school board election. Apparent misunderstandings with the administration resulted in several teachers not obtaining absentee ballots for the election. Mrs. Pulla said she has not received a proper explanation about this confusion despite repeated requests.
- Difficulties obtaining necessary information for board business. "It is almost impossible to get cooperation," she said. "Too many times, bits of information have been given without presenting the full picture or without the necessary reasoning."

- Possibility of the district becoming involved in a legal suit "because of its obstinance." The possible legal suit concerned sex discrimination in scheduling

Step toward village department

Approve fire referendum

The first major hurdle in forming a Village of Hoffman Estates fire department was cleared Saturday.

Registered voters in the Winston Knolls and Windmere subdivisions voted overwhelmingly in favor of a referendum calling for transfer of the area north of the Northwest Tollway to the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District, unofficial election results show.

The unofficial results, disclosed Saturday night by village officials, were 275 yes votes, 55 no votes and four spoiled ballots. The tallies will not become official until the votes are canvassed at 10 a.m. today in the court of Circuit Court Judge Harry Comerford, who is presiding over the proposed merger of the HEFPD and the village.

THE TRANSFER OF the area from the Palatine Rural Fire Protection District to the Hoffman Estates district is an attempt to align district and village boundaries before establishing a village department.

Village trustees Melvin Timmons and Dyrle Rathman both noted the passage

District 54 wrapupAdditional liaison, truant officer OK'd

An additional police liaison officer to work in the junior high schools and serve as truant officer for the district was approved by the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education.

The district has had an officer working in this capacity since Keller Junior High School opened in 1967. At that time two junior high schools were open, Keller and Frost Junior High School. Since this position began, two more junior highs have been opened.

To meet the growth of the district, the additional position was approved. The officer will work four hours a day in two junior high schools as an additional truant officer for the district.

An officer from the Schaumburg Police Department will serve Addams and Frost junior high schools. Eisenhower and Keller junior high schools will be served by an officer from the Hoffman Estates Police Dept.

The officers will be paid according to their regular salary. It is estimated the salary will range from $4,000 to $5,000 depending upon the officer's current salary.

Mileage payment increased

of the referendum was the first hurdle that had to be negotiated.

"I'm pleased," said Rothman, chairman of the village fire-study committee.

"I'm personally very, very pleased," said Timmons, who is an alternate on the village committee and resident of Winston Knolls. "That's what I wanted one year ago."

Fire district officials were not present at the village hall when the referendum results were announced.

VOTER TURNOUT WAS about 18 per cent in the Winston Knolls precinct and about 31 per cent in the Windemere section of South Barrington.

Winston Knolls unofficial vote totals were 239 yes, 53 nos and four spoiled ballots.

New Westbury zone standards before trustees

A revised set of zoning standards and the concept of public streets for a section of the proposed Westbury development will be considered today by the Hoffman Estates Village Board.

The village plan commission Saturday morning approved sidewalk, parkway and building setback standards and the establishment of public streets in Westbury, a 407-acre development once known as Howie-in-the-Hills.

The commission was under some pressure to finish up the guidelines. Meridian Development Co. officials, developers of Westbury, have expressed concern over delays in the development caused by compiling the revised standards.

VILLAGE PRES. Virginia Hayter said she had talked to Meridian's lawyer late last week and he said valuable time was being wasted and that possible court action had been considered by the developer.

The concept of public-dedicated streets was approved by the commission because members said residents should receive the benefits for the motor fuel taxes they pay. For private streets, motor fuel tax funds can not be used for maintenance.

Six-foot parkways and larger building setbacks were the other recommendations made for the Harper's Landing subzone which includes townhouses and zero-lot-line, single-family residences.

The effect of the proposals would be to allow more parking per unit or house than by past standards, said Gerald Estes, village plan consultant.

Estes displayed drawings portraying situations that could result in Westbury if the recommendations were implemented.

HE SAID 10 PER CENT more land would be needed or that proposed density would have to drop 10 per cent with the new standards.

Also included in the guidelines is a limitation on the number of homes or units allowed on private driveways (cul-de-sac private streets) and on Type B minor streets.

The land for Westbury was purchased from a federal receivership. The original court order called for private streets.

Richard Regan, plan commission chairman, said the ordinances were imposed on the village by the court and that officials feel they have the right to refine the standards.

The recommendations were compiled by Estes and John Hossack, village engineer.

lots. Windemere totals were 17 yeas and two nos.

After Comerford signs an order transferring the area into the HEFPD, the next step is to collect petitions for inclusion in the district of small areas outside the fire district. That should take about two weeks, officials have estimated. Then petitions could be filed in Circuit Court calling for a village department.

THE TENTATIVE schedule calls for the village department to be created sometime in October. The village would take over district equipment and lands and assume all debts and liabilities of the fire district.

The district will remain as a "paper" organization to allow for tax collection for areas outside the village limits so services can be contracted for.

Windemere was included in the referendum so it would not be separated from the PRFPD.

Pig (in pieces) stolen from home

Burglars made off with virtually every part of the pig when they broke into the Joseph Grubski home at 130 Payson St., in Hoffman Estates last week.

Taken in the break-in were packages of pork sausage, and bacon plus jars of pigs feet. Also taken were beer, cigarettes and $5 in coins. The burglary was reported Thursday night.

Entry was gained by prying open a door.

Meeting slated todayNEC heads to skip Martwick session

by WANDALYN RICE

Officials from the Northwest Educational Cooperative who have been summoned to Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick's office today to discuss the charges about Dwyer School, Arlington Heights, will not show up.

Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC; John Wightman, director of all special education programs in the NEC area; John Whipple, former clinical director of Dwyer School; and Robert Taylor, coordinator of the Dwyer elementary school program, had been ordered by Martwick to come to his office today.

Martwick had said he wanted to discuss the charges which have been made about improper operation of the school with the four and indicated he would consider suspending their teaching and school administration certificates if their answers were unsatisfactory.

students for industrial arts and home arts classes. Girls were automatically placed in home arts courses while boys were automatically scheduled for industrial arts; and Funding Schaible's course work toward a doctorate degree from an unaccredited university. Schaible has been working towards a doctorate from Walden University in Florida. The board approved payment of nearly $3,000 to defer his education costs.

"It appears to be a 'Don't-Rock-the-Boat' attitude," said Mrs. Pulla. "If you vote no, or question, you rock the boat. If you want back-up information or follow-up the same is true."

"I feel that the administration has let the public, the children and the board down."

BONNIE HANNON, board member, contested Mrs. Pulla's statement, saying that the district's overall standards and functions should be considered in granting the superintendent's salary. She said

Judge to hear Barrington Square suit

A hearing is scheduled for 10 a.m. Friday before Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen for a lawsuit filed by homeowners in Barrington Square against Kaufman and Broad, Inc.

K&B, which built Barrington Square, pleaded no contest last winter to charges it bribed six former village officials for a quick decision on a rezoning petition permitting a change from retirement community to planned unit development use of the land.

The homeowners' suit maintains the cost of the bribes was added to the costs of the homes they purchased, and in effect involved them in bribery. Their suit seeks a return to them of any portion of their home costs that would have been attributable to bribe expenses.

There is no precedent for this type of legal action, the attorneys for the homeowners and for K&B say. The homeowners hope to establish such a precedent.

FRIDAY, MRS. Kinney, and Edith Freund, president of the NEC governing board, were drafting a letter to Martwick explaining the four would not appear because Mrs. Kinney will be in the hospital and the governing board believes a report being drafted on the charges will answer Martwick's questions.

"Dr. Kinney will not be available to provide administrative leadership and we don't believe it would be a good idea to have them appear at this time," Mrs. Freund said, in explaining the letter.

Mrs. Freund and other members of the governing board are drafting a report to be submitted Wednesday to State School Supt. Michael Bakalis with detailed answers to the charges made by present and former members of the Dwyer School staff.

The charges had included allegations that children were abused and beaten with paddles, that Whipple and other members of the staff were unqualified for their jobs and that Whipple allowed staff members to engage in "unprofessional" activities in front of children.

THE GOVERNING board at 3 a.m. Thursday, after a seven-hour meeting with Whipple, his attorney and Leo Athas, general counsel for Bakalis, announced that Whipple was being transferred from Dwyer to a full-time position with the Center for Child and Family Studies, which provides counseling for students who remain at their regular schools.

In addition, the board said it would file the report with Bakalis' office.

Officials from Martwick's office said Friday the county superintendent would probably have a statement if the four he has summoned do not show up this morning. Earlier, County officials had indicated they did not believe the NEC action changed the need for the meeting today.

Martwick apparently has the authority under Illinois law to suspend the teaching or administration certificates of the four if he finds evidence of "immorality, incompetency, unprofessional conduct or neglect of any professional duty." If a person's certificate is suspended, he may appeal the action to the State Certification Board and receive a hearing which may overturn the action.

No vacancy

Village's 'ultimate' population may be reached by end of decade as steady growth rate continues

by MARCIA KRAMER

The growth of Mount Prospect is continuing its steady upswing, but as boundaries of neighboring municipalities loom nearer, the village is swiftly approaching its saturation point.

Acres by acres, the little vacant land remaining in the Mount Prospect vicinity is being gobbled up by developers. The village is the leader among Chicago suburbs in the number of building permits issued during the first six months this year—1,030 for multifamily units and 38 for houses—and at latest count, more than 4,000 apartment units are either under construction or on the drawing board with village approval.

At this pace, predicts Duell B. Dutton, director of building and zoning, Mount Prospect's ultimate population of 60,000 to 65,000 will likely be reached by the end of this decade.

"There just isn't that much more to go," he said.

The village's population was measured in a special census last year as 45,325, and Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley now estimates it is closer to 50,000.

IN RECENT WEEKS alone, the village has annexed the Prospect Meadows subdivision at the northwest corner of the village, and numerous apartment complexes northwest of Busse and Algonquin roads, including Algonquin Trails, St. Johns and Gladstone Commons (formerly Old Ivy) and a portion of Timberlake Village.

While the future of the Rob Roy Golf Course is uncertain, Eppley does not anticipate any more large scale annexations similar to the New Town chunk that came into the village three years ago.

"We're not going anywhere to the east, that's for sure. To the north is Prospect Heights. We're boxed in to the west and a little to the south is all we have."

Eppley expects most of the remaining property to succumb to multifamily developments. Single-family houses are "so high-priced now, who can afford them?"

DUTTON CONCURRED. "There are a few areas on the west side (near Meier Road) where the surrounding properties are all single-family. I can't envision anybody granting high-density uses for that area."

Other vacant land in or near the village, however, probably will be used for apartments and condominiums, he said. Many buildings are already under construction:

- At the Old Orchard Country Club, which is bounded by Camp McDonald Road on the north, Euclid Avenue on the south, Elmhurst Road on the east and Schoenbeck Road on the west, some 2,100 units are scheduled to be built. The project is about one-quarter completed.

- The Colony, northwest corner of Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street, 622 units.

- Forest Cove, west of Busse Road and south of Algonquin Road, 300 units.

- Laurel Estates, 3044 S. Busse Rd., 216 units.

- Kensington Creek Condominiums, Kensington-Foundry and River roads, 120 units (approved by the village, but not started yet).

- Crystal Towers, southwest corner of Busse and Algonquin roads, 320 units.

- Port-Au-Prince Condominiums, northwest corner of River and Camp McDonald roads (approved by the village but tied up in litigation by area residents).

- Prospect Tower, Kensington Road east of Elmhurst Road, 82 units (application for annexation pending before zoning board of appeals).

- Hawthorn, southwest corner of Elmhurst Road and Dempster Street, 198 units (approved by the village but tied up in litigation by the City of Des Plaines).

Also pending is the sizable request by Kenroy Inc., Skokie, to build 2,350 units at the Rob Roy Golf Course north of Mount Prospect in unincorporated Wheeling Township. The petition will be considered by the zoning board of appeals at its meeting Wednesday night.

TELEVISION CAMERAS AND a filmed interview were a part of the fun Friday morning for Mrs. Hofstede and her Golden Years Club members at the County Building. Other members looked on and enjoyed.

Celebrities!

It all started when 25 senior citizens went on TV—and all they wanted were new county ID cards

by TONI GINETTI

The ladies and gentlemen of the Rolling Meadows Golden Years Club never had it so good.

Cook County Clerk Stanley T. Kuser laughing and joking with the ladies, coffee and sweet rolls galore, television cameras and radio and newspaper interviewers following them around and the red carpet treatment from the county clerks attending them—all just because they had come to apply for some identification cards.

What the fuss was all about was the fact that the 25 senior citizens were the first to receive newly-devised personal identification cards Friday morning. The seniors and Kuser, whose brainchild the new IDs are, loved every minute of it.

"THERE'S MY GIRL," the debonair Kuser beamed when Mrs. Henry Hofstede, president of the club, announced their arrival. The group, after stepping off a specially chartered bus provided by Mayor Roland Moyer, was in a rousing mood following a noisy ride down the Kennedy Expressway. For many it was the first trip to the Chicago Loop in years.

The royal treatment started as the ladies and three men alighted from the bus at the door of the County Building on Clark Street, with no less than a police officer as doorman.

Inside, the club members boarded two elevators to go to the second floor clerk's office where the new identification department is located.

"I feel like I'm getting married again," one of the women laughed as the group passed the marriage license bureau located next to the new department.

Before the seniors received their $3 cards, which Kuser calls "a favorite project of mine" to provide acceptable identification for persons, county officials including Kuser were processed for their cards.

THE CARDS WILL be available to the general public starting today.

"Mr. Kuser, we're from Rolling Meadows," Mrs. Hofstede told the clerk, pulling him aside from the others.

"Oh you doll. Look, we've got all these people from Rolling Meadows," Kuser said out loud. "Have some coffee and a roll while you wait."

It seemed the 9:30 a.m. arrival of the group was a little premature, ("we didn't expect them until 10 a.m." one aide said,) but the seniors were more than happy to wait while the cameras aimed at them and Mrs. Hofstede was ushered aside for interviews.

"The cards will make it easier for us to cash checks," she told a television interviewer. Did she have trouble cashing checks, the interviewer asked? "Oh, no. I don't have any trouble cashing checks because I don't cash that many checks," she laughed.

THEN CAME KUSER, arms enfolding some of the ladies, to pose for pictures.

"I thought we were going to march in and march out like a bunch of old ladies," Mrs. Hofstede said. "I never expected this kind of treatment."

The group's trip and selection as first recipients of the cards stemmed from a visit some months ago by Kuser to the Rolling Meadows City Hall.

"We had come there to speak to them and in the conversation this came up," Kuser said. "We started kicking it

Dwyer officials will skip meeting today with Martwick

by WANDALYN RICE

Officials from the Northwest Educational Cooperative who have been summoned to Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick's office today to discuss the charges about Dwyer School, Arlington Heights, will not show up.

Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC; John Wightman, director of all special education programs in the NEC area; John Whipple, former clinical director of Dwyer School; and Robert Taylor, coordinator of the Dwyer elementary school program, had been ordered by Martwick to come to his office today.

Martwick had said he wanted to discuss the charges which have been made about improper operation of the school with the four and indicated he would consider suspending their teaching and school administration certificates if their answers were unsatisfactory.

FRIDAY, MRS. Kinney, and Edith Freund, president of the NEC governing board, were drafting a letter to Martwick explaining the four would not appear because Mrs. Kinney will be in the hospital and the governing board believes a report being drafted on the charges will answer Martwick's questions.

"Dr. Kinney will not be available to provide administrative leadership and we don't believe it would be a good idea to have them appear at this time," Mrs. Freund said, in explaining the letter.

Mrs. Freund and other members of the governing board are drafting a report to be submitted Wednesday to State School Supt. Michael Bakalis with detailed answers to the charges made by present and former members of the Dwyer School staff.

The charges had included allegations that children were abused and beaten with paddles, that Whipple and other members of the staff were unqualified for their jobs and that Whipple allowed staff members to engage in "unprofessional" activities in front of children.

THE GOVERNING board at 3 a.m. Thursday, after a seven-hour meeting with Whipple, his attorney and Leo Athas, general counsel for Bakalis, announced that Whipple was being transferred from Dwyer to a full-time position with the Center for Child and Family Studies, which provides counseling for students who remain at their regular schools.

In addition, the board said it would file the report with Bakalis' office.

Officials from Martwick's office said Friday the county superintendent would probably have a statement if the four he has summoned do not show up this morning. Earlier, County officials had indicated they did not believe the NEC action changed the need for the meeting today.

Martwick apparently has the authority under Illinois law to suspend the teaching or administration certificates of the four if he finds evidence of "immorality, incompetency, unprofessional conduct or neglect of any professional duty." If a person's certificate is suspended, he may appeal the action to the State Certification Board and receive a hearing which may overturn the action.

Post-trial conference set for Liebling case

Representatives of the Wheeling Road Zoning Committee and landowner Arnold Liebling, opponents in court battles over annexation of Liebling's land to the village of Wheeling, will meet at 2 p.m. Thursday in the office of Assistant State's Atty. Paul Biebel.

Biebel told The Herald Friday a "post trial conference" has been scheduled to discuss the hotly contested case.

Circuit Court Judge Raymond K. Berg last month ruled the 1971 annexation of Liebling's land near Wheeling and Camp McDonald roads was proper, reversing an earlier court decision disallowing the annexation.

The Wheeling Road Zoning Committee, a group of Prospect Heights residents, has been seeking to nullify the annexation.

Gerald McGlothlin

McGlothlin may challenge board age law

Gerald McGlothlin of Wheeling, who is old enough to vote but too young to serve on a school board, may challenge the law that is preventing him from being appointed to fill the vacancy on the Dist. 21 Board of Education.

McGlothlin, 20, of 1047 S. Carol Ave., is ineligible for the appointment because the Illinois School Code requires school board members to be at least 21 years old.

Under the impression that the legal age for school board members was 18, McGlothlin applied for the post recently vacated by Mary Jo Reid of Buffalo Grove. He was interviewed along with the six other applicants for the seat, but cannot get the appointment.

McGLOTHLIN TOLD The Herald Friday he will think about challenging the school code age requirement.

"I believe this law is definitely inconsistent because of the new voting-age law and everything else," he said. "It's just a matter of time before the legislature corrects the error."

McGlothlin said he intended to talk with legislators he knows about introducing measures to lower the legal age for school board members.

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, submitted two bills to the House to extend school board eligibility to 18, 19 and 20-year-olds two years ago, but the measures were defeated.

McGLOTHLIN SAID he was sorry that he will not have the opportunity to serve on the Dist. 21 school board.

"I'm really disappointed," he said. "I had hoped I'd have a chance on my merits, but apparently I don't even have a slim chance because of this law."

AND YOU THOUGHT cheerleading was simple. Lisa Sova learns that's not true as she convulses her way through a routine. She's under the watchful eye of Ginny Pope, who teaches one of the three cheerleading and pom pom classes sponsored by the Mount Prospect Park District. About 100 aspiring cheerleaders are enrolled.

Applicants give credentials for school board position

by JILL BETTNER

Pupil-teacher ratios, individualized instruction, career education and better communication between the school board, parents, students and teachers are among the concerns of seven Dist. 21 residents seeking appointment to the vacant seat on the Board of Education.

The applicants were interviewed for five minutes each last week at a special meeting of the school board. The appointment will be announced Thursday at the board's regular meeting.

The person named to the board will serve out the unexpired term of Mary Jo Reid of Buffalo Grove. The term ends next April. Mrs. Reid resigned earlier this summer to accept a $9,000 per year job as public relations and volunteer coordinator for the district.

ONE APPLICANT for Mrs. Reid's seat, Gerald McGlothlin, 1047 S. Carol Ave., Wheeling, is unqualified for the post because of his age. The Illinois School Code requires school board members to be at least 21 years old to serve. McGlothlin is 20.

Despite McGlothlin's age, he was interviewed last week along with the other school board candidates. Kenneth Rodock, board secretary, said Friday the board was aware of the age requirement before the interviews, but had not had an opportunity to double check the law with the district's attorneys. He added that board members decided to hear McGlothlin's views on the district before bringing the problem up.

McGlothlin who became the first student representative on the Harper College Board of Trustees last January, told the Dist. 21 school board his main concern is increasing communication between the board and parents, teachers and students.

He suggested the board consider asking junior high school students to attend one meeting every three months or so to provide student input on school issues.

McGlothlin is a former Dist. 21 student and believes his experience would be useful on the board. As a resident of the unincorporated area of Wheeling, McGlothlin also said he thought he could provide broad citizen representation.

A June graduate of Harper, McGlothlin is employed this summer as promotions manager for Just Games, Inc., Mount Prospect. He plans to enroll at Northwestern University this fall and follow a pre-law course of study.

IMPROVING communication, especially the board's awareness of community concerns, also was a priority mentioned by school board applicant Susan Tripp Rose, 174 Timber Hill Rd., Buffalo Grove.

Mrs. Rose, 33, recommended that school board members offer to speak at meetings of community organizations about educational matters in the district. She said this could be one way of getting feedback.

An active volunteer and PTA board member at Alcott School in Buffalo Grove, Mrs. Rose suggested that board members also try to spend time at various local schools talking with teachers, students and parents.

A former substitute teacher in Dist. 21 schools, Mrs. Rose received a bachelor's degree in biology and master's degree in school administration from Indiana University. She has two children attending local schools.

JEANNE PETERS, 2413 E. Dundee Rd., Arlington Heights, in a written statement to the school board, said, "We need to equip our children with adequate tools to deal with the unknown world of tomorrow so that future shock does not disorient them to the extent that it has many of ours and past generations."

Mrs. Peters said she believes schools should be more attuned to the needs of students and more emphasis should be placed on developing creative thinking and good decision-making skills. She added she also would like to see more individualized instruction which would allow children to learn at their own rate.

Mrs. Peters, 34, taught English at Robert Frost and Helen Keller junior high schools in Schaumburg Dist. 54 for four years and is a former Dist. 21 substitute teacher.

She obtained a bachelor's degree in speech at Northern Illinois University and has completed 14 hours of graduate work in group dynamics, curriculum and innovative teaching methods at Northwestern University, the University of Illinois and the University of Chicago.

Mrs. Peters has two children in Dist. 21 schools.

A. M. MANSUKHAN, 241 St. Armand Ln., Wheeling, said in his interview he believes his experience as an attorney and his background in civil engineering would make him a valuable school board member.

Mansukhan's primary concern is pupil-teacher ratios in the district. He thinks class sizes should be limited to between 25 and 30 students.

He added that he also is unsure that teaching methods being used in the district, primarily in sciences, allow students to effectively grasp material.

The father of two children who attend local school, Mansukhan has been a resident of the district for almost three years.

JANET GROSS, 331 Cottonwood Dr., Buffalo Grove, believes the current Dist. 21 curriculum is adequate, but said she would like to see more programs for slow learners and gifted children.

Mrs. Gross, 34, said she thinks Dist. 21 is doing a good job of educating local children and is interested in serving on the school board so "it will continue to be one of the very best."

A Girl Scout leader and member of the Alcott School PTA, Mrs. Gross completed one year of business school plus night school courses in the art of communicating and creative thinking.

She has four children in Dist. 21 schools and has lived in the district for the last 10 years.

AS A TEACHER in the Chicago public school system, Arnold Drobny, 3250 Volz Dr. West, Arlington Heights, said he is interested in using his background to become involved in local school concerns by serving on the Dist. 21 school board.

Drobny, 32, said he believes policies set by the school board should reflect, as much as possible, the wishes of Dist. 21 residents.

He, too, is interested in pupil-teacher ratios and thinks subjects included in the curriculum, such as history, should not be taught by rote.

A resident of the district for more than two years, Drobny received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Roosevelt University. He is a member of the Northgate Civic Assn.

FINDING A "middle of the road" route between the open classroom and traditional methods of teaching is one of the main concerns of Mary Arlene Well, 624 Ivy Ct., Wheeling.

Mrs. Well, 23, also said she would like to see more programs in local schools aimed at developing student self-awareness and enough facilities provided so that each child can pursue his own interests.

Along the same lines, Mrs. Well said she would encourage opportunities for students to work in the community while attending school to give them exposure to various careers.

Mrs. Well received a bachelor's degree in secondary English education from Chicago State University. She has a 3-month-old child and has lived in the district for one year.

Following the interviews, Dist. 21 School Board Pres. Jack Lane said he hoped the six applicants not chosen for the seat on the board would continue to express an interest in school matters.

Farewell to a really good man

It was appropriate that last Thursday was a rainy, dark and gloomy day. Mount Prospect's beloved fireman, Lowell Fell, was buried. He leaves a young wife, two small children and a crushed community. Everyone who knew Lowell, liked him.

The funeral service at St. Mark Lutheran Church was filled with friends, relatives, members of the community and many firemen. Men-in-blue came from all of the neighboring towns.

The Rev. Nolan A. Watson officiated at the service and spoke words of comfort and praise. He told of the deep personal faith of Lowell, how he believed he was placed on earth to do a job and his determination to do it, and how he had given so completely of himself to the community as a fireman.

The minister also spoke of how courageously Lowell and his wife, Judy, faced the discovery of Lowell's leukemia 18 months ago. Together they vowed to take one day at a time and to make the best of each one.

The funeral procession was a long one, led by police cars, a fire truck and many area fire chief's cars — all with overhead lights blinking. As the cars passed through the downtown area, near fire station No. 1 draped in black, many doors of shops opened. Proprietors and customers stepped outside and stood glassy-eyed watching the procession. It was farewell to a really good man.

Former Lincoln Junior High School teacher Ernest R. Blomquist III and his wife, Roberta, have a new baby, their first child, Britt Leigh. Blomquist taught language arts at Lincoln from 1968 to 1972, and also was a basketball coach. He is an Assistant State's Attorney for Cook County.

The little girl is the first grandchild for the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Blomquist of Mount Prospect, as well as for the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Buechner of Arlington Heights.

It's a happy scene at the Tom Uddenberg home, 918 S. Emerson St. Little David Uddenberg, only 4½ years old, had open heart surgery two weeks ago and came home this weekend. Surgery was performed at Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital in Chicago and six people from this area went to the hospital on the day of the operation to provide blood for the little fellow.

Four to rely on coming report

Dwyer officials will skip meeting with Martwick

by WANDALYN RICE
Officials from the Northwest Educational Cooperative who have been summoned to Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick's office today to discuss the charges about Dwyer School, Arlington Heights, will not show up.

Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC; John Wightman, director of all special education programs in the NEC area; John Whipple, former clinical director of Dwyer School; and Robert Taylor, coordinator of the Dwyer elementary school program, had been ordered by Martwick to come to his office today.

Martwick had said he wanted to discuss the charges which have been made about improper operation of the school with the four and indicated he would consider suspending their teaching and school administration certificates if their answers were unsatisfactory.

FRIDAY, Mrs. Kinney, and Edith Freund, president of the NEC governing board, were drafting a letter to Martwick explaining the four would not appear because Mrs. Kinney will be in the hospital and the governing board believes a report being drafted on the charges will answer Martwick's questions.

"Dr. Kinney will not be available to provide administrative leadership and we don't believe it would be a good idea to have them appear at this time," Mrs. Freund said, in explaining the letter.

Mrs. Freund and other members of the governing board are drafting a report to be submitted Wednesday to State School Supt. Michael Bakalis with detailed answers to the charges made by present and former members of the Dwyer School staff.

The charges had included allegations that children were abused and beaten with paddles, that Whipple and other members of the staff were unqualified for their jobs and that Whipple allowed staff members to engage in "unprofessional" activities in front of children.

THE GOVERNING board at 3 a.m. Thursday, after a seven-hour meeting with Whipple, his attorney and Leo Athas, general counsel for Bakalis, announced that Whipple was being transferred from Dwyer to a full-time position with the Center for Child and Family Studies, which provides counseling for students who remain at their regular schools.

In addition, the board said it would file the report with Bakalis' office.

Officials from Martwick's office said Friday the county superintendent would probably have a statement if the four he has summoned do not show up this morning. Earlier, County officials had indicated they did not believe the NEC action changed the need for the meeting today.

Martwick apparently has the authority under Illinois law to suspend the teaching or administration certificates of the four if he finds evidence of "immorality, incompetency, unprofessional conduct or neglect of any professional duty." If a person's certificate is suspended, he may appeal the action to the State Certification Board and receive a hearing which may overturn the action.

Greenbrier: 'you can walk just about anywhere...'

by KURT BAER
Bounded by three of the area's major highways — Palatine Road on the south, Ill. Rte. 53 on the west, and Rand Road on the east — it would not be surprising if the residents of Greenbrier sometimes feel a little isolated.

"Like they say in the real estate ads, in Greenbrier you really can walk to parks, pools and shopping," says Robert Madsen, recent president of the Greenbrier Civic Assn. and a three-year resident of the subdivision.

"Three major roads give us easy access in any direction you want to go and sort of helps to give our area an identity," Madsen says.

GREENBRIER WAS Arlington Heights' first residential development north of Palatine Road. Construction of the subdivision's 500 homes began in 1962 and was under the direction of Miller Builders of Skokie.

"We had a unique problem in that there were no schools or parks and we worked very hard with the builder to get these things," says George Grulke, who recently moved from Greenbrier after 12 years residency there.

Greenbrier school and park on the north, and Frontier Park on the east today are focal points of community activity.

Homes in Greenbrier cost between $18,000 and $70,000. Turnover in the subdivision is relatively high, and appears to be increasing slightly, Grulke says.

"We've had some people moving on to another house within the subdivision, say from a three-bedroom to a four-bedroom home. And some who have moved out, but said they would have stayed if they could have found a bigger house," Madsen says.

FOR SEVERAL YEARS, plans for a multi-family development, Chelsea Square, immediately west of Greenbrier, was a major cause for concern among the subdivision's homeowners.

Now a preliminary plan for Chelsea Square, 350 housing units including 2 five-story condominium buildings, has been approved by village board members and the homeowners' biggest fears concern the future development of vacant unincorporated land east of Greenbrier.

"Every development proposal has included either high density multi-family or commercial building," says Madsen. "Things that we don't feel are appropriate for our neighborhood."

Greenbrier residents also have complained about drug racing, drinking and disorderly conduct at Frontier Park, 1933 N. Kennicott Dr. But this summer the problem appears less severe than in the past, says Madsen.

Maybe the counselors in the park have helped cut the problem, or maybe the "action" has just moved to another park.

WHATEVER THE REASON, Madsen says Greenbrier residents are pleased that the trouble at Frontier Park appears to be at least partially under control.

One of Arlington Heights' newest subdivisions, Cedarbrook, located directly north of Greenbrier, will join the Green-

TELEVISION CAMERAS AND a filmed interview were a part of the fun Friday morning for Mrs. Hofstede and her Golden Years Club members at the County Building. Other members looked on and enjoyed.

Celebrities!

It all started when 25 senior citizens went on TV — and all they wanted were new county ID cards

by TONI GINETTI

The ladies and gentlemen of the Rolling Meadows Golden Years Club never had it so good.

Cook County Clerk Stanley T. Kusper laughing and joking with the ladies, coffee and sweet rolls galore, television cameras and radio and newspaper interviewers following them around and the red carpet treatment from the county clerks attending them — all just because they had come to apply for some identification cards.

What the fuss was all about was the fact that the 25 senior citizens were the first to receive newly-devised personal identification cards Friday morning. The seniors and Kusper, whose brainchild the new IDs are, loved every minute of it.

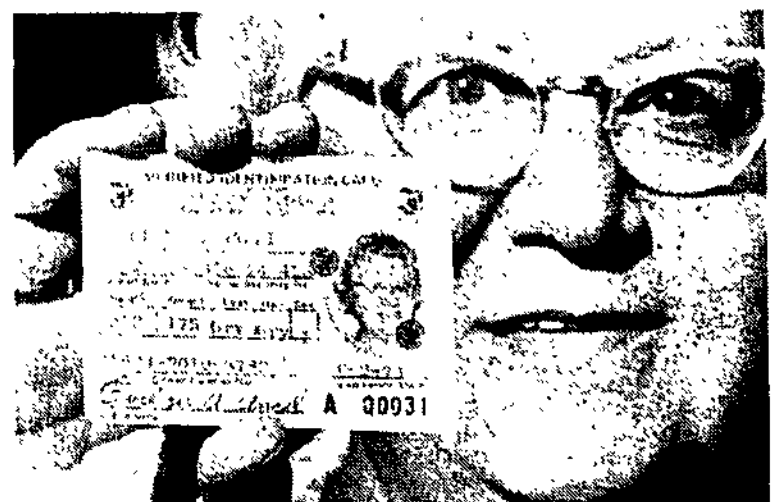

"THERE'S MY GIRL," the debonair Kusper beamed when Mrs. Henry Hofstede, president of the club, announced their arrival. The group, after stepping off a specially chartered bus provided by Mayor Roland Meyer, was in a rousing mood following a noisy ride down the Kennedy Expressway. For many it was the first trip to the Chicago Loop in years.

The royal treatment started as the ladies and three men alighted from the bus at the door of the County Building on Clark Street, with no less than a police officer as doorman.

Inside, the club members boarded two elevators to go to the second floor clerk's office where the new identification department is located.

"I feel like I'm getting married again," one of the women laughed as the group passed the marriage license bureau located next to the new department.

Before the seniors received their $3 cards, which Kusper calls "a favorite project of mine" to provide acceptable identification for persons, county officials including Kusper were processed for their cards.

THE CARDS WILL be available to the general public starting today.

"Mr. Kusper, we're from Rolling Meadows," Mrs. Hofstede told the clerk, pulling him aside from the others.

"Oh you doll. Look, we've got all these people from Rolling Meadows," Kusper said out loud. "Have some coffee and a roll while you wait."

It seemed the 9:30 a.m. arrival of the group was a little premature. ("We didn't expect them until 10 a.m.," one aide said.) but the seniors were more than happy to wait while the cameras aimed at them and Mrs. Hofstede was ushered aside for interviews.

"The cards will make it easier for us to cash checks," she told a television interviewer. Did she have trouble cashing checks, the interviewer asked? "Oh, no, I don't have any trouble cashing checks because I don't cash that many checks," she laughed.

THEN CAME KUSPER, arms enfolding some of the ladies, to pose for pictures.

"I thought we were going to march in and march out like a bunch of old ladies," Mrs. Hofstede said. "I never expected this kind of treatment."

The group's trip and selection as first recipients of the cards stemmed from a visit some months ago by Kusper to the Rolling Meadows City Hall.

"We had come there to speak to them and in the conversation this came up," Kusper said. "We started kicking it

Need answer for a tricky question? Let George do it

by JOE SWICKARD

Yes, Pamela Merrill, there is a George Weinand and he can answer your questions.

Since March 16, a letter has puzzled Weinand, Arlington Heights' community relations officer. The letter was written on gold-embossed Girl Scout stationery and sought directions toward a merit badge via a route unmarked with signs.

"... I would like to earn a badge, and I can't tell where I'm going. Is there a route I can take. If so, why aren't there signs showing us the way," Pamela asked the "Mayor's Office, Information and Inquiry."

Weinand said unsuccessful attempts were made to contact the writer. However, he said the letter came with no return address and telephone calls to persons with the last name could not find the young Scout.

"We checked the local phone books and found nothing. We hoped Pamela would write again or come in, but she hasn't," Weinand said.

IN HIS CAPACITY as community relations officer, Weinand has fielded many tricky questions, but he admitted Pamela has him stumped so far.

"We really don't know what she wants as far as badges go. If it's one for bicycling we can help out. The bike route has signs up now," he said.

As the letter reads, without designating the badge being sought, it might appear the Girl Scouts are delving into the meaning and direction of life. Weinand said the municipal government is not designed to handle philosophical questions of that depth.

WHILE DECLINING to tackle any esoteric ramifications, Weinand said he would welcome Pamela's questions if they pertain to village government or services.

Pamela can contact Weinand at the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd., or by calling 253-2340.

And like the Scouts, Weinand said he'd be prepared. "Scout's honor," Weinand promised.

Dear Sir,

My name is Pamela.

I am a girl scout and I would like to earn a badge, and I can't tell where I'm going. Is there a route I can take.

If so, why aren't there signs showing us the way.

brier Civic Assn. "We talked to the people in Cedarbrook, and it seemed reasonable to us and to be to their benefit to join forces," Madsen says. There are now about 25 homes in the Cedarbrook development.

Greenbrier residents make up a cross section of jobs and professions.

"There are quite a few self-employed people and you see a lot of trucks with name and address and trade painted on the side. You also see the airport limousine almost every day too," says Madsen.

Bible school to begin

Vacation Bible school at the Arlington Heights Evangelical Free Church will be held Aug. 12 through 16.

Sessions will be held from 9 to 11:30 a.m. at 1331 N. Belmont Ave.

Children from three years old through sixth grade are invited to attend classes of activities such as Bible stories, crafts, recreation and treats.

A special mom's program will be held simultaneously. Nursery services will be available.

THE VILLAGE BIKE route loops through the Greenbrier subdivision. Bounded by three major highways, Greenbrier is a mini-community with convenient parks, schools and shopping close by for most residents.

Doctor found dead in home swimming pool

An Arlington Heights doctor was found dead in his backyard swimming pool early Sunday morning.

Dr. Peter L. Sengson Jr., 46, was found at the bottom of the swimming pool at his home, 705 S. Burton, by his wife Mary. He was taken to Northwest Community Hospital by the Arlington Heights Paramedics, but was pronounced dead on arrival at 8:30 a.m.

Arlington Heights police refused to release information on the Sengson death.

According to an uncompleted police report, Sengson was found wearing swimming trunks and a jacket. The body has been transferred to the Cook County Coroner's Office for an autopsy.

Funeral arrangements for Sengson will be made by Lauterburg & Oehler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Highway, Arlington Heights.

Sengson practiced gynecology and obstetrics at the Northwest Medical Arts Building, 1100 W. Central Rd., Arlington Heights and at 85 Weathersfield Commons, Schaumburg. Zoners to consider 1-18 hold

Zoners to consider Klehm land use plea

The Arlington Heights Zoning Board of Appeals today will consider a petition filed for a land use variation at Charles Klehm and Son Nursery, 2 E. Algonquin Rd.

The hearing will be held at 8 p.m. at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The petition was filed by Lois Klehm to build a chapel in memory of her husband, Carl Klehm. The variation is needed to build the chapel because the property is zoned B-3, a general service, wholesale and motor vehicle district.

Floating on air

LLORIA KENDALL

Lloria, 14, becoming the Amelia Earhart of the glider set

by BETTY LEE

Fourteen-year-old Lloria Kendall of Arlington Heights is at an age when some girls think of boys, clothes and school. But for Lloria, airplanes are on her mind.

She's an accomplished glider pilot and recently rode a 233 Switzer glider solo to earn the Soaring Society of America "A" badge. The event made her the youngest in her local chapter to achieve the badge.

Being in aircraft is second nature to Lloria. She's been up in the air before she learned to walk. Her father, James Kendall, is a flight instructor and often took his young daughter with him when he flew.

Her interest in flying stemmed from wanting to be different. "I enjoy the freedom going up by myself," Lloria said. "It's so quiet up there. You can only hear the wind and maybe the birds. I like it because I'm doing something not too many people do."

A SUNNY DAY and warm air pockets known as columns are ideal conditions for a spin in the glider, she said. Before making a flight Lloria checks her glider. It is set aloft by a tow plane, which at the right time, releases the glider from the tow line.

Then, if conditions are right, the rider can expect to sweep the air for as long as 15 minutes. Near mountains where the altitude is higher, a glider can expect to be airborne as long as two to three hours.

"You just float above the ground so softly," Lloria added.

While in the air, a glider can be manipulated to do rolls, stalls and steep turns and other acrobatics. "I do the steep turns, but I have to do the rolls with my father," said Lloria, who lives at 1142 N. Mitchell.

Her solo for the badge marked another event for Lloria. She gained 3,000 feet in altitude and remained airborne for 22 minutes. The local club's average was 2,000 feet in altitude and a ride of 15 minutes.

FOR SOME PEOPLE the thought of being in an glider with no engine and few controls is frightening, Lloria said.

"I feel safer in a glider than an airplane," Lloria said. "There's no engine to worry about quitting, and there's only one wheel. If you can't land where you want to, you can always land on another empty field."

One story that she remembers when she first started gliding was told to her by her father. "A friend of his once had to land on a corn field. He floated down and his plane landed on the corn, not crashing it at all. The only injury he had was when he broke his foot getting out of the plane."

Lloria is keeping herself a step ahead in learning to fly. She was 12 years old when she learned gliding and was ready to be certified when she was 13. She had to wait a year before the testing.

Now at 14 she currently is learning to fly an airplane. "I will continue to get my license," she said. But Lloria will be unable to get her license until she turns 16.

She doesn't plan to establish her entire career as a pilot. As a sophomore at Arlington High School, she is considering a stewardess job and hopes to travel without being the pilot, for a change.

Preliminary work to cost $50,000

Village may hire underpass designer

The Arlington Heights Village Board tonight will be asked to authorize the hiring of Alstot and March, highway engineers, to design the Arlington Heights Road underpass at Northwest Highway.

Preliminary design work on the underpass will take several months and is expected to cost about $50,000. The village will go ahead with the underpass only if state and federal highway departments agree to fund the project, estimated to cost between $5 and $8 million.

The Arlington Heights Road underpass has been identified as the area's top priority highway project by the Northwest Municipal Conference of suburban mayors.

The underpass would begin at about Sigwalt Street on the south, and run to Miner Street on the north.

ALSO ON THE village board's agenda tonight is an administrative report on the Americana Health Care Center, 715 W. Central Rd.

The report, prepared by Village Health

Director Frank Charlton, was made in response to complaints from residents of the Green Acres condominiums, directly south of the nursing home, about using the rear of the nursing home to admit patients.

According to Charlton, use of the rear entrance at Americana is in accord with approved building plans. However the administrative report makes several recommendations aimed at minimizing the impact on the nearby condominiums.

Questions about the rear entrance activity and aesthetics of the nursing home were raised by the condominium owners when Americana representatives appeared before the village board on July 15 requesting a sign ordinance variation.

THE TRUSTEES also will hear a request from the operators of the Holy Cow Boutique, next to St. James Catholic Church, to substitute Thursday morning for Saturday morning as one of the boutique's three permitted days of operation.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd. It will be the first meeting chaired by recently-appointed Village Pres. Ralph H. Clabour.

Clabour was named village president on July 22. He replaces former Village Pres. Jack Walsh, who moved from the village to Lake Geneva, Wis.

Woman hurt in chain-reaction crash

One woman was hospitalized and four other persons were involved in an auto accident Friday at the intersection of Golf and Algonquin roads in Arlington Heights.

Carol J. Lowth, 28, of 227 S. Arlington Heights Rd., was reported in good condition Sunday at Northwest Community Hospital.

She sustained hip injuries when her car was struck by a truck driven by Fred Plambeck, 25, of 2841 Alden, Des Plaines. Plambeck was westbound on Golf Road when he noticed that Mrs. Lowth was attempting to make a left turn from the opposite direction, Arlington Heights police said.

Plambeck told police that he was not able to stop his truck in time to avoid collision because of the wet pavement.

The Plambeck truck struck the Lowth car, which in turn collided with three other cars that were stopped on Golf Road. Plambeck's truck struck a traffic light.

Those cars were driven by Mary Ferguson, 1913 Rosehill; Randy Sherpan, 400 E. Elk Grove Rd.; and Harriet E. Moore, 345 S. Windsor, all of Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Lowth was charged for failure to yield the right-of-way and Plambeck was charged with driving too fast for conditions and damage to property.

Cheerleading clinics for freshmen slated

Girls who will be freshmen this fall at Arlington High School and want to try out for the cheerleading squad can get some practice and training this month at a series of clinics.

The clinics will be held each Monday in August beginning today from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at Pioneer Park in Arlington Heights. They will be taught by Arlington High cheerleaders.

Tryouts for the freshman cheerleading squad will be in September after school starts.

Schedule August date for blood donations

One blood donor date for the month of August has been scheduled as part of Arlington Heights' guaranteed blood replacement program.

The mobile blood unit will be at the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, 302 N. Dunton Ave., from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 11.

Persons interested in donating blood may call Dolores Bricker, at village hall, 233-2310.
